At St Philip's Episcopal church at Durham Sunday afternoon Messrs Charles M Busbee and James I Johnson, of Raleigh, delivered addresses on the brotherhood of St Andrew. These addresses, the Durham Globe says, were heard with much interest. St Andrew's brotherhood is an organization of laymen of the Protestant Episcopal church, and it is governed by two rules, service and prayer. The membership to secure attendance upon the ministrations of the gospel, and devote a portion of each day to prayer for the congregation. It is a large membership and is doing good. It has organizations in both the Episcopal churches.

Shakespearean Recital.

Mr Hannibal A Williams of New York city announces a private Shakespearean recital Thursday evening at Metropolitan hall, the selection being from "King Henry IV." The recital will begin at 8 o'clock sharp and occupy two hours. Mr Williams has been in this state some days and has recited at several places. The highest compliments are paid his dramatic ability as well as his ability as a speaker. The recital here is to be given under the patronage of a number of Raleigh's most prominent ladies and gentlemen, and will be quite a social as well as literary event. Handsome invitations are issued. The notices of the press as well as the testimonials of men of the greatest prominence in politics and the pulpit show that Mr Williams is indeed a master of his art.

At Central Methodist church both services on Sunday were extremely interesting. The pastor, Rev. D. H. Tuttle, preached two strong, practical sermons, which were greatly enjoyed by the large congregations. The communion after the morning sermon was the largest ever known in this church. The attendance at the Sunday school was also the largest in many years. The pastor, notwithstanding his health is not good, is certainly doing a good work, and the stimulating effect is seen in the decided increase both in the congregations and Sunday school.

The Fanny Hill company appears at Metropolitan hall this evening. Frank Mosely, the well known local contortionist, will appear, as will also Ed Lou Ward, late of George Wilson's minstrels.
