HELD UP TRAIN AND TOOK SANDY. Not a little excitement occurred yesterday evening on the southern train when it was stopped near Boylan bridge by the cry that a murderer was escaping in one of the coaches. The door to the lavatory in the second-class car was broken open and Nell Sandy, a white man who held a position as telephone lineman here, was arrested and brought to town. It seems that some weeks since Sandy got in trouble and his employer, Mr. W. A. Wayne, paid about $20 to get him out of the difficulty. This amount Sandy promised to work out. However, he made a deal to go to Florida and accept a position. It is alleged that he took tools belonging to the Raleigh Telephone Company and went to the station. The officers found that he was leaving town before the train was stopped and he was arrested. The trial of Sandy comes off before Magistrate R. G. Reid.

There seems to be quite an increase of interest in the Negro Baptist Convention, which meets at Scotland Neck next Thursday, July 12, and a large gathering is looked for. "The True Reformer," a negro journal, says: "Able men and women of other states are to speak," as well as strong leaders of our state, and that "President Cartwright is sounding the battle cry and the army is marching to the scene of Baptist array."
