COTTON MILL FLOODED.

Water Two Feet Deep in the Neuse River Mills.

A message by phone from Neuse River Cotton Mills, at Falls of Neuse, stated that the Neuse had risen to such a height that the water was two feet deep in the mill last night. It is subsiding today and the water in the mill has gone down to fifteen inches.

No great damage is reported.

LOCAL BRIEFS

—Mr. C. F. Manson, a prominent hardware merchant of Wilkesboro, was here yesterday afternoon.

—A fine twelve-pound boy has arrived to gladden the home of Assistant Sanitary Inspector and Mrs. W. E. Austin.

—Friends will be glad to learn that Mr. Joe Moore, after being sick with fever for the past few weeks, is rapidly improving.

—Mr. A. W. Haywood, Jr., formerly of this state, but now practicing law in New York City, is on a visit to Mrs. Burke Haywood.

—Three young gentlemen, overflowing with curiosity as to the high-water reports at Neuse, drove out to Millburn yesterday and were overjoyed at the grand scene, when the horse became frightened and dashed across the bridge. Rev. Simmons, of Millbrook, was driving across the bridge, and the runaway rig ran into his buggy, breaking it up very badly and throwing Rev. Simmons out.

The young men were thrown out before the horse reached the bridge, each of them being slightly bruised.

—Mr. H. W. Horton, treasurer of the Citizens' Loan & Trust Company, of North Wilkesboro, was in the city yesterday on business connected with the North Wilkesboro Fair Association.

—Mr. E. L. Stallings of this city has accepted a position with the Goodwin-Smith Furniture Company.

—Justice Separk again postponed the case against Oja Thackston for trespass, until next Monday at 11 o'clock. Absence of witnesses has caused this case to be postponed twice.

—Mr. Will Crocker, well remembered in Raleigh, passed through the city today on his way to Texas. Mr. Crocker goes to Texas every fall to buy cotton. He has been spending his vacation at Wilson.

—In a box of fish received by J. B. Green Company today was found a "sho-nuff" flying fish. It is probably the first flying fish ever seen in Raleigh. This interesting specie of the finny tribe may be seen at the store of the above firm, on East Hargett street.

—Rev. S. M. Hanff was in the city yesterday on his way to Selma. Rev. Hanff, who is an old Raleigh boy, is now rector of the parishes at Selma, Duke and Smithfield. The handsome new church at Selma is rapidly nearing completion, says Rev. Hanff.

—Dr. Lewis Pegram, son of Mr. Brown Pegram, has gone to Duke, where he will practice his profession. Mr. Pegram recently graduated from the Maryland College of Dentistry. He will work in the small towns in that section of Harnett and Johnson counties.

—Mr. A. W. Haywood, Jr., formerly of this state, but now practicing law in New York City, is in the city, the guest of Mrs. Burke Haywood.
