HEARST NEWS SERVICE

Entered through Raleigh, N. C., postoffice as mail matter of the second class, in accordance with the Act of Congress, March 3, 1879.

TUESDAY, JUNE 30, 1908.

All admit that William Howard Taft has a right to smile.

Wind wrecked a western college the other day, but it wasn't the University of Chicago.

With smokeless powder and silent guns modern war will soon become quite a nice, quiet affair.

A New York grand jury has indicted the ice trust. It could hardly have chosen a more popular time.

Lightning just missed striking Gov. Hughes the other day. Lightning seems to have contracted that habit.

The sun was in eclipse for a short time but soon got back to business and sent the mercury up one degree after another.

It is reported that Caleb Powers, after being eight years in prison, is going to be married. Evidently, Caleb does not appreciate freedom.

The German emperor is said to be planning to tax bachelors, and Mr. Roosevelt is doubtless regretting that he didn't think to propose such a procedure first.

John D. Rockefeller is now going to tell the world the story of his life. Possibly he intends to throw oil—though not to any wasteful extent—on the troubled waters of hostile criticism.

The mayor of Atlantic City has decreed that there must be no spooning on the beach at that resort this summer. Cupid certainly has a difficult road to travel in this materialistic age.

Uncle Sam has ordered 512,000 pounds of soap and 53,000 yards of crash towing for the Indians. Evidently, the soap trust is to follow the flag and the civilizing missionary when they go to the Indian preserves.

JOB OF HAULING TAFT.

Following the announcement that two trains bearing William Howard Taft, republican nominee for president, had tried to shirk the arduous task by jumping the track and endangering the rest of the passengers, it became known that a hurry call has been sent to all railroad directors inviting them to participate in a conference for devising a scheme whereby the bulk of the republican ticket can be shunted around the country without damage to roadbed and rolling stock.

The first engine to balk at the job of towing the obese Ohioan was attached to the Pennsylvania flyer which was bearing the formidable secretary of war from his home in Cincinnati. Engineer and fireman, both staunch republicans, kept patting the struggling machine on its tender part and feeding it with luscious lumps of coal, but the coaxing was in vain. Just east of Denison, O., the engine sat down and refused to go any further.

The second locomotive to sidestep the wholesale transportation business was on the train bearing Taft to New Haven later in the day. Under protest the engine puffed along for a few miles and then was stricken with a hemorrhage and gave up. After a compromise had been affected by Secretary Taft agreeing not to cross his legs during the rest of the trip, four locomotives were hitched on and the journey was completed.

"Of course, we're all going to vote for him," said a prominent railroad official "but that isn't the question. We never handled such a big job before and you know our tunnels are not any too large."

"Is it true the Jersey City station tipped up when he alighted from the train" asked the reporter of the gate-man.

"There was a perceptible tilting. We had to open three gates. The only way the railroads can handle the Taft business is to compel him to travel in sections. Or they might arrange to have two platform cars running parallel on adjacent tracks, which would permit the secretary to straddle the question and thus distribute the weight."

"Something must be done," said an engine wiper in the Mott Haven round house. Why didn't they nominate Fairbanks? You know the engines have no trouble at all with refrigerator cars."

SHOULD PAY THEIR EXPENSES.

The democratic state convention, having denuded the office of delegate to the national convention of its authority and power, and having reduced its functions to that of a messenger boy, ordinary fairness and good taste would suggest that the North Carolina democracy offer to pay the railroad and hotel expenses of the delegates. From sentiments of false pride, some of the delegates elected would decline to accept a tender of money from the state executive committee to cover their expenses, but, be this as it may, the executive committee should meet and instruct the treasurer to make the tender.

It would not be out of place for the state democracy to pay the expenses of the delegates, even were they not instructed, but the reasons are overwhelming that instructed delegates carrying tokens of homage to Mr. Bryan, of Nebraska, should not be compelled to travel at their own expense. We move an appropriation from the exchequer of the state democratic executive committee of $250 for each of the delegates to Denver, the check to be endorsed over to an alternate in the event that a delegate cannot attend.

PRESS OF THE SOUTH

James Wilson, 88 years of age, who died in Delaware, Ohio, last Saturday was the last of the famous group of nine whose republican votes preserved western Virginia to the union and brought about the creation of a new state. He was also one of the few remaining members of the Chicago convention which nominated Abraham Lincoln in that year.—New Bern Sun.

Taft Sat By Coachman.

Taft has set on the box seat of the Roosevelt wagon ever since he became secretary of war and unquestionably to the president does he owe his nomination. The "big republicans" did not want him. How thoroughly Mr. Roosevelt dominates his party, despite the enmity of these self-anointed "big republicans"—the Cannon, Forakers, etc., was shown in the practical unanimity of the Chicago convention for Taft when the first roll call was taken.—Winston Journal.

But Roosevelt's Satisfied.

It is apparent thus early that the action of the Chicago convention is not pleasing to the republican party at large by any means. The platform is being picked to pieces and the nomination of Sherman for vice-president is not satisfactory by any means. His selection let the cat out of the bag. The advantage the republicans have, however, is that they discover their weakness very soon and at once set about to remedy it. Greensboro Record.

Hill Will Get Along.

The new American ambassador to Berlin, Dr. D. J. Hill, has not only arrived at Berlin without occasioning any undue flutter in the exclusive social circles of the German capital, but he has been received in audience by Emperor William, who treated him most cordially. These events put an end to all the loose talk about the probability of the stay of Dr. Hill in Berlin being made unpleasant because he lacks the private means to live in the style affected by his predecessor in office, the Hon. Charles Lamagne Tower.—New Orleans Picayune.

Made Friends of Bloodhounds.

All newspapers and individuals under the bloodhound delusion will hereby take notice that an escaping convict from a Mecklenburg county camp the other day made friends with two of these amiable quadrupeds and, cordial regard springing up on both sides, continued his flight in their company. At last accounts the trio were still at large. Those newspapers and individuals interested in the question of muzzling dogs might also take notice. Occasions like that just mentioned appear to be the only ones upon which successful muzzling of an aggressively inclined dog ever takes place in real life.—Charlotte Observer.

The Great Straddler.

Mr. Roosevelt's orders to the Chicago convention were to nominate Taft, who, as judge, originated the use of injunctions in labor troubles, and to endorse his recommendation for limiting the power to issue injunctions on the ground that judges have abused it. The convention was to approve the president's demand for an anti-injunction law and the refusal of congress to enact it. Political straddling has never gone farther than that.—Philadelphia Record.
