

Mr. Cleveland Will Have Very Quiet Funeral

The suggestion came from President Roosevelt that a military funeral would be appropriate for Mr. Cleveland, the former commander of the nation's army and navy.

It was plain to her that the small police force in Princeton could be relied on to keep back the people and the force is to be augmented by police from neighboring villages and by companies A, B, E and L, of the Second regiment, of Trenton, and the second troop, of Red Bank.

Flags at Half Mast 30 Days. To every naval station and to every government vessel in commission and to every consular office and diplomatic office in every quarter of the globe, orders have been issued by President Roosevelt to display flags at half-mast for 30 days.

The president of Brazil has ordered a wreath sent to Princeton as a tribute from Brazil. Another wreath comes from Baron De Rio Branco, the Brazilian minister of foreign affairs, who was minister in Washington at the time of the Argentine boundary dispute which was ended by Mr. Cleveland as arbiter, and a third comes from the Brazilian embassy in Washington.

Only One Wreath On Casket. There will be 27 carriages in the funeral procession.

The only floral decoration on the coffin will be a wreath of ivy from Nassau hall, Princeton, which was planted by the class of '68.

The first carriage is to contain the ministers who will officiate at the grave. In the second carriage will be Mrs. Cleveland, her son Richard, and Dr. Joseph B. Bryant. Then will follow Miss Rose Cleveland, a sister of the dead man, and his daughter, Esther. The fourth carriage will contain Cleveland S. Bacon, Miss Mary L. Hastings, and Prof. and Mrs. Wood.

The fifth and sixth carriages are set aside for Mr. and Mrs. Huddleston, Mrs. John G. Finley, Mrs. Richard Watson Glider, George Shipley and Miss Heckler, who nursed Mr. Cleveland through his long sickness.

President and Mrs. Roosevelt will ride in the seventh carriage with Secretary Loeb, and behind them will be a carriage filled with secret service men.

Others who will go to the cemetery are Justice Fuller, Gov. Fort of New Jersey, Gov. Hughes of New York, Secretary Cortelyou, former Secretary Carlisle, former Secretary Vilas, Mrs. Daniel S. Lamont, former Secretary Olney, former Secretary Fairchild, former Secretary Francis, former Attorney General Barnum, former Secretary Herbert and Gov. Hoke Smith of Georgia, all of whom served under Cleveland when he was in office.

United States Senator Keap and Briggs, of New Jersey, Charles Good-year, Gen. Anson McCook, Dr. St. Clair McKelway, H. P. Fine, of Princeton University, Bishop McCall and Father Leahy of New Jersey, Mr. and Mrs. John Hays Hammond, ex-Secretary of the Treasury Charles S. Hanlin, Mr. and Mrs. eGrove Armour, representatives of the Equitable Life Assurance society, a few intimate friends and the household servants, will also ride to the grave.

Immediate members of the family and a few close friends alone will be permitted to take another look at the dead man's face before the funeral. President Roosevelt said he would not be among these.

More cablegrams arrived today. Viscount Kaneko, of Tokio, cabled the Mikado's sympathies, and messages of similar import were received from the Nicaraguan and Brazilian governments. The charge d'affaires for France sent this message to Mrs. Cleveland: "I am instructed to convey to you, madam, the sincerest condolence of the"

and the government of the French republic in the great sorrow that befallen you and in which so deeply partakes the American nation." Mark Twain sent the following from London: "Your husband was a man I knew and loved and honored for 25 years. I mourn for you."

Tolling of Princeton Bells. At half-hour intervals all day the bells in all the Princeton churches will be tolled, and at half minute intervals during the funeral procession. At 3 o'clock all traffic will be halted in the streets over which the funeral procession is to pass from Westland to the cemetery.

On the way to the cemetery the cortege will pass Old Nassau hall, built in 1756, where Washington received his commission as commander-in-chief of the Continental forces and where the Continental congress met. It was here, nearly a century ago, that Mr. Cleveland's grandfather was a theological student.

Will Lie Beside Daughter Ruth. The grave in which Mr. Cleveland will lie besides daughter Ruth and being surrounded by the last resting place of many of his friends, is not far from where Aaron Burr, John Witherspoon, a signer of the Declaration of Independence, Jonathan Edwards and John McCosh, Princeton university's most noted president, are buried.

CLEVELAND NOT RICH, HIS FRIENDS ASSERT. Little Except Princeton Home and Place at Buzzard's Bay For Family. (Special to The Times) New York, June 26.—Contrary to the general belief, Mr. Cleveland was a poor man. For some reason which does not appear, the opinion was generally held that he was possessed of a considerable estate and that he would leave his family well off when he died. Inquiries made today developed the fact that Mr. Cleveland, far from being well off, was poor, and left to his family, unless his close personal friends are entirely mistaken, practically nothing but the house at Buzzard's Bay.

"When Mr. Cleveland left the White House the last time, and for many years thereafter," said one of his intimates today, "he had, together with his wife, about $17,000 a year. His income often worried him exceedingly, especially as he saw his family growing up about him, and knew their future was not as well provided for as he could wish. He would not accept anything from his friends; he was extremely proud on that score, but those who knew him best knew that his circumstances worried him not a little.

"He did not live in New York for the sole reason that he would not live here as cheaply as he could live in New Jersey and maintain the style he felt would be demanded of him. When he became one of the trustees of the Equitable Life his income was added to somewhat; I think he obtained something like $5,000 for that work.

"Had he lived a little longer his circumstances would have been much improved. All of his friends rejoiced when he became the head of the Association of Life Insurance Presidents with a salary of $25,000 a year, for they knew his circumstances. However, he had held that place for only a year, so that, although there had been an improvement, it was not sufficient to make a great deal of difference.

"I know a good deal about Mr. Cleveland's affairs, and my belief is that it will be found that he left little if anything to his family outside of the house at Princeton and the furnishings in it and the place at Buzzard's Bay. He had some money in addition, but I don't believe it was very much. My recollection is that he had it on deposit in the Knickerbocker Trust company. That fact came out at the time that company closed its doors.

Among those who knew the ex-president best it was recognized that he had taken up magazine writing in recent years in an effort to increase his income. His practice of law since his second term has been small and did little to add to his income. At the close of his second administration it was common report that Mr. Cleveland had made a considerable fortune in real estate investments in and around Washington.

Military Guard For Route. (By Leased Wire to The Times) Princeton, N. J., June 26.—Four companies of infantry and a troop of cavalry arrived from the armories in Trenton and Monmouth today to guard the body of former President Grover Cleveland at Westland. The state militiamen also guarded the route from the Cleveland home to the cemetery.

The three companies of infantry, under Maj. John McCullough, from Trenton, were stationed along the streets from the house to the burying-grounds, while Company L, Second regiment, N. G. N. J. and the Monmouth mounted troops were stationed about the house and grounds. Maj. McCullough was in command of all the militiamen.

Mr. B. B. Webb, of Statesville, was here today.

EXPECT TO BRING COTTON LEAK MEN TO DISTRICT Claim of Peckham, Haas and Price That They Can't Be Taken From New York Contested by Uncle Sam. (By Leased Wire to The Times) Washington, June 26.—Notwithstanding that on Wednesday they entered in New York a plea that because their alleged crime was not an offense against the laws of the state they could not be extradited to Washington, the district attorney's office in this city expects to be able to bring Peckham, Haas and Price, the New York cotton brokers, back to the District of Columbia for trial.

The position of the district attorney's office is that the crime charged was not committed against a state, but against the United States and that, therefore, these men can be taken by lawful process from any part of the United States to any other part.

Frederick A. Peckham, Moses Haas and Theodore H. Price were indicted in connection with Edwin S. Holmes, Jr., whose trial last spring in the "cotton leak" case resulted in a disagreement of the jury. Holmes' case is to come up for retrial in the fall, and the other men are to be tried at that time.

HARD ELECTRICAL STORM DOES DAMAGE IN PENSACOLA. (By Leased Wire to The Times.) Pensacola, Fla., June 26.—A severe electrical storm, accompanied by a heavy downpour of rain, was experienced here last night and considerable damage resulted, lightning striking two buildings, badly tearing up the roofs, while the machinery of the power plant was damaged to such an extent that all cars were stopped for about two hours, causing much inconvenience.

Smacks Women Doctors in Convention When They Give $100 to Propaganda Fund. (By Leased Wire to The Times.) Kansas City, Mo., June 26.—An offer by Dr. Hamilton Plisk Biggar, John D. Rockefeller's physician, to kiss any woman who would give $100 to the propaganda fund, created the merriest time of the homeopathic national convention in Casino ball. The fun continued for thirty minutes and $5,000 was pledged, enough of it by women doctors to keep Dr. Biggar busy trotting up and down the aisles trying to catch the givers and fulfill his part of the compact.

Dr. Biggar had charge of the movement to create a fund for a propaganda to advance homeopathy. He started the list with $100 from his own pocket and then made the women delegates take in the rest by announcing he would kiss the first woman who gave the same amount. Dr. Mabel Spencer, of Junction City, Kan., promptly but blushing arose and said she would contribute $100.

"One moment, please," the white-haired physician from Cleveland cried. "One moment; I'm coming." Dr. Spencer put forward one hand and Dr. Biggar, bending low, gallantly touched his lips to it while the convention cheered.

The example set by Dr. Spencer was quickly followed by other women doctors and, amidst loud cheering, Dr. Biggar fulfilled his part of the compact. Dr. Biggar tried to prevent anyone escaping his osculatory gifts and created much merriment when Dr. Anna Cline set him a swift pace down the aisle, escaping, unharmed, into the street.

After the meeting quieted down, the presiding officer announced the fund was completed.

IGNORANCE OF AGENTS, Says Commissioner, Makes it Impossible to Prosecute Roads That Misquote Rates.

(By Leased Wire to The Times) Washington, June 26.—Within the past several months, hundreds of complaints have been filed with the interstate commission against railroads alleged to have misquoted rates to shippers.

Interstate commerce commissioner Lane says: "The agent of a railroad will go to a large shipper and offer to handle his products at a price lower than the legal rate. The shipper, not being familiar with the law governing the rates, accepts the offer. When his goods have been transported, the railroad remits a bill in which legal rates are charged.

"The shipper immediately protests. He demands that the railroad live up to its contract, whereupon the representatives of the company explain that they are not at liberty to carry out their contract because of the law governing rates. If the railroads transported products for less than the legal rates, they would be amenable to the law. Consequently, they dupe the shipper by telling him the agent has made a mistake in his quotation. Also, as a pacifier, they explain they would let their original quotation stand if the interstate commerce commission would permit them.

"The railroads which have been guilty of misquoting rates plead ignorance on the part of their agents, which, of course, makes it impossible for the commission to act."
