

INAUGURATION OF MR. NEWLAND

Ceremony Occurred in the Senate Chamber at Four O'clock This Afternoon

MR. WINSTON'S SPEECH

Lieutenant Governor Newland Was Inaugurated This Afternoon in the Senate Chamber—Lieutenant Governor Winston, the Retiring President of the Senate, Makes Eloquent Address—Reviews Progressive Legislation For the Last Ten Years, the Time He Has Been Intimately Associated With Lawmaking in This State.

At 4 o'clock the senate met in its chamber for the purpose of inaugurating Hon. W. C. Newland, of Caldwell county, lieutenant governor of the state of North Carolina.

Hon. F. D. Winston, retiring lieutenant governor, delivered the following eloquent address:

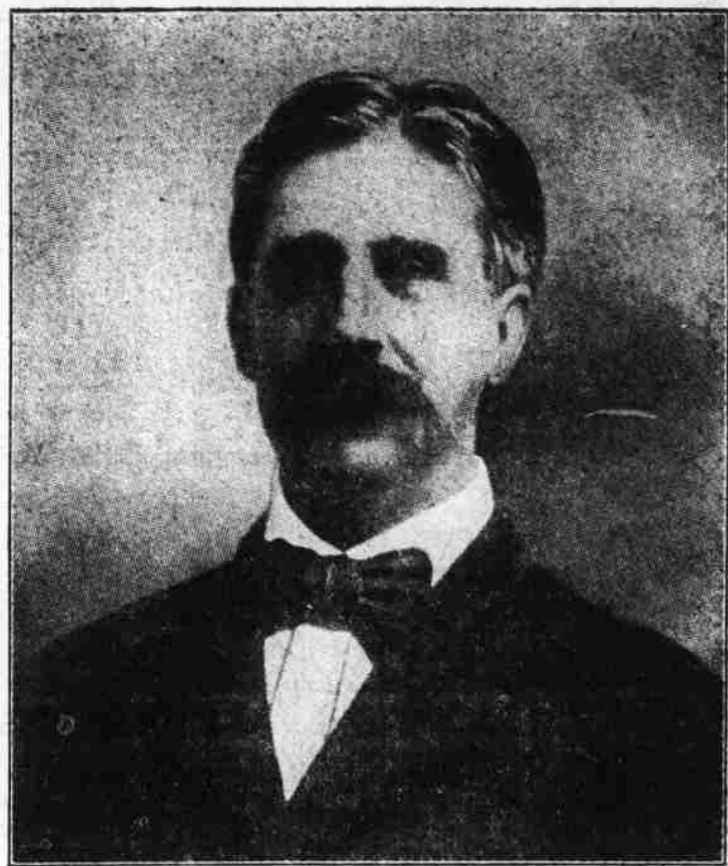

Senators: The hour has come when I retire from office. For ten years I have been intimately associated with the legislation of this state. A decade ago I entered the other house. The democratic party then came into power on a wave of revolution. Its acts have been constructive. It has freed the electorate of the ignorant, the debauched, the vicious, and made intelligence and character the qualifications of a voter. In assuming that this comes by inheritance, as well as by schools, we have followed that older commonwealth, whose wise sons half a century before our time sought the source of a voter's fitness.

We have built a new school house every day for the last five years. The tick of the clock has not been more regular than the hammer knock of the school house carpenter. Twice a week for five years some new community has started up and said, "Let us tax ourselves for the education of our children." One-fifth of our educational fund is now raised by special tax. Our little school districts have become the centers of local self-government and are illustrating the wisdom, power and beneficence of government by the people, of the people and for the people. In ten years we have quadrupled our school property and trebled our annual expenses for education. This year being the educational test for voting and compulsory education has already become a necessity. Soon the popular verdict will make it a law. Our army of school children will grow until clasping hands they may reach from seashore to mountains. These are the true guardians of the state. Let the state be true to them and they will ever be true to her—will give her peace, prosperity, virtue and happiness. The real hope of the world is in the constant improvement of each generation of children.

No man will be a drunkard hereafter in North Carolina except under public condemnation. No man hereafter in North Carolina will grow rich making drunkards. Within our border liquor now stands accused. We may not save all from its damning power, but he will save as many as we can. We have made the liquor traffic unfashionable, unpopular and illegal, or all forms of human misery and sorrow the worst has ever been the drunkard's home and the drunkard's sins visited upon innocent and helpless children unto the third and fourth generation.

In ten years we have changed from the poorest state in the union to one of the most prosperous. We have made more progress in wealth and education than any community of equal size on the globe. We have done it without the help of immigration or of outside capital; or of great resources newly discovered or of rapidly built up seaports or manufacturing cities. We are still a state of towns and farms. Our industries are native; native in workmen, in material and in management. Our growth has been steady; founded upon native character, energy and intelligence. The poverty of our land turned our labor to manufacturing, manufacturing in turn made local markets for farm products, and then the commonwealth grew in hearty strong development. An ideal state, complete in itself. Agricultural, commercial, manufacturing. There is nothing essential to human comfort that is not produced in North Carolina. The plate glass factories of High Point are shipping full length mirrors to the Sultan of Zulu and to the Queen of Madagascar. The spindles in our mills are making yarns enough to enfold the earth in a net work of cotton. The shuttles of our looms, in one continuous line, could outstrip the fastest express train and weave an endless roll of cloth from New York to San Francisco. Already Charlotte is the center of the southern cotton industry; some day to be the cotton capital of the world. The call of the cotton mill whistle, echoing from mill to mill in the stillness of the morning, and the black smoke from mill chimneys in endless procession from Elizabeth City to Brevard, tell the story of industrial life. Our network of industries will soon be complete; every mill and factory within sight of a farm; every farm within reach of railroads and local markets. In one generation we have increased our property values 500 per cent. Our poverty long and patiently endured proved to be our riches. God forbid that our riches should ever prove our poverty.

Honorable W. C. Newland.

Lieutenant-Governor of North Carolina.

Senators, look at North Carolina today. A land of mountains, plains and seacoast, with climate a golden mean between the cold of the north and the heat of the south, with every plant and soil that belongs to the temperate zone with sunlight in the sky every day in the year, and sunshine in the heart every hour in the day; with cities and towns, farms and factories, mills and mines, forests and fisheries, linked together in a network of mutual power and dependence; with population homogeneous and happy; the purest Anglo-Saxon commonwealth on the globe. Over ninety-nine per cent native born and to the manner born. A commonwealth marked by the strong elemental virtues that underlie civilization; by courage and virtue, simplicity and honesty, justice and mercy, law and liberty, kindness and hospitality ever overflowing with human power. A nursery of men for other states. In her old age, rising from poverty to riches, made young again by the energy of the sons and the virtue of her daughters, the growth in wealth and education the marvel of the world. With another general of education, of temperance, of industrial development, they will stand at the very head of the mighty column of American commonwealths. She is resting upon the wise legislation of the past ten years. It is a privilege to participate somewhat in that legislation. I retire from active participation in these halls, carrying hence the abiding faith that has come from the years of experience that a North Carolina legislature can be depended on to do what is best for North Carolina.

I surrender my office to the chosen representative here of the whole people. His high character, his pure personality, his extensive acquaintance with our state and his experience in courts and in these halls, are guarantee that he will preside here with justice and fairness, looking to the glory of our great state.

I introduce Lieutenant Governor Will C. Newland in the words of Dickens' purest creation: "God bless you one and all." God bless our state.

A Joint Session.

The house reassembled at 11 a. m., and the speaker asked that seats be provided for the senate which entered in a body on announcement of the sergeant-at-arms, each wearing a carnation pinned on his coat. Lieutenant Governor Winston called the joint session to order and senate clerk called the senatorial roll, finding thirty-seven members of senate present. Reading Clerk Phillips then called the roll of the house, finding ninety-eight members of the house present and answering to their names, on which the presiding officer declared a quorum present and said the object of the joint session was to canvass the vote for governor and state officers.

Messrs. Jones and Britt, of the senate, and Bowie and Grant, of the house, were appointed tellers, who proceeded to open the returns from the different counties, beginning with the county of Cumberland. When Edgecombe had been read, Mr. Harshaw arose to a parliamentary inquiry to ask if there was not some way to abridge the tedious reading and accept the tabulated returns. The chair ruled such a canvass would be unlawful and the reading proceeded on down the line, something like half the numbers of the joint session vacating their seats, one and two at a time, and going to the open air, while the clerk read on like greased lightning, till all had applauded been read, when the speaker instructed the tellers to tabulate the returns and present the min writing, which being done, it was announced that the total vote for governor was: Kitchin, 145,192; Cox, 107,750.

Majority 37,342. The rest of the ticket received about the same number. It developed that Lieutenant Governor received just forty-five more votes than did the present governor.

Speaker Graham then as speaker of the house declared the candidates of the democratic party, as certified, duly elected governor, lieutenant governor, auditor, treasurer, and on down the line, as officers of the state for a term of four years from January 1, 1909.

Lieutenant Governor Winston then announced that he and the speaker were about to certify the returns as announced, and there being no objection their signatures were affixed, which formally made W. W. Kitchin governor of North Carolina, and the others for their respective places. The senate then retired to its side of the capitol, having finished the work for which it came to the house chamber. The chair appointed Mr. Morton to preside over the assembly during the inaugural ceremony, saying the house would occupy seats in front of the stand on the east side of the capitol. The house then took recess for ten minutes, waiting for time of the inauguration.

MILLIONAIRES SCARCE RECOMMENDS THIS

Only Ten of Them Left in New York

The Tentative Personal Assessments on the Tax Books For 1909 Show Such to be the Case—One of These a New One.

(By Leased Wire to The Times) New York, Jan. 12—Only ten millionaires are left in New York city, according to the tentative personal assessments on the tax books for 1909, and one of these is a new name.

While the number of men in the millionaire class is decreasing each year, the number of women in this class is increasing steadily and this year it contains six names, the largest on record in several years. The ten millionaires in the city are: Andrew Carnegie, $5,000,000; William K. Vanderbilt, $1,000,000; Joan D. Rockefeller, $2,500,000; Clifford V. Brokaw, $1,500,000; Mrs. Russell Sage, $5,000,000; Lilla Gilbert, $1,500,000; Florence G. Satterwhite, $1,500,000; Alice G. Vanderbilt, $1,000,000; Countess Szechenyi, $1,000,000; Ida A. Flagler, $2,000,000. Total, $22,000,000.

Practically all the names of wealth in the financial, professional and business circles of the city have been eliminated for one cause and another.

August Belmont, head of the Interborough and of the traction trust, disappears from the list this year. He was assessed a year ago for $100,000. Thomas F. Ryan, head of the Metropolitan end, is down at $100,000, William W. Astor is down for but $5,000 of taxable personal property here. J. P. Morgan has, according to the tax books, $18,000 worth of personal property.

TRADE WITH THE NEW REPUBLIC

(By Leased Wire to The Times.)

Washington, Jan. 12—Trade of the United States with the republic of Panama in the last five years amounted to about $68,000,000. Of this total $6,000,000, in round terms, represented the value of the imports from Panama and $62,000,000 was the value of merchandise exported to Panama.

While a considerable part of this $68,000,000 worth of merchandise sent to Panama in the past five years has been for use in the construction of the canal, a larger part than would perhaps be supposed has been for other purposes, especially foodstuffs and clothing. A large proportion of this was for the use of persons employed upon the canal or work pertaining thereto, though a portion was for the residents of Panama aside from those engaged exclusively in the canal work. Cotton manufactures for example, amounted in value to about $2,500,000 in the exports to Panama during 1904 to 1908; meat and dairy products to nearly $5,000,000; flour to about $1,500,000 in value; boots and shoes to about $500,000, and vegetables to over $1,000,000. Iron and steel manufactures amounted to nearly $18,000,000, though presumably a large proportion of this was for canal construction, cars amounted to $4,500,000, chemicals nearly $1,600,000, and explosives nearly $1,000,000.

Just what proportion of this $68,000,000 worth of merchandise sent to Panama within the past five years was for use in canal construction or entered the canal zone for local consumption other than for the purposes of the canal cannot be definitely determined.

ANOTHER BRIBERY CASE IS CALLED

(By Leased Wire to The Times)

San Francisco, Jan. 12—The case of Patrick Calhoun, president of the United Railroads of San Francisco, and formerly of Atlanta, Ga., was called in Judge Lawler's court today. Mr. Calhoun is charged with bribing Supervisor Nicholas to vote for a franchise permitting his company to build and operate an overhead trolley system. Abraham Huff has been convicted of bribing Supervisor Furey and the evidence in the Calhoun case is identical.

Does not Color the Hair

This is a simple home recipe now being made known in all the larger cities through newspapers. It is intended to check the many cases of Rheumatism, kidney and bladder trouble which have made so many cripples and invalids and weakenings of some of our brightest and strongest people.

The druggists here have been notified to supply themselves with the ingredients, and the sufferer will have no trouble to obtain them. The prescription is as follows: Fluid Extract Dandelion, one-half ounce; Compound Kargon, one ounce, and Compound Syrup of Sarsaparilla, three ounces. Mix by shaking well in a bottle. The dose is one teaspoonful after each meal and at bedtime.

Recent experiments prove this simple mixture effective in Rheumatism, because of its positive action upon the eliminative tissues of the kidneys. It compels these most vital organs to filter from the blood and system the waste impurities and uric acid which are the cause of rheumatism. It cleanses the kidneys, strengthens them and removes quickly such symptoms as backache, blood disorders, bladder weakness, frequent urination, painful scalding and discolored urine. It acts as a powerful stimulant to the entire kidney and bladder structure.

Those who suffer and are accustomed to purchase a bottle of medicine should not let a little inconvenience interfere with making this up.

New Governor Takes Oath of Office

a great sea of upturned faces that covered all the space out to Wilmington street, filling all that street, and as far to each side as people could stand to get a view of the ceremonies.

Seated on the front row with Governor Kitchin at the head were all the newly-elected state officers, and occupying chairs by the table in the front were Chief Justice Walter Clark and Associate Justice Hoke, ready to administer the oath to each. The first called was M. L. Shipman, commissioner of labor and printing, the oath being administered by Justice Hoke, which oath he and each of the others as they came forward signed in a book prepared for the purpose in the following order:

B. F. Aycock, corporation commissioner; J. R. Young, insurance commissioner; T. W. Bickett, attorney-general; J. Y. Joyner, superintendent of public instruction; B. R. Lacy, state treasurer; B. F. Dixon, auditor; J. Bryan Grimes, secretary of state; W. C. Newland, lieutenant-governor.

Governor Glenn then introduced Hon. William Walton Kitchin of Roxboro, to whom Chief Justice Walter Clark administered the oath of office, and he began his inaugural address at 1:30 p. m.

In introducing Governor Kitchin to the vast assemblage gathered around the stand, Governor Glenn said: "Mr. Kitchin, Gentlemen of the General Assembly, my Countrymen: This is the last time that I will ever stand before the people of North Carolina in an official capacity. Four years ago I took upon myself the burden of guiding the business of North Carolina. Today I lay that burden down. I may not have done all things that I should have done, and I may have done that which I should not have done, but I have tried to do my duty as God gave me to see the right.

"In the immortal words of our great statesman, Zebulon B. Vance, I can raise my hands and say 'they are clean'.

"I ask the good people of this state, who have so ably supported me during my administration, to give to my successor the same loyalty as you so generously gave to me. I yield to him in everything except loyalty to the Old North State.

"I have the honor of introducing you to the governor of North Carolina, His Excellency, W. W. Kitchin." A great demonstration followed Governor Glenn's remarks, and there were many tears shed at the thought of losing Robert Broadnax Glenn, whom the people of North Carolina have learned to love as they have loved few governors since Vance. Mr. Kitchin finished his address at 2:30 o'clock. He and the state officers and ex-Governor Glenn then moved down to the review stand and reviewed the state troops and A. & M. cadets.

SHOE MAKERS NOW IN SESSION

(By Leased Wire to The Times) New York, Jan. 12—Shoe manufacturers representing an annual output of footwear valued at $400,000,000, are in session at the Hotel Astor.

The demand of the boot and shoe trade for free hides having been one of the principal reasons for the formation of the association the tariff situation and corresponding plans were expected to play the most important part in the deliberations of the delegates.

John M. Hanan, of Brooklyn, president of the association, argued in favor of an effort to enlist the cooperation of the tanning interests of the United States in a movement to obtain national legislation against the adulteration of leather.

The principal business was the adoption of a resolution by the executive committee opposing any reduction in the tariff on leather and in favor of the rate of duty remaining as it now is. It will be presented in a general meeting and is expected to pass.
