Have you registered?
See that you vote the right ticket.
Ye that have tears prepare to shed them.
When you go to the polls tomorrow keep your eye on the other fellow.
It is a cause for rejoicing that the public schools re-opened today to complete the interrupted term.
Tomorrow is house-cleaning day. Let every man do his duty and help to make the job a thorough and complete one.
The biggest mass meeting of them all will be held tonight. Go and get fresh inspiration and renewed courage for the battle tomorrow.
We haven't yet seen any account of the invitation of A. Sister Salley, Jr., of South Carolina, to the Mecklenburg celebration. Now is the time to muzzle him and the "signers" should go after him and bring him in.

Raleigh is meeting the propositions that are brought before her these days in splendid spirit and with excellent result. Several problems have been solved satisfactorily in the last month or two, and tomorrow, by defeating the pie-counter gang she will stick another feather in her cap.
The man who destroyed the books must have done it in a spirit of bravado. He must have thought at the time that he was doing something smart and that he would brazen it out. Otherwise some precaution, such as breaking locks would have been used.
When The Evening Times started the fight last summer on the "Dog Question" we hardly thought it would assume so serious proportions as it has. A fight once begun in the right direction sometimes brings wonderful results, even if it does start over a dog.

The eyes of the state are on Raleigh and tomorrow we will place ourselves in the front ranks or we will take a step backward—that it will take us fifty years to overcome. Raleigh is ready and hungry for a revival in business and industrial development and let us do the right thing by starting out in the right direction and giving the city a government in which the people have confidence.

Today the children went back to school and Raleigh has redeemed herself from this disgrace which was about to overtake us. Let every man go to the polls tomorrow and do his full duty by himself, his home, and his city, and we will have a better city government than we have had in the past and Raleigh will come to the front again as she was in the past. Let the citizens of Raleigh make up their minds to stand for better schools, better streets, better government, more improvements and a greater city and vote and work for that end. The opportunity is before us and we must go forward.

Over one hundred houses are being built in Raleigh today. If Raleigh takes a progressive step and the world sees that we are to have a progressive business administration and that the people's taxes will be considered, we will have five hundred under construction before many weeks. With an auditorium in sight costing about $125,000 and several other big buildings planned Raleigh will take on a business look and the people of the state will not be sending petitions to move the capitol. Vote for men who will give the city a good business administration and the people who are holding back their money will soon begin to help develop this city.

MEN WANTED.

Raleigh is in a position today where she will either go forward or take a long step backward, and the decision will be made by the voters of this city tomorrow. Raleigh has many needs, but the greatest of these is MEN at the head of the city government. There never was a time in the history of the city when there was such a demand for competent and progressive men at the head of the city. Some weeks ago we called attention to the fact that this city did not need politics, but that it needed MEN; and from the way things look today the voters of the city have come to the same conclusion, and we predict that on tomorrow we will have a house-cleaning day in Raleigh. In other words we are going to have a spring cleaning in the old political house, and this city is going to be placed in the hands of progressive business men who will give this city a good progressive business administration—something it has not had in years. For the past five years Raleigh has had a black eye in the estimation of the whole state, simply because we have had a lot of men in control of the city who have not run things for the best interests of the city, but have run it for the jobs and the spoils.
Raleigh is on the threshold of the biggest industrial development in its history, and there is the greatest opportunity ahead for a grand and progressive city, if we only go forward and let all the world know that we expect to be progressive and protect the business interests of the city and the citizens. If we don't stand up for our own interests and give our own city a good name can we expect our neighbors to speak well of us. Let us be men and do our duty by our city and ourselves, and place MEN in control of the city who will give Raleigh a good name and a good reputation. Let us go to the polls tomorrow and vote for the MEN who will help to regain the prestige of our city. Let us select the MEN who will be above cheap politics and run this city for the welfare of its citizens, and with the determination to make it the greatest and best city in the state. Raleigh has a grand future before it if we only place MEN in charge of the city, and it is the duty of the voters on tomorrow to go to the polls and select these MEN.

The Women of Salisbury Want a Home Established in North Carolina for Old Women.

They say that North Carolina is the only southern state that has not such a home and they want one established. They think the old women of the state, who have become destitute and helpless should not be left to eke out any sort of a miserable existence they can, but that the state should care for them. Many of these helpless old women went through the trying times of the Civil War, giving father, husband, or son to the common cause. They labored and worked and strove to make a living for themselves and the children of the household while the men were at the front, and to aid the cause in anyway possible. These women in particular the state should provide for just as it has its Soldiers' Home for the men, but all the old women who need such provision should be taken care of and not be allowed to be buffeted about the state with nowhere to go, no home and no rest. True, there is the county home, but that institution doesn't always meet the requirements of the case, and something better should be provided.
It pays to lend money. We don't mean in the commercial sense, with a goodly interest attached, nor are we commending the pawnbroker's business as the proper and desirable way of getting rich. But what we do mean is that some one asks to borrow five dollars, or even one dollar you should let him have it, and we will prove it to you. Read the following Philadelphia dispatch to the New York Sun:

"While Dr. Edward W. Hartung, of this city, was at Sag Harbor, L. I., nine months ago he loaned $5 to a well-dressed stranger who said he was ill and had lost his wallet. The stranger said he needed the money to reach his home in New York city.
"Last Saturday a telegram came to the physician from Charles V. Harper, a lawyer with offices in the Flatiron building, New York, who informed him that Harold A. Montague, of Flatbush, the man he had befriended, has just died, leaving him over $10,000 in cash, besides much valuable property.
"To his will Mr. Montague said he made Dr. Hartung his heir as a reward for his act of kindness. Fifteen other men had refused him the loan before he had approached Hartung.
It pays to lend, as those fifteen tight-wads who refused are now learning. However, we wouldn't advise that fifteen to go out into the highways looking for strangers to whom to loan their money now. It might never happen again. The man who did it, it is well to remember, is dead.
It looks now as if those who stand in the way of reform in the administration of the city government and in the way of any progress, whether along civic, business, or industrial lines, would be swept almost literally off the face of the earth tomorrow. But the voter should not let this feeling that the fight is already won keep him from the polls. Keep up the fight until the last minute and bury this dead-head, salary-drawing crowd so deeply that they will never chirp again.
"The Raleigh city charter met defeat at the hands of the legislature, the voice of the office-holding gang having more weight with the legislative committee than the voice of the people of this city. But the defeating of the charter served one good purpose. It served to stir up the people and awaken them as never before to the necessity of getting rid of the crowd in charge of the city's affairs before there is possibility of going forward in any way.

PRESS COMMENT

Got Dates Mixed.

The Raleigh Evening Times asks: "Will the Mecklenburgers invite Captain Ashe to the celebration?" Of course they will and will feel honored by his presence. Captain Ashe is a firm believer in the Declaration. He was simply unfortunate in getting the dates mixed.—Charlotte Chronicle.

Will Sweep Clean

Opponents of the present city administration in Raleigh keep talking like they were going to make a clean sweep, but whether they are willing to keep up their courage we do not know. We hope their "clean sweep" will not turn out like that predicted for the democratic party in the last presidential election.—Greensboro Record.

The Raleigh Campaign.

Raleigh is now in the throes of a hot municipal campaign, but the campaign in Raleigh has only developed into its present snappy and somewhat bitter form within the past week and, as the primary is to be held next Tuesday, why, perhaps, Raleigh will get less of the strenuity of a municipal fight than Wilmington did. Still Raleigh seems to be making a mighty effort to have a strenuous time and there appears to be great rivalry between the two factions—the outs and the ins. Not satisfied with what the old administration has done, and if reports are not in error, the old Raleigh administration has done many things it should not have done and left undone those things which it should have done. A large number of people of the capital city are trying to oust the present officers, or rather trying to keep them from serving longer. The present administration has been charged with extravagance and the "outs" promise if elected, to reduce taxes and give a less expensive administration. It has also been charged that the officials are not enforcing the prohibition law in Raleigh, and this is probably one of the most serious of all allegations, because extravagance may be the outcome of mistakes or carelessness, but non-enforcement of the law is criminal on the part of the city officials.—Wilmington Dispatch.

A Good Cause.

Some of the papers are intimating that the News and Observer and Evening Times are bolters because they are not supporting the democratic organization in Raleigh, and argue that a precedent is being set that might work to disadvantage in the future. We do not see how the Raleigh papers can be criticized for doing what nearly every paper has done at one time or another. It seems to be popular to bolt, a late example being those twenty-three democrats who bolted the democratic organization in Washington. Besides, our Raleigh contemporaries evidently have good cause.—Winston-Salem Journal.
