Saturday morning George E Reed, a rock paver in Baltimore, cut his wife's throat and then cut his own. Both are dead.

FROM BUZZARD'S BAY.

The Press Dispatches a Fraud---Jack Adams to be Married.

Correspondence of the Visitor.
BUZZARD'S BAY, N. C.,
August 26th, 1893.

How this world is given to lying. Simply because I came here to recuperate, "do" up the fish, commit matrimony and enjoy myself it must be telegraphed all over the country.

The press dispatches sent out nowadays are frauds on the old way of getting up news.

Time has been when nothing but the truth was told.

Now if a man sneezes, especially a prominent man like myself, it is telegraphed all over the world that I had swallowed a chew of tobacco, got choked and in trying to dislodge it one of ears my was broken off up to the handle.

Just read some of the samples that have been sent out about me since I have been to this famous resort. Here is one:

"Mr Jack Adams, president, &c, who is visiting here for his Bright's disease and fishing for his health and fish, was seen last night about 10 o'clock with his shirt over his head acting in a very curious manner. It seems that in attempting to pull it off he forgot to unbutton the collar and was upon the point of choking to death when he was rescued from his perilous position by a very modest chambermaid. Her name will go down to the grave and in history as one of the greatest heroines that ever lived. A purse of $30 in money and a bottle of corn liquor was immediately made up by the guests of the hotel and gave to the woman who is the unfortunate mother of 11 children. She immediately threw up her supper and situation and is now living in affluence and liquor."

Every word of the above is a campaign lie. I did have my shirt up partly over my head, but I was not choking. I was simply catching dog ticks.

Then again:
"This morning Mr Jack Adams was seen with pick in hand industriously digging in the ground in the garden back of the hotel. It is evident he was trying to settle the silver question by going in the ground after it. Mr Adams my think himself smart, but people around Buzzard's Bay know that there's no silver in this section that which is in circulation."

What a fraud. The truth of the matter is, I was in the garden digging worms to go fishing, but on account of the stringency of the times the worms had hoarded themselves up in some quiet place. That is why I so industriously labored.

Still another:
"Mr Jack Adams, who is stopping at one of the fashionable eating houses uptown, was seen last night in conversation with a large and very influential colored woman, who at times seemed to be excited. She would shake her head and hands and appeared to be dancing. It seems that Mr Adams out talked the woman as she soon became quiet and finally disappeared."

Now, isn't that too bad. A man of the world as I am, that held some of the most responsible positions under the government as I did, to be trauced in this manner at this late day, is certainly injurious to my character to say the least of it.

The colored lady spoken of was my washwoman, and I was trying to stand her off. She wouldn't stand but got to dancing, so I paid her. am satisfied that the woman didn't know me. Perhaps if she had she wouldn't have taken my washing.

But this press business is a fraud and delusion. I have said it, and sometimes when I say anything it is true.

Why my every movement should be watched and noted down is more than I can tell. I stepped into a saloon today and I'm blessed if it was not telegraphed all over the country that I drank a quart of gin and refused to pay for it. But it's not so. I don't drink gin, but I did go in after a glass of water.

But let them telegraph what they please. I don't care; I am here in all my glory and ten cent socks. I am not only here for fishing and fun but I am here to get married, and as it is to be a public affair I suppose it will be a grand one.

I have on'y one objection to being caught in this snap, and that is the blooming lass is rather too tall enough for me. She stands nearly six foot twelve inches while I am not near so tall.

In this hour of my deepest trouble, kind friends, I ask the sympathy and prayers of the people of the church of North Carolina and South Carolina. I will send a full description of the performance to the VISITOR, and hope that if any of its readers hold any special meeting of whatever kind, that they pass resolutions of respect and condolence; that if they have any suggestions for the good of the order please send them to me immediately so I may have them transcribed on my heart in letters of gold (excuse me, the stringency of the times forbid that) ink.

Marrying is a bad business. It's like buying eggs in the summer time. Sometimes they are not all rotten. If my intended turns out to be rotten, my lamb! won't I have lots to contend with.

Adieu, kind friend.
JACK ADAMS.
P S—Tell Jeems Bright that as I cannot go to the world's fair I will take in the state fair if Hal Ayer will give us a free ticket. J A.

A Smart Tailor

Dudely—"I want an elegant suit, something stunning, dontcher know. How long will it take you to make it?"

Tailor—"Three days."
"And what will it cost?"
"Seventy five dollars."
"All right. I'll give you my note at sixty days. When shall I come to try on the suit?"
"Come in sixty three days."—Texas Sittings.

Her Reason.

He—"If you love me as you say you do, why don't you marry me?"
She—"Because, dear, I want to love you always."—Exchange.

Men seldom, or rather, never, for a length of time and deliberately rebel against anything that does not deserve rebelling against.

Wise Words.

Hasty marriage seldom proveth well

Self respect—that cornerstone of all virtue.

There is no malice like the malice of the renegade.

The absence of temptation is the absence of virtue.

No man who needs a monument ever ought to have one.

No nation can be destroyed while it possesses a good home life.

Out of clothes, out of countenance; out of wit.

The lowest people are generally the first to find fault with show of equipage.

As soon go kindle the fire with snow as seek to quench the fire of love with words.

What is becoming in behavior is honorable, and what is honorable is becoming.

Be thou the first true merit to befriend; his praise is lost who waits till all commend.

It is vain to trust in wrong; as much of evil so much of loss, is the formula of human history.

He who observes the speaker more than the sounds of his words will seldom meet with disappointments.

A politician weekly and amiably right is no match for a politician tenaciously and pugnaciously in the wrong.
