

THE DEED OF A BORGIA

Unknown Woman Forces Poison Down Boy's Throat

The Lad Falls Dying on the Street and Declares He is the Victim of a Poisoner—Police Working on Case.

(By Leased Wire to The Times.) Norfolk, Va., April 1.—That Joseph Thomas, the nine-year-old lad who died several nights ago at St. Vincent Hospital from the effects of swallowing carbolic acid, came to his death as a result of having the acid forced down his throat by an unknown person, was the verdict of the coroner's jury.

The evidence at the hearing showed that the lad, who had been an errand boy in Jarvis' drug store, on Chapel street, was sufficiently aware of the deadly effects of the acid not to have swallowed it thoughtlessly. When he fell in the street the boy was returning from a neighboring drug store with the bottle of acid.

O. J. Cosgrove testified at the hearing that the boy told him, when brought dying to Jarvis' drug store, that a woman had poured the acid forcibly down his throat.

As the Jarvis' drug store is in the county and the other drug store visited by the boy is in the limits of the city, it is not known whether the boy was accosted by the unknown woman in the city or in the county. Both the city and county police, however, are working on the case.

Lo, the Icy Grin of Old Winter

(Continued from First Page.) trees in the fruit belts of Washington county are in bloom, fully three weeks ahead of the natural season. Fruit growers everywhere are apprehensive that the freeze that usually comes in April will destroy the fruit. The intensely cold weather in February froze about 50 per cent of the peach buds, and should April turn out to be a cold month with periods of freezing, many predict that the fruit crop will be totally ruined.

Winter Robes Easter.

(By Leased Wire to The Times.) Bristol, Va., April 1.—At dawn of Easter day, snow was falling in southwest Virginia. There was a snowstorm in Wise county, and early in the forenoon the ground was covered with snow to the depth of an inch and a half at Big Stone Gap. Trains arriving from the east over the Norfolk & Western had snow-covered tops.

And Gladness Flies.

(By Leased Wire to The Times.) Taswell, Va., April 1.—Snow began falling yesterday evening and has continued almost incessantly since, and were it not for the fact that it melts almost as fast as it falls, there would be a depth of several inches. Great fears are entertained that all early vegetation and fruit will be killed.

Blue Day in Petersburg.

(By Leased Wire to The Times.) Petersburg, Va., April 1.—The unprecedented high temperature for the month of March, the thermometer registering some days as high as 82 degrees in the shade was followed last night and today by a fall in the temperature of thirty degrees. Rain fell yesterday until late in the afternoon, when a heavy snow storm set in, which continued without intermission for several hours. The warm weather had caused many of the fruit trees to put out in full bloom, and it is feared that much damage will be done to the fruit by the sudden change in the weather.

Storm on the Coast.

(Special to The Evening Times.) Norfolk, Va., April 1.—A fierce storm is sweeping the Atlantic coast today, with wind blowing forty miles an hour, endangering all the shipping at sea. The thermometer has dropped 36 degrees. Blooms on all fruit trees are killed.

VALUABLE HORSE SHOT THIS MORNING

The valuable black horse which Mr. J. K. Marshall has driven for some time past fell this morning and broke her left hind leg, and it was necessary to kill her. He left the horse hitched near the cotton oil mill, and in some way she became entangled in the harness and fell. At first it was thought that the animal had only knocked her leg out of place, but upon examination it was found that her leg was broken, and there was nothing to do but kill her; so she was shot.

A BRUTAL MURDER COMES TO LIGHT

(By Leased Wire to The Times.) Utica, N. Y., April 1.—A brutal murder has come to light at Brookfield, in Madison county, in the discovery of the body of a woman known as Elizabeth Anna, housekeeper for a wealthy farmer, near that town. The woman had been missing since January 7th last.

After the body was discovered by accident in a pasture near the farm where she lived, the coroner was notified. He found a large scar on the top of her head, portions of her skull missing, and various marks of violence upon the body.

Coroner Beebe summoned a number of physicians, who also looked over the body. It is their belief that the woman was murdered. The police have begun working on the case.

A GREAT COAL DEAL IS ABOUT CONSUMMATED.

(By Leased Wire to The Times.) Davis, W. Va., April 1.—It is reported that a coal deal, involving $2,500,000 has about been consummated at Davis, W. Va., near where the coal lands lie. The property has been acquired, it is stated, by the Beacon Coal & Coke Company which has been working a small mine four miles east of Davis, Fairfax & Landstreet, late vice president of the Western Maryland Railroad, while on a recent visit to Davis, his old home, gave out the statement that the property was in the hands of strong Philadelphia capitalists.

THE COMBAT ON THE DIAMOND

Wake Forest Against Home College Team

HARK NOW TO ROOTERS

Despite the Blue Character of the Day the Diamond is Warm and Rosy This Afternoon With the Determined Striving of the Two Teams for the Supremacy.

In spite of the wet, chilly weather of yesterday, this afternoon is clear enough to play ball. Wake Forest College is represented by a large body of students, who came in with the team this morning. A careful inspection of the grounds was made, and they were found to be in good condition, so everything was in readiness when one of the biggest games of the season began this afternoon.

Wake Forest has a vast number of supporters in Raleigh, who are out to cheer the Baptist team to victory. The A. & M. contingent, headed by its band, are making things lively for the home team's benefit. Nearly every school girl in the city is at the fair grounds, waving either the red and white or the orange and black. Temple is in the box again today for A. & M., so there'll most likely be something doing for the farmers. The game was called at 3:30, so that those going north on the shoofly may leave on time. Many of the out of town visitors will remain over night for the band concert in the Academy at 8:15 p. m.

GALUSHA A. GROW GONE

A Man Whose Name Was a Household Word

Relic of Better Days of the Bygone, He Entered Congress After Thirty Years of Retirement to Find Machine Methods Dominant.

(By Leased Wire to The Times.) Scranton, Pa., April 1.—Galusha A. Grow, father of the Homestead law, and during the Civil War speaker of the house of representatives, died at 11 o'clock yesterday morning at his home in Glenwood, near this city, where he had lived for seventy-three years. His age was eighty-three years and eleven months.

Mr. Grow had been ill for nearly a month. Less than five weeks ago he was seen walking the streets of this city, apparently erect and active. Death was due to general debility. It was a very peaceful end, with none of his blood relatives in attendance. Mr. Grow never married. His relatives consisted of a number of nephews and nieces scattered through the United States, his favorite niece being Mrs. George W. Benedict, Jr., of this city, who spent a great deal of time at his home. He leaves a large estate, much of which he accumulated during the autumn of his life by shrewd investments in bituminous coal lands.

Galusha A. Grow served twenty years in congress and spread his time over three generations. His service was divided into two periods, the first of twelve years, came at the birth of the republican party and took him half way through the Civil War. The second, of eight years, which ended four years ago, began a full generation after the close of the war, and brought him back to Washington at a time when the reunited country was making its most tremendous strides in material prosperity. In his first service he wielded a powerful influence. Beginning as a Free Soil democrat, he left that party after three terms to join the new-born republican party in its fight for the overthrow of slavery, and closed that period of his life in congress as speaker of the house, in which capacity he served during the thirty-seventh congress, from 1861 to 1863.

Coming back to the house, after thirty years of retirement, Mr. Grow found that his world had moved far beyond him. He was a relic of an age long gone. Even the methods of doing business in the house had changed, and instead of the deliberative argumentative debates of the days when he had made his name famous in the land, there was set up a machine, guided by the "organization" and run by the committee or rules.

Miss Mary Bowen Shot by Her Brother

Both the Boy and His Mother Supposed That the Gun Was Unloaded—Miss Bowen is Now in the Hospital.

(Special to The Evening Times.) Durham, N. C., April 1.—Miss Mary Bowen, eighteen-year-old daughter of Thomas Bowen, West Durham, was shot and badly wounded this morning by a small brother, who did not know that a shot gun was loaded and snapped it at his sister. She is now in the hospital, and the physicians say that she will recover.

The accident occurred about 8 o'clock. The mother and her daughter were standing before the fire when a young brother, thirteen years of age, picked up a shot gun and presented it at his sister. She told him to take the gun down, but the mother remarked, "Don't be afraid, it is not loaded." With that remark from the mother the boy again raised the gun, snapped and fired. The gun had been loaded by the father to shoot cats. The young woman walked to another room and fell across a bed. The load took effect in the left shoulder and one shot entered the breast.

TERRIBLE EFFECTS OF DEADLY "GRIP." PHYSICIAN ADVISES PROMPT ACTION

RICHMOND, IND.—The grip epidemic has rendered two men insane. John Hart was placed in a sanitarium, also Jonas Carter who became very violent. Col. M. B. Bolland died yesterday. This brings the fatalities up to fifty-seven in a month. A prominent physician has published a statement that influenza or grip is one of the easiest troubles to cure if taken in time but if allowed to linger will frequently take a disastrous turn on short notice. The treatment is very simple: stimulate the blood circulation; heal the mucous membranes and keep the bowels normal. For this he advises the use of what is known as the Greek formula. This is as follows: "Two ounces of glycerine; half ounce Concentrated oil of pine; eight ounces of good whiskey or Jamaica rum; mix in a ten ounce bottle and shake thoroughly and use in tablespoon doses every four hours." These ingredients can be obtained from any good prescription druggist. The only care necessary is to be sure to get the genuine "Concentrated" oil of pine. It always comes put up for dispensing in half ounce vials, each enclosed in a sawed top case which keeps out the light and retains all the original ozone. Don't make the mistake of getting any of the oils sold in bulk patent medicines put on the market in some localities and called "Oil of Pine." "Concentrated" oil of pine is also used by mixing it with hot lard and rubbing on the chest and throat. It will prove very effective. Just what causes the "grip" has never been fully determined but scientists seem to generally agree on the germ theory. However it is very evident that any thing that stimulates and strengthens the mucous membranes succeeds immediately in combating the disease. The active principle of pine has been since the days of the ancients acknowledged as the greatest stimulant and healer for the mucous membrane and the modern product "Concentrated" oil of pine when used according to the above formula works wonders on those membranes of the nose, throat and lungs. The worst feature of "grip" is that if not quickly checked it will lead into pneumonia and hasty consumption, as well as many other complications, frequently wrecking the nervous system.
