Special emphasis was laid upon careful and tasteful honey far marketing.

Mr. Womble was pilled with questions, showing very great interest in the subject.

Statistics show that North Carolina produces twice as much honey as California, yet owing to poor preparation of product for market the results fall far below other states.

Dr. Butler, director of farmers' institutes, was next introduced and talked upon the works of the woman's institute. Dr. Butler discussed the work fully and with an earnestness that appealed to all who heard him.

Whereas, the A. & M. College of North Carolina has made possible through the philanthropy of Stanhope Pullen; and,

Whereas, the women of North Carolina have had no opportunity of showing their appreciation of this generous gift; be it

Resolved, That the woman's branch of the Farmers' Institute begin the movement to erect a memorial gate at the entrance of the college grounds, to be constructed from our native granite and properly inscribed to Stanhope Pullen as a gift to the college from the women of the state.

At 2 o'clock yesterday afternoon Mr. G. L. Vinson discussed in an interesting way, plumbing in country homes. His speech brought on a general discussion of the subject.

Different ways of supplying water was taken up, as by a gasoline engine, hot air engine, or hydraulic ram. The latter is the most economical and very efficient, if one has a spring with some fall from it.

A committee of five was appointed to draft a constitution and promote interest in the organization, composed of A. L. French, C. C. Moore, Dr. Tait Butler, R. L. Shuford and B. H. Rawl. An annual fee of one dollar was decided upon.

This organization will work for the interests of all live stock breeders and dairymen. It was determined to send a committee before the State Board of Agriculture to secure an appropriation for the organization and another committee was created on marketing the dairy products.

It was said last night that the sanatorium is located in West Sixty-first street and is a favorite resort for women whose nerves have become shattered.

Mrs. Thaw was advised by her physician some time ago, it is said, to make a change of scene, and on her refusal to leave New York told her she must go to a sanatorium.

The greatest trouble of all, the awful suspense of wives and mothers and all members of separated families is over. For days many women sat huddled together in food-surrounding homes, not knowing whether husbands uptown were alive or dead.

No homes were swept away unless in the lowest portions of the city next to the river.

A RARE OLD BOOK.

Published in Salisbury in 1812—Presented to the State Library.

Hon. J. T. Brittain, of Asheboro, has presented to the State Library a rare old book, "Poor Peter's Call to His Children, and to All Others Who Can Hear and Believe," by Peter Clemmons, Sr.

The book contains 156 pages, and was published at Salisbury in 1812. The author was a Methodist minister, farmer, and perhaps a missionary, as he left his farm and ministerial work in Pennsylvania after freeing his slaves, to come to North Carolina, where he resumed these occupations and appended to them the hot denunciation of slavery.

It is in many ways an interesting old book, consisting principally of sermons, advice to his sons and daughters, and the great brotherhood of man. The closing chapter tells why he left the "Methodist Society."

KERMIT STOPS RUNAWAY.

Perilous Feat Performed by President's Second Son.

(By Leased Wire to The Times) Oyster Bay, L. I., Aug. 28.—Kermit Roosevelt, second son of the president, stopped a runaway pair of horses yesterday afternoon after a wild chase on horseback and probably saved the lives of Mrs. Frank Hilton, of New York, and her two small sons.

The feat was a most perilous one, and as the young man, who is in his twentieth year, raced along on his horse beside the galloping runaways, the dozens of persons who were watching, held their breaths.

Mr. Hilton, who had been driving the team, was thrown out when the horses took fright at an automobile and dashed away with reins dragging in the road. After Kermit had brought the horses to a standstill, he covered the boy with congratulations and blessings.
