RALEIGH, SATURDAY, NOVEMBER 4, 1893.

NO. 12

CITY IN BRIEF.

Locals Picked Up Here and There and Boiled Down.

Farmers are anxiously waiting for the expected rise in cotton.

Can't our Chamber of Commerce do something to revive the tobacco trade in Raleigh?

Lots of boys are out hunting today and the feathery tribe are liable to suffer if they can be found.

About the usual number of country people were in the city today and trade was quite lively.

We hope our Board of Aldermen will not give the station house matter the go by. Let the ordinance be carried out.

When you go into a store in which there is a glass case for notions &c. don't lean against it. There may be danger to yourself, besides costs.

Now that the repeal bill is out of the way and congress has adjourned, it may be expected that the president will go heartily into the business of appointments.

The doors of the Christian church will be open tomorrow morning for the reception of members at these services. Communion at the morning service. All are invited to attend.

The usual blockade of colored people were at the southeast corner of Hargett and Wilmington streets today. At this point on Saturdays it is almost impossible to pass without resorting to the street. Ought this to be thus?

There is much rejoicing here today, in Democratic circles over the announcement that the president had given Mr Simmons a temporary commission which will allow him to take hold of the office of collector of internal revenue at once.

Rev Mr Pittinger will address the congregation of the Church of the Good Shepherd tomorrow evening on the Missionary Council of the Episcopal church recently held in Chicago which he attended. Services begin at 7:30 o'clock and all are cordially invited.

Mr O Weikel will make this announcement to his friends and the public, that he has just received another line of fine wooleens for gentlemen's wear, which he will make up in the very best style and at moderate prices. Give him a call. No 125, Fayetteville street, up stairs.

Cards are out for the marriage of Miss Mary Southerland Carroll, of Raleigh, to Mr William Pell Whitaker, son of Mr and Mrs D W Whitaker, of Durham. The marriage will take place Wednesday afternoon Nov 15th, at 3:30 o'clock. Miss Carroll is a daughter of Mr and Mrs O J Carroll.

Durham has passed a stringent dog ordinance. The dogs must be kept up or muzzled or else they will be killed. Persons going into town from the country with dogs following them must tie them to their vehicles or put them up till they go out. All this is done because there have been some mad dogs that bit several citizens.

Our merchants should remember that Christmas will soon be here and that in a week or so there will be a general looking around for presents &c. Now it is evident that the merchants who advertise are going to have the inside track in the way of sales, and the sooner they spread their stocks before the public, the better.

Among our many business men of note is Mr G N Walters, merchant tailor west side of Fayetteville street just above Battle's corner. Mr Walters has at all times a most complete and artistic line of goods for gentlemen's wear which he makes up on order in the most fashionable designs of the day. There is no caterer in the merchant tailoring business that can excel him, and we urge upon all who want to appear in the latest fashions to give him a call.

We will all have to walk for awhile at least.

No more cars for thirty day, unless something turns up.

Mr Walter O Richardson is suffering from an attack of grip.

The Superior Court today was disposing of the motion docket.

Travel over the different lines of railway continues quite heavy.

There will be much figuring on the street railway in the next thirty days.

Now that the street cars have suspended, the hackmen will be in their glory at least for awhile.

Curious Experience and No Reality.

On Blount street, in this city, lives a lady whose experience is varied and wonderful. On last Friday night she had a new experience as follows: In a certain yard in town there is a very large elm tree, hollow, in which there are rooms or apartments. A bed room, a parlor, a sitting room and an elegant dining room. On the night in question the lady visited this tree and found it ablaze with electric lights of every imaginable color and shape, each room furnished and occupied by smart people, and all these illuminations were beautiful boules and dressed in sparkling robes, and the whole place looked like a crystal cave. Rubies and diamonds sparkled in all directions. Suddenly all the electric light disappeared and in their place came most exquisite and beautifully designed swining lamps, with baubles, red, ruby, pink, amber white, and on each of these lamps sat a fairy with a silver plate in her hand with these words engraved on the plate. This lamp came from "D T Swindell's." On entering the dining room she saw a table loaded with the most artistic china that eye ever saw, and above that table hung myriads of the lamps, and on the floor was a fine mosaic carpet in which the feet would sink, and in this same room there was a big sideboard. On opening this there appeared thousands of fiery serpents, and the lady screamed and the serpents rushed out and spread themselves on the tables, on the carpets, on the lamps and wound themselves into fiery letters and the letters spelled these words: "All this nice china, all these lamps, these fine carpets are from D T Swindell's." Then she awakened and remembered she had been looking over Swindell's crockery that evening.
