

The Daily Evening Visitor.

VOL. XXIX.

RALEIGH, SATURDAY, AUGUST 12, 1893.

NO. 94

Returned.
The North Carolina Teachers returned last night at 11:30 o'clock from the trip to Chicago. All report having a most delightful time.

The Monument.
We hope that our patriotic people throughout the State will relax nothing of their efforts in behalf of the proposed Confederate monument. The appropriation made by the legislature is quite a meagre one for the purpose, and much individual aid will be required if such a monument is erected as the credit of North Carolina demands. The model will, no doubt, soon be selected, and then we hope the work will go forward in real earnest. Let our people help the ladies out to the fullest extent possible. They will deserve all the encouragement it is possible to give them.

A. & M. College.
There can be no doubt that the establishment of this high grade college for the advancement of the agricultural and mechanical interests of the State was a step in the right direction, as is evidenced by the rank the institution has attained among other institutions of the land. The establishment of a military feature is one that must be commended, because it is now a settled fact that a military education is almost essential as any other. In this department we expect to see the A & M college show a degree of proficiency second to none in the Union. We are borne out in this expectation by the announcement that our governor has made application for a competent instructor in that branch, and that such application will be successful. On the whole the outlook for the college is splendid, and we hope to see it receive, to a larger extent, than ever the fostering care of our legislature.

Farmers' Institutes.
These gatherings are in many respects the educators of the farmers of the country, and we are glad to learn that they are being well attended generally. There is no class of our people who have progressed more rapidly in all the information that pertains to their vocations, for the last decade, than the farmers, and this has been not only to their industrial benefit but to that of the people at large. It was not very many years ago that farmers were placed among those wanting in proper education, but this is fast passing away the influence of proper legislation in their behalf. Farmers' Institutes well conducted are powerful levers for the advancement of our planting interests, and we hope they may be kept up to the proper level and continue to be well attended.

The Weather.
