JURY MAY GET CASE LATE THIS EVENING

Trial of Alleged Robbers of YOUNG STANLEY Dunn Postoffice Nearing the End.

EXPERT ON STAND TODAY

John F. McCarthy, Former Dynamite Adept, a Valuable Witness.

When Postoffice Inspector H. T. ment rested its case against J. T. Leonard, James Scanlon, Charlie defendants' attorneys, had launched out in his argument. The prisoners submitted no evidence and the government had fifty-two witnesses in other points. The court will hold an afternoon session and the jury may render a verdict before adjournment this evening.

Had the men been able to prove that they were elsewhere other than at Dunn on the night of the postoffice robbery, the government would not have a very strong case; but as matters now stand, the prosecution has proved conclusively that all five of the men were at Dunn and a verdict of guilty would not come as a

Ino. F. McCarthy, a Boston, Mass., was the expert witness in the case. Mr. McCarthy, according to his own testimony, was formerly as handy with blasting instruments, nitroglycerine and dynamite as any man who ever robbed a bank. He was a genuine bank robber himself, and incidentally he used to take a whack at a postoffice or two to get stamps and small pocket
