

CITY IN BRIEF.

Locals Picked Up Here and There and Boiled Down.

Fun all around next week. All is bustle at the fair grounds. Lots of fine horses will be on hand next week.

The Great Wild West Show is on the way here.

There are now 150 students enrolled at Davidson college.

Quite a revival of religion is in progress at Durham.

There are 98 pensioners on the list from Wake county.

A revival is in progress at the Third Baptist church in this city.

There are now 375 students at the University of North Carolina.

There is much less sickness in this city than usual at this season.

The Supreme court is fast disposing of cases from the third district.

The cotton receipts today were quite heavy. No change in prices.

The colored people claim that they are going to have the best fair for years.

The chamber of commerce is apparently on the wane. It needs warming up.

The Virginia State Fair is in progress at Richmond. There is a large attendance.

Our genial friend Hal W Ayer has an immense rattle snake for sale. Call at once.

There is a tree in Greensboro which sheds tears when the sun shines. See the Record.

The revenue collections in this district have fallen off considerably during the past month.

Entries are fast being made and the clerks in Secretary Ayer's office are full of business.

It is now estimated that the cotton crop in Wake will be from 15 to 20 per cent larger than last year.

We regret to hear that Col. Jno. D. Cameron the veteran journalist is ill at his home in Asheville.

Wilfred Clarke as "Tony Lumpkin" in "She stoops to Conquer" at the Academy of Music next week.

Many of our business men are acting on the suggestion of the chamber of commerce to make next Thursday a general holiday in Raleigh so that there can be a general turnout to the fair.

Again we have the fair upon us. There will be a large crowd. Only one direct outlet from the city to the grounds, and still the matter of the extension sleeps with the committee of the board of aldermen. Is not this somewhat strange.

We are informed that the committee having in charge the matter of a station house, made their report sometime since. Work has been somewhat delayed on account of the absence of the street commissioner, but will soon be commenced.

PROF. GENTRY'S

Equine and Canine Paradox... 50 Wonderfully Educated Ponies and Dogs.

Will give the grandest entertainment ever seen in Raleigh under a tent, on Halifax street, near state capitol, three nights beginning Monday, Oct 16. Also a matinee Wednesday at 3 p.m. Two hours of solid enjoyment never to be forgotten. Strictly moral, refined and instructive. Endorsed by pulpit, press and people.

Those who see Prof Gentry's horse and dog show go away in a state of bewilderment. It is marvelous and most amusing to see the animals perform their parts. Until seen no one would believe that so much intelligence could be awakened in dumb brutes. No such thing has been seen before in this city or elsewhere, excepting as in Prof Gentry's combination. It is the event of a lifetime to see such a show and the prices are so low that no one can afford to miss it. Children, 10 cents, adults, 20 cents.

Bad Weather.
In time of peace prepare for war. When bad weather comes on you will want something to protect your body from cold and rain. Now is the time to prepare for the bad weather. We have just received a large lot of gents Mackintosh coats with cape. This lot is from an assignment sale and we can sell them for about one half usual price. Also lot of boys' rubber coats, ventilated shoulder pieces; the very thing to keep the boys dry when out in the rain. D T Swindell.

Men Wanted.
We have situations now ready for four or five good experienced salesmen. If you think you fill the bill, call in person for terms. D T Swindell.

Four Girls Disfigure the Old man.

They do him up well. They break his arms, dislocate his jaw, bend his face, neck, a hump on his back, cut his head, sprain his legs, fracture his skull, dislodge his eyes, twist his neck, pulled a piece off his tongue, broke his new suspenders and tore off his clothes rendering it necessary to amputate his arms and both legs, trepan his skull, put his neck in plaster and there he lies still on his back five years or more at the end of which time he will probably die, and all this train of evils overtook the poor jay because he failed to obey the girls. They told him to buy from D T Swindell's millinery a hat for each of them and he did not; and two of them wanted a cloak and he would not get them. They had seen Swindell's hats and cloaks and the old man saw old Nick.

Madame Besson has a complete line of ladies and children's millinery. o10

Riggan's toy store is now open. Everybody invited to see it at the Academy of Music, back of postoffice.

She Wears the Pants.
As the people of Oberlin and Brooklyn were returning home last night they witnessed a most unusual scene. A man, bleeding from many cuts about the shoulder, lay on the side of the road and his wife stood over him applying the lash. The groans and pleadings of the poor fellow, who was drunk, were heartrending and brought down the condemnation of the people; but the woman seemed to be totally oblivious of any one's presence save her and "Simon." All she would say was "Sime! Sime! take that, and that, you triflin' wretch," as she laid on the whip. When at last the bystanders interfered and made the lady explain her conduct.

"Well," said she, "he ought to be killed. I give him seven dollars this morning—my week's wages—and told him to go to D T Swindell's store and buy me some of them carpet remnants, one and a quarter yards long, all wool, at 39 cents each, and some of those one yard long, all wool, at 34 cents each, and he did not go but spent my money and got drunk."

And the old lady flew on to Simon again and the crowd cheered her and left Simon to get sober under the lash. Next time Simon will go to Swindell's when told to.

"Morrel"—Keep in the middle of the road, go to Swindell's, and you will always stay on top.
