MEN WHO MUST DIE THE DEATH

Charged With Attempted Assassination of Cabrera

LONG ON HIS BLACK LIST

Seizes the Opportunity Offered to Get Rid of Them—Travesties of Justice—Chaos in Guatemala—Dream of the United States of Central America Impossible of Realization.

(By Leased Wire to The Times.) Mexico City, July 3.—Dispatches received here state that many of the leading citizens of Guatemala whom President Cabrera caused to be thrown into prison, have been condemned to death.

Intervention of the powers may result from the arrests and orders of execution. The entire diplomatic corps, with the exception of Philip M. Brown, the United States charge, protested to the president against his high-handed methods.

Chaos reigns in Guatemala. Dispatches state that farm hands are being pressed into military service, crops are rotting in the fields, the rich are plundered for funds, and ruin threatens them unless they aid in Cabrera's designs.

Dispatches today state that Guatemala explains the erection of defenses on the Mexican frontier as a precaution to repel any revolutionary invasion from that quarter, but this is accepted in the republic as a bluff.

Central Americans here are anxiously awaiting news of a military movement to quell the reign of terror in their various republics. They declared that intervention on the part of Mexico had been delayed too long, and that the gravity of the situation is made plain by fresh outrages, and that there will be but one course to pursue.

Attention has been drawn to the bloodless victory of Nicaragua over the principal seaport in Salvador. Not a shot was fired. When General Manuel Rivas landed his men from the gunboat Momotombo, the officers of the garrison, it is said, had already been prepared for the attack by presents of gold.

Col. F. A. Olds is today collecting pictures from the state library and the executive mansion, to be sent to the Jamestown Exposition. About eighty will be sent and these may be seen inside the colonial building.

THE STORY RENT INTO FOUL RAGS

Orchard's Confession Denied on All Sides

WITNESS AND WITNESS

They Corroborate the Story Already Told on the Stand of How the Pinkertons, Working for the Mine Owners, Sought to Break Up the Miners' Federation.

(By Leased Wire to The Times.) Boise, Idaho, July 3.—With sledge-hammer blows delivered through one witness after another, the defense in the trial of William D. Hayward has battered the dove-tailed story of Harry Orchard into fragments, all of which its witnesses declare are lies.

Orchard's "confession," manufactured by the convict after a year's piecemeal labor at the behest of Detective McPartland, head of the Pinkertons, today was a discredited parable. Joe Mitchell, a miner, and Billy McKim, another miner, all of whom were given general and specific details of the mine and detective during the deposition by wholesale from the Cripple Creek district. Edward McPartland himself was one of those deposed.

Billy Alkman, who, Orchard said, was a desperate dynamite and bomb companion on expeditions to kill Governor Peabody, was then called. Orchard had sworn that Alkman was with him when he put the bomb in the Victor mine. Alkman absolutely denied this charge. The defense, with other witnesses, (Continued on Fifth Page.)

B. N. DUKE GIVES COLLEGE AWAY

Louisburg Female College is the Gift

PROPERTY WORTH SEVENTY-FIVE THOUSAND DOLLARS GIVEN IN THE INTEREST OF SOUTHERN METHODISM—THE SCHOOL TO BE ENLARGED AND IMPROVED.

Dr. B. N. Duke has made another splendid gift to the cause of Christian education, which will but add greater honor to the bounteous generosity of that liberal philanthropist. The following letter from Rev. J. B. Hurley to the Raleigh Christian Advocate explains itself:

It becomes my privilege, as well as pleasure, to make an announcement that I am sure, will bring rejoicing to every friend of Christian education in the state. Louisburg Female College, the property of Mr. B. N. Duke, of Durham, N. C., has been donated to the North Carolina Conference. Several years ago when the college was about to be sold for debt, to save it to the church and to Washington Duke, his father. It was ever Mr. Duke's desire that the benefits of his princely donations to education should be enjoyed by the daughters of the church as well as her sons. Hence the opening of Trinity College for girls. For this reason he purchased Louisburg Female College. Certainly no one man in southern Methodism—no, not even in the south, as far as that—has done so much to advance the cause of Christian education as did he by his great benefactions to this purpose. Since the purchase of the property by Mr. Duke it has been run in the interest of the church as far as possible. But hoping now to increase its field of usefulness in this sphere and enlarge its power for good in every way, Mr. Duke donates the entire property to the North (Continued on Page Five.)
