REVENUE THAT AMENDED BILL WILL PRODUCE

Senator Aldrich at Work on Statement to Be Made Public Thursday

MORE THAN PAYNE BILL

Experts in the Treasury Also Busy Engaged in Figuring on the New Rates of Duty—Believed That Where Duties Have Been Reduced the Revenue Will Be Larger Because of Increased Consumption—Senate Changes Will Give Several Millions More Revenue Than the Schedules of the Payne Bill.

(By Leased Wire to The Times) Washington, April 13—Senator Aldrich is at work on a statement to be made public Thursday, giving somewhat in detail the estimated revenue that the Payne tariff bill, as amended by the senate finance committee will produce. Experts in the treasury have been busy engaged for several days figuring on the new rates of duty and allowing for increased importations under the reduced rates on many articles of daily consumption. The record shows that where duties have been reduced the revenues increased because of larger consumption. The opinion is expressed that the changes made in the Payne bill will give quite a few million dollars to the revenue from customs over what was estimated by Chairman Payne.

The increased duties on foreign wines and champagnes, it is estimated, will not decrease the importation of these articles. It did not do it when the rates were increased by the Dingley act. The figures show a steady increase in consumption of foreign liquors due to the growth of the country. It is hinted that the duty on foreign champagnes was increased to protect the American manufacturers of that beverage.

Bonfires blazed and college songs and yells were heard on the campus and the streets. A number of the faculty were called on at their residences for speeches. All are planning to give the debaters a royal reception on their return on the afternoon train.

The Kotten girl refuses to part with her baby for even a few hours, and the child will, therefore, be on her arm in the court room when she is called to the bar to plead to the charge of murder against her. ## TAKEN TO STATE PRISON

Cotton and Holderfield Begin Their Terms

Cotton Takes it Easy, But Wants to Avoid a Curious Crowd—Holderfield is "Very Much Cut Up About It"—A Blind Tiger in Jail, Boasted Cotton.

Earle P. Cotton and Tim Holderfield were carried to the penitentiary early this morning by Deputy Sheriff Stell. The prisoners seemed to have lost their air of indifference and self-confidence and shrank from public view. They requested that they be taken from the jail at an early hour and in compliance with their wishes Sheriff Stell drove up to the back of the jail a little after sunrise this morning and the two notorious prisoners were quietly handcuffed and led to the carriage. Very few people saw the transfer of the prisoners from the county jail to the state's prison.

Cotton bore himself cheerfully. He laughed and chatted with his guards and seemed to be entirely at ease. He did not seem to be worried about the outlook in the least. Holderfield, to use the expression of one of the men who saw him, "seemed to be very much cut up about it." He looks with dread on his ten-year sentence. Cotton has gotten a great deal of fun out of his jail life. It is rumored on the street that he ran a small blind-tiger in jail. Booze was smuggled to him in bread and in other ways, it is claimed. Cotton openly boasted that he had done this, but it was hardly possible. There was no way on earth for him to get whiskey, except as it was administered to him by the jailor on the advice of a physician. Jailor Parham is positive that no booze was smuggled to Cotton in bread, or in any other way, for he inspected everything carefully that was carried to him.

Cotton was refused cocaine during the last days of his stay in jail and the change from 70 grains of cocaine per day to total abstinence, made some stimulant absolutely necessary. It may have been that Cotton did sell a small amount of his daily allowance to a trusty in the jail in order to be able to say that he "ran a blind tiger in jail."

HORRIBLE CRIME WAS COMMITTED HERE LAST NIGHT

Home of Mr. A. Dughi Entered and House-Keeper Attacked in Bed

NEGROWOMAN ARRESTED

Mrs. Crowell, a White Woman, Age 53, Housekeeper For Mr. A. Dughi, Attacked in Her Bed—Hands Cut and a Terrible Gash in Her Throat. A Narrow Escape From Death. Dr. Rogers Called and Dressed Wounds—Rusty Razor Found. Hannah Harris, Colored, Arrested on Suspicion—She Had Been Cook Until Displaced by Mrs. Crowell.

Last night at the residence of A. Dughi, 408 Hillsboro street, occurred another of those horrible crimes that are fast making Raleigh notorious.

The victim of this outrage is the second white woman to suffer at the hands of a burglar and would-be murderer within a single week. She is Mrs. John C. Crowell, age 53, formerly a resident of McDowell county, and for some time housekeeper for Mr. Dughi.

Last night at about 11:00 o'clock Mrs. Crowell was awakened by a voice threatening immediate death if she opened her mouth. Mrs. Crowell was alone in the house. The family was away, spending the day and night at Mr. Dughi's country place, and Mr. Dughi was still at his store. The unfortunate woman thinks it was a woman's voice she heard. The light, which had been burning in her room, had been extinguished and she could not see her assailant. She tried to ward off with her hands the blow which she thought was coming in the dark and in the struggle her hand was cut in two places. In spite of her struggle her unknown assailant grasped her hands, held them down and cut her throat from the center to the left ear, a very ugly gash. Then the monster, thinking the work of death complete, fled.

Mrs. Crowell then got out of her bed and with great difficulty made her way to the telephone. She called up Mr. Dughi. He could hardly understand what the woman was saying, but managed to make out that there was trouble at his home. He secured a hack and drove home in great haste. In the meanwhile the woman, weak from loss of blood, had staggered to the front door, leaving a crimson trail from the telephone through the hall and out on the porch. Her screams attracted the attention of Mr. W. C. Addicks, who was passing, and in a few minutes the neighborhood was aroused. A hurry-call was sent for the police and a doctor, both arriving in a short while.

The cook at the home of Mr. John U. Smith, while Mrs. Crowell was standing on the porch screaming for help, saw a negro woman running toward Harrington street. She thought she recognized in the fleeing woman Hannah Harris, former housekeeper and cook for Mr. Dughi. She was arrested on suspicion, being found without difficulty at her home back of St. Paul's church (colored). Other inmates of the house declared that she had been in the house only about 20 minutes when arrested.

Dr. J. R. Rogers made a quick examination and found that the cut was a bad one, though not necessarily fatal. Had it been a quarter of an inch deeper it would undoubtedly have resulted in death. In the bed by the pillow, which was gashed deeply, was found an old rusty razor. This razor, it is said, is the property of Hannah Harris, and it can be shown that the razor has been in her possession. She was carried to the guard house, vehemently declaring that she was innocent and knew nothing of the crime. The evidence is strong against her and she will have a hard time proving her innocence.

The description of the fleeing woman given by Mr. Smith's cook, which fits her almost exactly, the fact that she had been at home less than 30 minutes when arrested and the finding of a razor which can be identified as her own at the scene of the crime, is all against her, and makes it look dark for Hannah Harris.

The terrible crime with which she is charged and for which she will be called upon to stand trial, is burglary, the breaking and entering of the dwelling of another in the night time, with intent to commit a felony therein. The penalty for the crime is death.

It is asserted also that Hannah Harris had a motive in attempting to kill Mrs. Crowell. Hannah had been cook in the home of Mr. Dughi for 20 years until displaced recently by Mrs. Crowell. It is said that Hannah hated Mrs. Crowell bitterly and from her hatred for the woman who had taken her place this horrible crime resulted.

Mrs. Crowell, at last reports, is resting very well and will have a quick recovery, provided no dangerous complications arise. Her physician, Dr. Rogers, is well pleased with her condition.

WANT BATTLESHIPS TO SAIL UP MISSISSIPPI

(By Leased Wire to The Times)

Washington, April 13—The people of the south are disappointed because no battleships are allowed to sail up the Mississippi river. They will appeal to Secretary of the Navy Meyer to see if he will not henceforth permit the ships to sail in those waters.

A number of congressmen called at Secretary Meyer's office today to place the facts before him. Mr. Meyer was not in. They will call again soon. The delegates consisted of Senators McEnery, Foster, Frazier, Taylor, Clark Davis, Money, McLaughlin, and Representatives Candler, Speight, Byrd, Bowers, Dickson, Collier Brownlow, Austin, Moon, Hull, Houston, Byrns, Padgett, Sims, Garret and Gordon.

It is asserted at the department that the waters of the Mississippi are too shallow to permit vessels of heavy draught ascending the river.

ROCHESTER SWEEP BY SEETHING FLAMES

(By Leased Wire to The Times)

Rochester, N. Y., April 13—A large fire started in an east Main street business building about a mile from the center of the city today. A high wind swept the flames up the street and at noon a large section of the thoroughfare was ablaze. St. Peter's church is one of the buildings burned.

The blaze originated in the house of the Hunting Company, drygoods merchants. Four persons leaped from windows and were painfully hurt. A 45-mile gale swept the flames with a menacing roar toward the very heart of the business section and shortly after five sparks communicated the fire to St. Peter's Presbyterian church and a block of four flats on Grove street. At noon a general alarm was sent in. The wind fanned the flames until the burning buildings were a seething furnace.

CUMMINS IS NOT ENTHUSIASTIC

(By Leased Wire to The Times) Washington, April 13—Senator Cummins, of Iowa, is not enthusiastic over the Payne tariff bill as amended by the senate finance committee. The Iowa senator said today that the people demand tariff revision downward, but an examination of the bill shows the revision has been upward. He regards the duty on lumber, glass, and iron as excessive and not what the people expected. He has prepared a number of amendments in keeping with the Iowa idea and will make an effort to secure a reduction of the duties in many of the schedules. He favors free lumber and intimated that the senate might put lumber on the free list.

BIG BROKERAGE FIRM ALLEGED TO BE BANKRUPT

Petition Filed in United States Court and Lindsay Russell Appointed Receiver

PAID MONEY ILLEGALLY

Both Partners Are of the Younger Men on Wall Street, But Ennis, the Head of the Firm, Has Been Credited As Being One of the Sharpest Figures in the Financial District—Figured in New York and Newport Society—Number of Branches in New York and Chicago—Firm Was the Largest on the Stock Exchange.

(By Leased Wire to The Times)

New York, April 13—A petition in involuntary bankruptcy, alleging liabilities of $1,400,000 was today filed against the big stock brokerage house of Ennis & Stoppani of 38 Broad street, members of the Consolidated Stock Exchange and the Chicago Board of Trade.

The petition was filed in the United States district court before Judge Holt and he immediately appointed Lindsay Russell as receiver. The petitioners declare that the assets of the firm amount to only $400,000.

The petitioners were three small creditors. Lindsay Russell, the receiver, is of the law firm of McLaughlin, Russell, Coe & Sprague and he qualified by filing a bond for $50,000.

The three petitioners are Charles Sincere, with a claim of $2,500; Ethel B. Newton, with a claim of $250 and Fred J. Ringley, with a claim of $2,305. All three were customers of the concern. They allege that the firm, knowing itself to be insolvent, illegally paid over money and property to preferred creditors.

It is charged that Bartlett, Patten & Company were on April 2 illegally paid $500 and that Logan, Bryan & Company were illegally paid $1,000 on March 25. It is also charged that property worth $5,000 has been illegally transferred by the firm.

Thomas A. Ennis, the head of the firm, is one of the younger men on Wall street but has been credited as being one of the sharpest figures in the financial district. He was generally believed to be very wealthy, even a millionaire.

Ennis has been one of the figures in society in New York and Newport, has owned his own yacht and as such is one of the prominent members of the New York Yacht Club. He is also a member of the Hanover and Crescent Athletic Clubs and the democratic club.

With Charles F. Stoppani, also one of the younger men on the street, Ennis formed a partnership in 1885. The firm was of modest standing for a number of years, but gradually grew until a number of branches were established, both in New York and Chicago. Stoppani is a member of the same clubs as his partner.

The brokerage firm was the largest on the Consolidated Stock Exchange. The failure is said to be due to speculation on the "short" side of the wheat market in Chicago. The firm continued doing business for an hour after the receiver was appointed, and when they finally assigned, there were 100 customers in their offices.
