

SOCIETY.

HE FELL.

I fell—I may as well confess, It was the same old tale, 'Twas in gay company, of course, The memory makes me quail, Though kindly friends, who wished well, Their solemn warnings said, I laughed, and on my fatal way Kept recklessly ahead.

I fell—the very thought of it Still licks my soul with shame, I hear again the mocking jeers That set my face aflame, I fell—and as I did my nose Described the figure eight Upon the frozen pond where I Was learning how to skate. —Minna Irving, in Gunter's Magazine.

Why Ivory Soap, or any other, should be a valuable insecticide is hard to explain, but it is a fact. It has the advantage of not making the bushes unsightly as Bordeaux mixture does. A prominent nurseryman and florist writes that he had used it for years for an astonishing variety of insect pests.—Garden Magazine for June '07.

David Bispham.

"The art of singing needs all the culture that can be brought to bear on it," says Mr. Bispham, whose coming on February 28th is awaited with interest by musicians and music lovers of Raleigh. All who love a good song, well sung, will find a treat in Mr. Bispham's program, which includes the classic songs of Handel, Haydn, and Purcell, an old Jacobine song, "Down Among the Dead Men," attractive English and Scotch ballads, dreamy waltz songs, soul-stirring love songs, and the immortal "Danny Deever." This last he repeats, by request, as all who heard him sing it when he was in Raleigh before, wish to hear it again. Mr. Bispham has recently added to his repertory, "The Raven" set to music by Arthur Bergth, and the Musical Courier says that it is easily one of the most interesting and effective numbers on his program.

Mr. Bispham is in excellent voice and the recital promises to be a brilliant social and musical event.

"A Burglar Cupid", together with the talking pictures is the attraction at the Gem tonight. In the subject "A Burglar Cupid" Artie and Gladys are the leading characters. Artie is very much in love with Gladys, but makes very little headway in his wooing, owing to his nervousness and a desire to be gallant. He carries Gladys to a ball and arouses her wrath when he attempts an untimely embrace and steps on her skirt. After the ball Artie and Gladys have supper at a fashionable cafe, where poor Artie adds to his blunders by upsetting the soup on Gladys' ball dress. Gladys and Artie finally make up and decide to get married. Don't miss this. It is very good. Also the talking picture are good.
