REJECTION OF THE ARBITRATION TREATY CHARGED TO PROMINENT IRISHMEN.

Some Say it Was Due to the Refusal of Great Britain to Arbitrate the Seal Fishery Question.

Washington, May 7.-The rejection of the arbitration treaty continues to be a live topic of discussion. By some its defeat is ascribed to the efforts against it of Michael Davitt, ex-Minister Patrick Egan and other prominent Irishmen, and by others to Engiand's attitude toward silver. It is believed that the votes in the negative might have been overcome, but for Great Britain's refusal to take action to protect the seals.
