THOUGHT HE WAS IN HELL.

Greensboro Record.

It is told of a man here who, on Friday last, took a big dose of laudanum, that when he awoke Saturday morning about 5 o'clock and saw the lamp in his room exclaimed:

"Oh! oh! What's that?" pointing to the light.

Two doctors had been working with him all night and one of them said:

"It's a lamp!"

"Lord, I thought I was in hell—I was sure of it."

He was assured he was at home in his own bed and was greatly relieved.

But his doctors had a job saving his life.

He swallowed a big dose about 4 o'clock Friday afternoon and told what he had done. Drs. Michaux and Wilson soon reached him and commenced the "pumping" process with frequent washings of the stomach with hot coffee.

This was kept up all night, but it was not until about five a. m. that he recovered, with the above ejaculation:

Why he took the dose is not known, but his experience should be a warning to him.

If he was so terrified at what he supposed to be hell, what would be his condition were he really there.

QUEER NEGRO NAMES

St. Louis Globe Democrat.

I knew an old negro in Tennessee who refuses in the name of Niagara Falls. His companions have shortened it to Nigger Falls, but he was really christened after the great cataract.

I also knew a colored woman who proudly tells you that her name is Virginia-Georgia-Alabama-South-Carolina. Another who enjoys the cognomen of Amanda June Day is a school teacher and signs her name A June Day.

In a Mississippi town I was passing along a side street when a coal black negro came out of a door shouting, "Glory, Glory Hallelujah! I thought she was crazy and stopped to see what she would do next."

She looked around a moment and then repeated her call louder than before. This time I heard the answer from behind a fence:

"Yere He, ma'am. What yo' want?"

"Nebber yo' min what I want. You come here."

Immediately there appeared from behind the fence one of the blackest peccaninnies I ever saw and on inquiry I learned that his name was Glory Hallelujah Jones.

De roit Free Press: "Black Tom" was before the court in the capacity of a witness in a chicken stealing case, and the judge had some doubts in his mind. "Do you know the nature of an oath?" he asked. "What's dat, boss?" inquired Tom, bending forward to catch the words. "Do you know the nature of an oath?" "Oh!" he exclaimed, his face brightening. "Deed I does, boss; ain't I been drivin' mules for gwine outer nine yers?"
