Dr. Dixon Delayed by Train; Euclid McWhorter Preaches

Revival Services Begin in the Academy of Music This Noon

WILL ARRIVE TONIGHT

Noted Chicago Minister to Reach Here This Afternoon and Preach at 7.30

Rev. Euclid McWhorter delivered an able sermon in the Academy of Music this afternoon, preaching from the text, "My soul longeth, yea, even fainteth, for God."

Dr. A. C. Dixon, of Chicago, was expected to arrive in the city today, but missed connection in Washington.

Mr. McWhorter, in his sermon today, showed that man longs for something not obtainable by position and money.

The soul of man is ever seeking for that which it cannot obtain in this world. Man walks this earth a pilgrim and a stranger, with a desire for something; he is never satisfied and, unlike animals, he never finds rest; he always seeks.

Mr. McWhorter concluded with an appeal to the congregation to devote their lives to the true God, to labor for Him, to serve Him.

Rev. Mr. Masse, who had Mr. McWhorter to preach in the absence of Dr. Dixon, added a few words to what the speaker had said.

COUNTESS SAYS SHE FIRED IN SELF DEFENSE ALONE

(By Cable to The Times)

Paris, April 29.—The police are at a loss to understand a mysterious tragedy in the residence of Count and Countess Sylvain De Lanet in the Rue Therese.

On being revived the countess said her husband for some time had shown signs of madness. He imagined he was being pursued by enemies and purchased two revolvers to protect himself.

The count was about 50 years old, 10 years older than his wife. They had a daughter seven years old, who is now being educated in England.

NOBODY KNOWS WHY MR. COSTER KILLED HIMSELF

(By Leased Wire to The Times.)

New York, April 29.—The police and coroner were today utterly baffled in their attempt to find the reason that impelled Charles Coster, a millionaire member of the New York stock exchange, to shoot and kill himself, with the greatest deliberation, in his residence at 17 East Fifty-fifth street.

SCIENCE LEADER CALLED A QUACK BRYAN'S BEATEN IN NEW JERSEY

Prof. Henderson Would Have Him Restrained By Legal Process, Like the Rest Smith Overthrows Davis and State Delegation Will Go Uninstructed

(By Leased Wire to The Times)

Chicago, April 29.—That Christian Science leaders should be restrained by legal process, like any other quacks, is the opinion of Prof. Chas. R. Henderson, of the University of Chicago.

"This is the place for frank speech about the Christian Science movement, in which many estimable but misguided people are interested. Catching at a half truth, the influence of cheerful hope and collectedness of mind on bodily states, ages ago understood by shrewd observers, they have built up a barrier of fanaticism and ostracism between their votaries and all the representatives of real science."

"To this superstition countless deaths and untold suffering are already to be charged, because it prevented the early resort to modern scientific treatment. It is no kindness to our deluded neighbors to conceal from them our conviction that their ignorance is an enemy of public welfare and thoroughly immoral."

MAXIM CERTAIN FLYING MACHINE VERY PRACTICAL

Can Be Used for Scouting Purposes in War Says Inventor of Big Guns

WITH AERIAL BOMBS

Small Torpedo Craft May Be Attacked for Very Mischievous Results

(By Leased Wire to The Times)

New York, April 29.—The allied association of magazine editors, book publishers and literary gentlemen went up in the air in a body last night from the rooms of the club on Eighteenth street, when Hudson Maxim, Alexander Graham Bell, Maj. George N. Squier, of the United States Army balloon corps, and others addressed 50-odd of the members on the subject of aerodromes, aerostates, heavier-than-air flying machines and the dynamics of aerostatics.

When Mr. Maxim spoke he made a forecast of the part the aeroplane and lighter-than-air machine would probably play in the near future. Of the flying machine in war he said this:

"Although the value of the flying machine will be mainly as a scouting craft, still its value and importance for that service is hard to over-estimate. For the machine videttes will be at once the eyes and ears of the armies of the future, and they will have their use in naval warfare, too, for there will be scudal torpedo scouts on the lookout for torpedo boats, which will signal the approach of danger."

"As I have pointed out, flying machines could not be expected to successfully attack battleships, coast fortifications or large cities, or to do much damage with high explosives. Still, they might attack torpedoed and small torpedo craft with aerial bombs planted and exploded beside them in the water, and it is possible they may be very mischievous indeed."

"The aerial navy will be a great bulwark of peace and a very great step toward the permanence of peace."

Mr. Bell devoted a large part of his speech to the history of aerodromes.

HELP FOR ALL TORNADO TOWNS M'INTYRE BACK TO HIS OLD FARM

(Special to The Times)

New Bern, April 29.—J. A. McIntyre, the New York broker, who last week failed for $1,000,000 passed through New Bern last night, enroute from his farm in Onslow county to his home in New York. He was accompanied by a nurse and appeared very feeble. It is said he will adjust business matters and then return to his farm to live. His farm is one of the largest and finest in the state.

SO MANY FRIENDS WHO WOULD KISS THE BRIDE!

(Special to The Times.)

Boston, April 29.—Dr. J. C. Kierman and Miss Helen M. Cogan, who were married in Cambridge, missed their train for Raleigh because so many Boston and Cambridge friends insisted on kissing the bride, who, by the way, is said to be a particularly lovable young woman.

OLD JAIL RINGS WITH HOWLINGS OF A FANATIC

Devil Chaser Bachman Curses His Keepers, Tears His Hair and Raves About

"I'M GOD" HE CRIES OUT

"And Will Blast You With Almighty Lightning if You Don't Let Me Go"

(By Leased Wire to The Times)

Allentown, Pa., April 29.—Robert Bachman, the wild-eyed fanatic who rammed a five-year-old child to death "to expel the devil from her" after a two days' meeting of the Devil Chasers, of which sect he declares he is God and the chief, had whipped him into a murderous frenzy, made the jail ring today with his shouts and imprecations. He threatens to blast his keepers if they don't let him go, and he has torn most of the long shaggy hair from his head and beard and the clothes of his lean figure in his transports of rage.

"I am God," he shouts, "and will blast you with my almighty lightnings if you do not let me go. I crushed the devil out of the child. She was full of them and I chased them from her." In an adjoining cell his wife, a poor, worn woman, raved to a bright-eyed skeleton by the religious mania, told the authorities her husband was God and that the awful crime of which he was accused was committed in his divine right. The father of the tiny victim, May Irene Smith, and brother of Mrs. Bachman, is retired in Northampton county as a millionaire. He is "cousin" Henry Smith, of Alliance, Pa.

The orgy of the devil chasers, which culminated in the terrible death of the little girl, was held on Bachman's farm in the hills near Nazareth, Pa. Smith is a cement manufacturer of Alliance and until he became a worshipper of the new faith was a steady-going foreman in his factory. Bachman became a convert through the missionaries the devil chasers sent out on recruiting work through Pennsylvania. The headquarters of the band are said to be in Reading, one of the towns of their creed is personal exorcision, and the bodies of Bachman and his wife are covered with scars and scratches, many of them fresh. Bachman, who since his conversion to the devil chasers, has been a constant visitor at Smith's factory, made such an impression on his brother-in-law that Smith on Saturday agreed with his wife and five-year-old child, May Irene, to attend a two days' meeting of the sect.

Late Saturday afternoon under the trees in the back of Bachman's place the worship of devil chasers began. The low groans of religious frenzy and the slight of men and women half clothed, rolling on the ground and shrieking that the devils were passing from them, terrified the child and she screamed so loudly in her fright that Bachman, enraged at the interruption of his ritual, demanded she be locked up where she could not distract attention from the rites of his followers.

Smith and his wife, who, after a few hours, seemed to be crazed by their religious delusions, arrested and the child was promptly locked up. Starving Out the Devils. One of the rules of the sect is that no food shall be eaten during devotions. From time to time the hungry little daughter of the Smiths appeared at the window and cried, but she was waved back, her hunger and thirst overcome by terror at the sight of Bachman's wild, lean, dancing figure. It was not till late Monday that Mrs. (Continued on Page Seven.)

3-CENT FARES BRING A STRIKE?

Motormen and Conductors In Cleveland Want Their Wages Raised

(By Leased Wire to The Times.)

Cleveland, O., April 29.—The shadow of a threatened strike of motormen and conductors fell over the operation of the street railroad lines today, forty-eight hours after the roads had been taken over by the municipal traction company, fostered by Mayor Tom L. Johnson, to carry out his promise to operate all lines at 3 cent fares. Ninety-five per cent of the 1,850 men who belong to the local Street and Electrical Railway Employees' association began picketing early, and authorization of a strike ultimatum, if their demands for a raise in wages are not met by President A. B. Dupont of the Municipal company, was reported from the men's headquarters to have been voted.

The main complaint is that Dupont's order raises wages one cent an hour and at the same time cutting off all free transportation, violates the pledge of the Cleveland Electric Railway company which last fall promised a two-cent an hour raise the moment the traction light was ended. The municipal leased the Cleveland Electric lines. Demand for the two cent raise is to be made today. What Dupont's action will be cannot be learned. A committee of the employees has been picked to wait on Mayor Johnson himself. A million free rides were given by the Municipal Traction company in celebration of Mayor Tom L. Johnson's success in bringing about the transfer to that company of all the street railway lines in the city on a three-cent fare basis. This celebration will be repeated each year on April 27.

PAUL ROY SAYS CARKINS FIRED ON HIM FIRST

(By Cable to The Times.)

Paris, April 29.—Paul L. Roy, the Frenchman being examined in connection with the allegation made by his wife that he murdered her brother, George A. Carkins, near Portsmouth, N. H., was cross-examined by Magistrate Boucard regarding the details of the shooting. He declared Carkins fired at him at a sign given by Glacia Calla, his wife, Carkins' sister, after Roy had called her an adventuress.

PARACHUTE MAN HAS CLOSE CALL

(By Leased Wire to The Times.)

Fort Worth, Tex., April 29.—Plunging from a height of 2,000 feet, clinging to a disabled parachute, which whipped him about in the air like a toy, S. A. McCormick, an aeronaut of Omaha, was dashed to the earth here but escaped death.

As he cut loose from his balloon, a long rip was made in the parachute. He went down almost as fast as if he had no parachute. The spectators expected every moment to see him wrenched from his grip, but he hung on. He declares he will make another ascension as soon as he recovers.

Kingcaid and Becker Did Land Office Rum Business

(Special to The Times.)

Statesville, April 28.—Deputy Collector J. M. Davis and Deputy Marshal W. A. Wright were called to Coolmees Saturday to take charge of two white men, Thomas Kingcaid and John Becker, arrested there for retailing. The retailers were tried before United States Commissioner Blount, of Coolmees, Sunday and placed under bond for appearance at the October term of the federal court at Statesville. They were brought to Statesville jail Sunday night and taken to Salisbury yesterday afternoon, where they expected to secure bondsmen. It developed that Kingcaid and Becker had been doing a big business at Coolmees. They hauled the liquor there from Salisbury by the wagon load, and when arrested were selling it from a wagon in bottles and jugs, which had been filled and packed in straw before leaving Salisbury.

Held at Ellis Island to Await Possible Extradition to Old Country

PRETTY MRS. CLEARY

Claimed By Dublin Constabulary to Have Poisoned Her Wealthy Husband

(By Leased Wire to The Times)

New York, April 29.—The unusual sight of an ocean steamship being held up in the lower bay while a trio of detectives searched and located an alleged murderer was witnessed today by several hundred passengers on the incoming Campania as she lay at anchor off quarantine. The object of the officials' search was Mrs. Margaret Cleary, of Claremorris, county Mayo, Ireland, who was held prisoner as the result of the receipt of a cablegram from the Royal Irish constabulary at Dublin. It is alleged that, prior to leaving her home, she secretly administered poison to her wealthy husband and then fled the country at night, making her way to Liverpool, where she took passage under the name of Miss Margaret McCormick.

Mrs. Cleary was accompanied by Miss Kathlyn Bowns, her cousin, also pretty, who was registered under the name of Katherine McCormick.

Captain Cheerfully Cooperates. The vessel was met at quarantine by Detectives Leeson, Allmer and Moody, who went down the bay in a United States revenue cutter. They had been furnished an excellent description of the woman and, after telling the captain of the Campania of their quest, he ordered the vessel held until the trio could search every part of the ship. After going through the first and second cabins, they went to the stowage, where the two women were located. Everyone else had left the compartment and stood on the decks. Mrs. Cleary was asked to step to the smoking-room of the second cabin, where she was questioned at length. She said she had come to America for the purpose of visiting a brother in Brooklyn who was identified with one of the traction companies.

The examination of the woman startled her cousin, for she had not the remotest idea she had been accused of anything wrong. Mrs. Cleary maintained for fully half an hour that her trip was solely for pleasure, when suddenly one of the detectives said:

"Your husband died the day after you left Ireland, and we have received a cablegram to arrest you and hold you for extradition."

Both Women Collapsed. Mrs. Cleary remained silent fully 15 minutes and the detectives again began to question her. At length she became indignant. She declared she had a right to land in New York and said she would fight a way. She returned to the stowage, followed by Miss Bowns, and remained there until the vessel was ordered to proceed. She again came on deck, but the detectives kept guard over her. The immigration authorities demanded she be sent to Ellis Island and, after telephoning Inspector McCafferty, the detectives accompanied her to Ellis Island on the Immigration ferry.

The local police did not learn the details of the alleged murder further than that Cleary was an exceedingly wealthy young man and that as soon as he died and his wife had disappeared, suspicion pointed to her.

MUCH POLICE ACTIVITY AND PROMOTER'S GREED KILL FIGHT

(By Leased Wire to The Times)

New York, April 29.—Terry McGovern and Johnny Summers failed in their purpose to trade wallops last night, owing to violent activity on the part of the police, superinduced by the blind greed of the promoter who tried to get it all at once. McGovern and Summers were scheduled to hold forth at Lyric hall, but the police wouldn't hear to the arrangement and the match was postponed to some more auspicious occasion.
