- 3d—Interest compounded monthly.
- 4th—Premiums compounded monthly.

Her age was 73 and she was the widow of Mr Jephtha Horton. Her funeral was held this afternoon from the First Baptist church, of which she was a devoted member. The employees of the R and G shops attended the funeral. Mrs Horton was, in all the relations of life, a truly estimable woman.

The sub-Alliances in this state are called on by the president and executive committee of that order to observe April 24th, the birthday of the late L L Polk, by meetings, at which a special collection for the Polk monument fund is to be made. It is proposed to erect this over his grave at Oakwood, and to either lay its corner stone or unveil the monument itself when the National Alliance meets here.

An important meeting of the North Carolina Confederate monument association will be held at the state library at 4 o'clock tomorrow afternoon to select the granite for the monument and also to appoint the day for laying the corner stone.

The 150 rifles for the use of the cadets at the agricultural college will arrive next week, and the uniforms perhaps a week later.

The North Carolina commissioners who will go to Antietam to locate the positions of troops from this state expect to leave here April 25th, and to remain a week on the battle field.

A report to collector Simmons from deputy collector Pickard states that the 80 gallon illicit whiskey distillery of J D Jones, near Laws', Orange county, with all its outfit, has been captured.

The first copy of bulletin No 1, "Iron Ores of North Carolina, preliminary report by H O B Nitze, assistant geologist," has just been placed in Governor Carr's hands. The book is of 289 pages, profuse y illustrated.

Mr Chas. McKimmon, whose fine taste in the dry goods line is well known, has been placed in charge of Mr Swindle's business here as managing clerk, and will conduct the business according to his own ideas and good judgment.

Junius Daniel Camp, Confederate veteran, last evening adopted resolutions regarding the death of Gen Jubal A Early. These were prepared by a committee composed of Messrs G M Allen, J T Watts, N S Moseley, J C Birdsong, T P Devereux and O D Heatt.

The attendance at the Y M O A yesterday was quite large. There were visitors from Greensboro, Charlotte, Portsmouth, New Orleans, Denver, Col; Pittsfield, Mass; Forest City, Miss; and Brussels, Belgium. There were six states and one foreign country represented. The work is progressing nicely under the Rev Mr Foster's direction as secretary.

At 12:35 this afternoon a fire alarm was sent in from box 34. The fire was in a little wooden building owned by James A Jeffreys, colored, not far from the Washington public school, and very near the N C railway. The firemen were prompt. The house, which was used for storage, was barely scorched, the damage being perhaps $1. Hot ashes piled against the house caused the fire.

A Washington dispatch in today's Charlotte Observer says: "Senator Jones called attention to the Simmons matter in the finance committee today. It was not pressed and was not taken up because it was understood that Senator Vance would return in two weeks. The cause assigned why there is no haste is the fact that Mr Simmons is acting as collector and cannot suffer by the delay. Nevertheless the delay operates against public interests."

In Joseph Arthur's play, "The Still Alarm," which will be seen at the Academy of Music Tuesday, March 20, local playgoers will greet an old friend. There are no braver men than the firemen. Mr Arthur's theme is, therefore, a popular one and the great prosperity the play has enjoyed is not surprising. With the company are two intelligent Arabian horses, Pegasus and Bucephalus, which have for several years made the dash for the fire from the engine house. The play is entirely different from "The Midnight Alarm," which was given here some time ago.

HOW RALEIGH GROWS.

Notes About Improvements and Enterprises.

There are now 70 operatives at the Raleigh hosiery yarn mills.

Mr W O Strousach is erecting a neat cottage on North Person street, between East Polk and Peace streets.

There are 153 persons now employed at Oraleigh. The number will be increased at once to 200, as some 50 will be employed in the brickyards.

The stockholders of the Oraleigh cotton mills last evening re-elected William G Upchurch president and Frank O Moring secretary-treasurer. It was also decided to add 3,000 spindles and 100 looms, there being now in the mills 4,600 spindles and 170 looms. A number of houses for operatives will be built.

The contract has been given for the improvement, repair and painting of the building for white patients at the Rex hospital. The building will be made attractive within and without. It is not yet known definitely when the hospital will be opened, as the trustees wish to have everything in perfect order before the opening takes place. Miss Maggie McLester, so long at St John's hospital, has been elected matron.

The Chamber of Commerce

At its meeting last evening discussed the fire insurance question, the telephone matter, and the proposed issue of bonds. As to insurance a report of committee was adopted, which showed that the oppressive increase in local rates had been protested against and a representative of the "insurance trust" known as the southeastern tariff association had been asked to come here to confer with the chamber of commerce regarding tariff rates and charges. Some of the solid men in the chamber of commerce did some plain talking. One of them thought the proper plan was to get insurance from companies outside the association. This he considered a capital idea. In response to this question an insurance agent said such insurance could be obtained. The insurance committee was asked to ascertain the actual net receipts of the insurance companies from their Raleigh business, and also to ascertain whether insurance could be obtained outside the association. The association's new rates went into effect March 7. The local board no longer has any power in making them.

A resolution regarding telephones was referred to the committee on improvements, with a request for the collection of information regarding a cheap telephone system, which Raleigh so greatly needs. The resolution sets forth the fact that the various patents and royalties on the Bell telephone have expired, and that yet the high rental rate here has not been reduced, and raises a committee of three to ascertain the feasibility of establishing a local telephone system and to report in April.

The chamber adopted, after considerable discussion, a motion that is not now proper to submit the question of the issue of $70,000 of city street improvement bonds to the people. One of the speakers, a leading citizen, asserted that the city's revenues were sufficient to keep the streets in order if judiciously applied.

The Wake Forest College baseball team was to have played a game with the New Yorks, but the latter club abandoned its southern tour. Wake Forest has engaged to play two games with Oak Ridge.

The index of the record books in the office of the register of deeds will be finished in a few days.
