SOME TRIBUTE TO HUGHES

The Pres'd't of Cornell Pays it in the Independent

IS UNDER NO ILLUSIONS

What a Candidate's going About Soliciting Offices Means in a Broad Language—Of Such is Not the Governor DeWitt and the World—Be Presidential Nominee of His Party—Mr. J. G. Schurman Says Hughes Appreciates the Election of the People.

New York, Dec. 26.—Jacob Gould Schurman, LL.D., president of Cornell University, has written an article on Governor Hughes for the coming issue of Independent, the same being the first of a series on the leading candidates of both parties.

After sketching the life of Governor Hughes, Mr. Schurman says:

"Mr. Hughes is under no illusions concerning his nomination and election to the governorship. He knows that the party leaders in general were opposed to him. They accepted him only because it was finally recognized that no other republican nominee could win victory at the polls. My own personal belief is that no one contributed more effectively to the enjoyment of that view than President Roosevelt. As a most sagacious party leader the president recognized in the hour of the need and insurance investigation a name to wrest victory in a contest that in his own state. I believe that in his own party he argued this and this pressure was a deciding influence. But all the while Mr. Hughes stood about as though the matter were no concern of his. He would not say he desired the office; he would not authorize any one to present his claim of himself as his available. It was a matter solely for the people of the state to decide.

"In the latter language Schurman means a candidate's going about to solicit offices. Of such a quality Mr. Hughes is absolutely devoid. It is one thing to fill an office and another thing to get an office. To get an office has never been Mr. Hughes' aim or desire. His constituency or public service has been to him paramount. It is not that he regards himself as superior to other men or that he does not value the good opinion of his fellow citizens. His good opinion goes to the confidence and esteem of his fellows. But if they want him for public service he feels that the call should come from them and if they do not want him he does not desire the office so that in any event there is absolutely nothing for him to do. And he is so far from cherishing any illusions as to his comparative standing with other men that he recognizes very clearly that his nomination to public office was due to a combination of circumstances which made him, in the estimation of his party, the most available man. He is the last man in the world to think himself a Moses, he knows he is not essential to the state. He does not pretend to be a leader with a mission, he claims only to be an every-day American citizen, who was selected for the governorship out of a number of others any one of whom might have been chosen because of his prominence in the insurance investigation which he had undertaken, not on his own initiative, but at the request of a legislative committee.

"The governor is the chief servant of the people; he is not the delegate of a feudal aristocracy who permits him to promote personal or district aims to promote party ends. He is his own master, dedicated to a service which is perfect freedom because it satisfies his own conscience, fulfills the law and advances the welfare of the people. Disinterested, devoted and strenuous service has been rendered by Governor Hughes. Like another governor—I mean Roosevelt—he has faced the bosses and beaten them; like Mr. Roosevelt he has made fitness and merit the qualifications for office; and, like Mr. Roosevelt he has been a terror to evil-doers in office."

Those who travelled on the old Raleigh & Gaston and later on the R. R. aboard Air Line during those years look with tender affection of the gentle, thoughtful man in the blue uniform who took their tickets. Mothers with children waited to go on "Captain Timberlake's day" because they were sure of the help with the little ones and the baggage. He always had time to answer questions, to look out for anyone put in his charge, and to offer a kind word to any in trouble. His pleasant, friendly greeting, his quiet, unobtrusive manner, together with his perfect and unbroken courtesy marked him as a man of great force and showed him the Christian gentleman that he was. He called forth the best in others and his friends are two numbers of them—he himself could testify.

For more than forty years he has made his home in Raleigh and it is here where he is best known that he is most loved. He was a devoted member of the First Baptist church. He leaves a wife and five children—Mr. Julian B. Timberlake, Mrs. C. W. Newcomb, Mrs. Virgil Rounover of Kinston, Mrs. William Harding and Miss Estelle Timberlake. All were with him when the end came. Like his life, it was peaceful. There was a murmured word for each one. Then came the old railroad phrase, so often in his lips before, "All's clear ahead, over yonder," and his eyes closed as in sleep.

The funeral service will be held tomorrow (Friday) morning at 11 o'clock from the First Baptist church.

BAD CONDITIONS PREVAIL AT THE DARK MINE. —Jacobs Creek, Pa., Dec. 26.—There have been only eighteen bodies recovered from the Dark mine here in the past 24 hours, making a total of 68 brought out. Of these six have been identified and twelve were unrecognizable because of decomposition. Nine unclaimed bodies still remain in the morgue. The work of recovering the bodies is slow, and, although a week has elapsed since the explosion the rescue work is lagging more each day, because of the condition of the mine which it is said is worse than that encountered at Monongah.

CAPT. J. B. TIMBERLAKE

One of North Carolina's Best Citizens Dead

End Came Yesterday Morning—For Many Years a Railway Conductor and Popular—Funeral From First Baptist Church Tomorrow.

"All's clear ahead, the signals are right, over yonder."

Those were the last words of a man who has been known and loved by three generations of North Carolinians from every quarter of the state. On the morning of Christmas day, Captain Julius Burton Timberlake passed from the duties of this life into the glories of the beyond.

Captain Timberlake was born March 28, 1822, and was one of a large family, though his parents, his three brothers and three sisters have long ago passed away. As a young man, he entered the employ of the old Raleigh & Gaston Railroad as ticket agent at Forsythville. After two years he was made conductor. From 1855 to 1893 he filled this position, and during those forty years he had not the slightest accident to his train nor did he receive one cross mark on the books against him. When he gave up his position as conductor, it was told by those who knew that he had the cleanest record on the railroad.

Those who travelled on the old Raleigh & Gaston and later on the R. R. aboard Air Line during those years look with tender affection of the gentle, thoughtful man in the blue uniform who took their tickets. Mothers with children waited to go on "Captain Timberlake's day" because they were sure of the help with the little ones and the baggage. TROUBLE IN ADMINISTRATION OF THE NAVY

(By Leased Wire to The Times.)

Washington, D. C., Dec. 26.—With our ships not yet much below the eastern coast line of the United States, the trouble in the administration of the navy has broken out beyond the power of anybody to suppress the facts. Senators and representatives are receiving information every day from men of high rank in the navy. The resignation of Rear Admiral Brownson had made it impossible to hide whatever defects there may be in the administration of the navy and the attack upon Brownson by Senator General Hitt has accentuated the difficulties. The senate, President Roosevelt is believed that the head of the bureau of navigation should resign while the story is on its progress, and under attack by a committee of the senate. He says also that his political enemies will use every possible word to make things look darker than they are.

Senator General Hitt's speech on the navy in the publication of a long statement showing that there was friction between the bureau of navigation and the bureau of medicine.

Hitt's statement that hospital ships always have been commanded by medical officers with a civilian master and crew for purposes of navigation. This particular vessel, he says, formerly belonged to the army and always was commanded by a medical officer when used as a hospital ship.

In attempting to unify the medical forces of the army and navy he says a joint army and navy board of medical officers which was conceived by executive order more than a year ago is recommended that hospital ships should be commanded by medical officers, and that the recommendation was approved by the secretary of war and the secretary of the navy in general orders. During the civil war, he says, all hospital ships and hospital transports were placed under the surgeon general of the army.

He says further that Japanese naval ships were commanded by medical officers after having tried line officers.

He maintains that it has always been a question whether the Hague and Geneva agreements could guarantee the neutrality of these ships if combatant (line) officers and crews were aboard and it was this doubt which prevented the Japanese during the late war from using line officers on the ships.

UNKIND HUSBAND KILLS HIMSELF

(By Leased Wire to The Times.)

Washington, Dec. 26.—Happily despondent because of his wife's death and, it is alleged, stricken with remorse at his manner of treating her during her life, Frederick Luch, a structural iron worker, committed suicide this morning by shooting himself through the heart.

Since his wife's death several months ago, Luch had been growing more and more morose and despondent. Neighbors say that previous to his wife's death Luch was an unkind, unfeeling husband. They declare that Luch's harsh treatment was the primary cause of her death.

The regular meeting of Center Lodge, No. 3, K. of P., will be held tonight at 8 o'clock. Degree work.
