A LANTERN AND A PISTOL

Show Up a Sad Case of Domestic Trouble.

GREAT SOCIAL SENSATION IN GREENSBORO.

A sad case of domestic trouble comes to us from Greensboro, the particulars of which we cull from the Record as follows:

For some time Capt E L Gilmer has suspected infidelity on the part of his wife, who is a daughter of Col Thos B Keogh, and a sister to Mrs Conrad, of Danville.

On Friday morning last Mr Gilmer left here on the 7:30 a m train, ostensibly for a two days' trip to Raleigh. That night at 7:30, it is now learned, he returned. His wife was at the train and inquired for him, but failed to find him. No one saw him, as far as can be learned, for he left the train somewhere below the station and took a back street.

At about 11 o'clock he entered his mother's residence, where his wife sometimes stays in his absence, on North Elm, immediately opposite his own home. His mother had retired. Diving himself of his shoes, he went up stairs, and soon ascertained that his wife was in one of the bed rooms and that a man was also there. The door was locked.

Concealing himself across the hallway, he awaited developments. Soon some one came up stairs and going to this room, gently rapped on the door. As it was then about time for the arrival of the train for the north, it is believed the man in the room was being notified that it was time to go to the depot.

Who this party was it is not necessary to state—in fact we don't know.

However, when he rapped on the door it was opened. Mr Gilmer, from his place of concealment, saw a man, afterwards ascertained to be Frank Holland, of Danville standing in front of the mantelpiece with his overcoat on his arm as if ready to depart. No light was in the room with the exception of what was given forth by a small fire in a grate.

Mr Gilmer then rushed from his place of concealment, flashed a dark lantern full in the face of Holland and shot him.

Holland fell in his tracks and rolled under the bed. In the meantime Mrs Gilmer ran from the room.

After the shooting Mr Gilmer came out and looked the door. A friend who came up, insisted on sending for a physician. This was done, but when he arrived and went to the room Holland was gone, having jumped out on to the top of a porch and to the ground.

There were traces of blood showing how he had descended, but he was nowhere to be found and as far as we have been able to ascertain no one around here has set eyes on him since.

All day Saturday there was much curiosity felt about the matter. The police had got on to it and were trying to locate Holland. They had him in first one place and then another, while every man had a clue, but when run down it was found to be incorrect.

Then, too, it was said Holland was mortally wounded, having been stabbed as well as shot.

The truth is that when Holland reached the ground he made tracks down North Elm, down Smith street to the railroad, which he followed back to the depot where the train soon arrived, being behind time, and on it he went to Danville.

He is shot through the fleshy part of the right thigh, but there is no danger of death—only a flesh wound. It is understood that Mr Gilmer has taken steps to secure a divorce at once. An order, it is also understood, was today served on Mrs Keogh, his wife's mother who has been residing at his house, and Mrs Conrad, who came over last night, to vacate his premises. His wife will be given ample time to leave. There is one child about three years old, now in the custody of the mother.

Much sympathy is expressed especially for Mrs Judge Gilmer, mother of Capt Gilmer. She had been to church and on her return had no idea any one was in the house. To say that she was shocked and mortified beyond measure is to put it lightly. She had no suspicion of wrong doing and the whole matter burst upon her like a flash of lightning.

It is said Mr Gilmer took no one into his confidence, but laid his own plans and carried them out to the best of his ability.

His wife, we understand, says she was guilty of great indiscretion but not of criminality.

Whether she intends to fight the suit for divorce is not known.

If she does there will likely be a stirring up of things, for we understand, how true we are unable to say, that several correspondents will be named of exceedingly great prominence throughout the state.

A DIFFERENT VERSION.

The following telegram is taken from the Richmond State of January 15th:

There was a shooting affair in Greensboro Friday night, out of which many wild rumors have grown, some of them extremely sensational. This was the natural result of the course pursued by the interested parties in trying to keep the matter suppressed.

Ellison Gilmer, of Greensboro, did the shooting, and Frank D Holland, of Danville, received a slight flesh wound in the leg. The shooting occurred in the parlor of Mrs Judge Gilmer, the mother of Ellison Gilmer. The trouble was jealousy on the part of Mr Gilmer. Holland and a young man named Mellwaine had spent a portion of the evening with Mrs Ellison Gilmer, Mrs Dick, a sister of Gilmer, and Mrs Judge Gilmer, and the young men were in the act of saying good night when Gilmer, who had left town that morning for Raleigh came in and drawing a pistol fired upon Holland. The women screamed and seized Gilmer, who was intoxicated. The pistol fell upon the floor, and the women being able to control Gilmer, the young men at their suggestion left. After leaving the house and walking some distance, Holland felt a stinging sensation and upon investigation, ascertained for the first time that he had been slightly wounded by the ball from Gilmer's pistol. He went to Danville by the midnight train. These are the cold facts.

Holland and Mrs Gilmer indignantly deny that there is any ground whatever for Gilmer's jealousy.
