LITTLE ONE SLEEP.

M. M. FOLSON Little one sleep! Dear withered friend, we will not weep. For God in his wise Providence Knew best, and took thy spirit hence. And where His angels vigils keep, Little one sleep!

Little one sleep! In restful slumbers soft and deep, Beneath the brown September leaves Where wind of autumn moans and grieves, Though wintry tears thy grave shall steep, Little one sleep!

Little one sleep! Sometimes the April suns will peep Above the hills green leaves will bring Around thy bed, wild birds will sing And springtime's earliest roses creep Little one sleep!

Little one sleep! Never dreaming of the storms that sweep The human soul in mortal sin, With fears without and foes within— New grief on bitterest anguish heap— Little one sleep!

Little one sleep! Thy happier lot shall be to reap Joys with no sorrowing seed to sow; Smiles where no blinding tears shall flow From life to life one painless leap— Little one sleep!

Little one sleep! Thy memory in our hearts we'll keep Striving to turn the joy we miss Into a hope of holier bliss, When these dimmed eyes no more shall weep— Little one sleep! —Atlanta Journal.
