Eye to the Grand Stand.
In the circuit court of Boone county, Indiana, Judge Samuel R. Artman has pronounced a decision to the effect that the saloon is no evil institution that the state law licensing it is unconstitutional.

In view of these holdings, based, as they certainly are, upon good reason and sound common sense, it must be held that the state cannot under the guise of a license delegate to the saloon business a legal existence, because to hold that it can is to hold that the state may sell and delegate the right to make widows and orphans, the right to break up homes, the right to create misery and crime, the right to make murderers, the right to produce idiots and lunatics, the right to fill orphanages, poorhouses, insane asylums, jails, and penitentiaries, and the right to furnish subjects for the hangman's gallows.

In due appreciation of the responsibilities of the occasion, conscious of my obligations under oath to Almighty God and to my fellow man, I cannot by a judgement of this court authorize the granting of a saloon license, and the demerit of the amended remonstrance is therefore overruled, the amended remonstrance is sustained, and the application is dismissed at the cost of the applicant.

Protect Capitol Square.
It has been suggested that now that our capitol square has been improved by paving the walks at great expense to the state, it would be advisable to prohibit all manner of vehicles from entering the square for any purpose; that unless this is done, the new walks will be disfigured, broken all to pieces, and all the work will have to be done over.

The effect of Scott's Emulsion on thin, pale children is magical.
It makes them plump, rosy, active, happy.
It contains Cod Liver Oil, Hypophosphites and Glycerine, to make fat, blood and bone, and so put together that it is easily digested by little folk.

official in view of the fact that there is not only a general law prohibiting public executions, but also a special act for Cumberland county itself prohibiting the barbarous practice.
However, since it has been so announced, it appears to us that it is up to the sheriff of Cumberland county to correct publicly the statement that has gone forth, for it puts the good county of Cumberland, in a very peculiar position as it stands.

That's Easy.
"How come" Mr. Roosevelt has not put Contractor Oliver's portrait in the bar's gallery for saying he had been "whangdoodle" out of the Panama canal contract?—Wilmington Messenger.

John Temple Graves also has made a cast for the grand stand, and has succeeded in landing it. He must be pretty well satisfied with all the free advertising he has secured by his latest grotesque caper.

In the light of the Paul Morton episode, the Alton B. Parker episode and the failure to push tariff reform, President Roosevelt can never pose as the champion of the people against corporate greed.

The Thaw episode has at least been rich in adding expressions to our speech. Now comes "dementia Americana" from Mr. Delmas, and he seems to be proud of it.

A woman in New York is said to have lost twenty dollars at a card game and called for the police. That lets her out from bridge.

Wonder if Mrs. Ida von Claussen will be dragged out of the president's office heels first.

The Democratic Party Alone.
The Asheville Gazette-News, independent, discussing a recent editorial in The Observer which took the position that the conservative democrats would make the stand for their rights strictly within the party, remarks:
"as for us, we have entertained no notion that the democrats of the server type would be attracted to the republican party in this state, under conditions that now obtain. No good would result from such a movement. Indeed, such democrats would, through assimilation by the republican organization in this state, simply make permanent their political bondage, for all who enter there, leave hope behind. The conservative forces are now pursuing the proper course—they should continue the fight for a different order of things in their own household. Certainly, these conservatives are democrats. Few of them have ever voted a republican ticket. They could not be republicans if they wanted to and they do not want to—surely not under conditions that now obtain."

A Winning Issue.
When Mr. Cleveland declared that tariff reform ought to be the issue on which the democrats make their fight next year, he seems to have struck a note that appeals to all sections of the country. Other important matters, of course, will enter into the platform and poles of the democracy, but if the party will commit itself squarely and unequivocally to reformation of our present tariff system we verily believe it will do more to unite the discordant elements of democracy than anything else. We believe that it will be a winner, and one of the strong points in its favor is that it will not only be good policy but will be right, not merely for the party, but for the country.

Better Outlook in China.
It has been understood for some time past that the quiet demand from China for southern cotton goods was because that market had been overstocked. Normal conditions appear to be returning. A consular report says that two of the leading cotton goods merchants at Shanghai find a great revival of business in the Shanghai piece-goods market at the end of December. European merchants who went into the country for the holidays found on their return to business that things had been moving during their absence. Clearness of all classes of goods had greatly improved, and there was an active speculative inquiry for both spot and forward cargo. Tientsin was primarily responsible for this demand, but it extended to the other markets also, and for many of the staple English makes importers were able to obtain replacing cost. Money was still very plentiful, which helped the situation considerably. Most of the business consisted, however, of resales among natives. One of the firms stated that, according to reports current among dealers, supplies in the actual consuming districts are not excessive, "so that, with almost a clean slate as far as fresh imports are concerned, the prospect is not very discouraging." This being the case, southern cotton mill men with an Oriental trade may expect a revival of business in that market.—Charlotte Chronicle.

When the question of tariff reform comes up to be acted on. The convention's platform should pledge democracy to that in the plainest and most unequivocal language of which the English tongue is capable.

The chance of winning with such an issue is not at all remote. It is well known that there is a very strong tariff-reform sentiment in New England, and it is not confined to democrats altogether. Those people have felt the evils and inequalities of the present system and want it modified. So, also, in the west and northwest, there has been much restlessness of late on the subject. Some of the strongest reform demands that we have seen come from republican newspapers of that section. These reformers might not all join the democrats at the polls, but if their own party persists in its standpoint policy and refuses to take any step in the direction of reform we do not believe it can depend on a solid republican vote next year.

The only bar to democratic success that we can see will be for the republicans at the next session of congress to go seriously and honestly to work and reform the tariff themselves. Promises and glittering generalities will not do. They must act, and act in such thorough way as will satisfy the anti-tariff sentiment of the country and especially among republicans. If they do this in a thorough and effective manner, they may deprive democrats of the best and strongest claim to the support of the dissatisfied masses. That possibility, however, should not stand in the path of democratic duty. Tariff reform should be the issue.

All That's Needed.
What a folly it would be in those millionaire conspirators to waste five million dollars for the purpose of ruining Mr. Roosevelt politically when a few dollars spent in the purchase of a present of several yards of rope would answer the same purpose.—Wilmington Messenger.

We have heard of the Florida governor's "solution" of the "race problem," and we thought we'd have something to say about it. But we're busy these days—got something more to do than to fool with air castle.—Kinston Free Press.
