Captain Hains Looked Pale and Haggard, His Straggling Beard Adding to His Dejected Appearance—He Was Seated in the Same Seat at the Same Table as Was Jenkins Hains During His Trial-Seemed Abstracted and Never Once Looked Around-His Mother Nor Brother, T. Jenkins, Not in Court.

(By Leased Wire to The Times) New York, April 19-Women were barred in the court room at Flushing today when Captain Peter C. Hains, Jr., U. S. A., was arraigned before Supreme Court Justice Garret J. Garrelson, charged with the murder of William E. Annis at the Bayside Yacht Club on August 15 last.

The men there, with few excep tions, consisted of 196 talesmen from whom it was hoped the jury for the trial might be chosen. But although they were excluded from the court room itself the women were not to be denied. They showed their interest in the case of the army officer by crowding the sidewalks.

Captain Hanes, in charge of Depu ty Sheriff Phillips and Warden Frank DeBragga, who also had been his brother's guardians, arrived in Flushing about 9:40 o'clock.

His father, General Peter C. Hains, Sr., and his brother, Major John P. Hains, were with the party.

Captain Hains looked pale and haggard, his straggling beard adding to his dejected appearance. He wore a long ulster of dark checked material and had a block derby hat on his head. He looked very thin. The prisoner was taken first to a room on the first floor

At 10 o'clock Captain Hains wa taken upstairs to court.

In the court room an under sheriff unlocked the handcuffs which had the prisoner to his left wrist and helped the captain off with his top

The captain was seated in the same seat, at the same table, as was Jenkins Hains during his trial.

For a long time he was left alone. He seemed abstracted and never once looked around. With a thin left hand he kept fingering the top of his head, leaning at the same time on his left elbow. It was 10:20 when Justice Garrelson entered court. A conference between the justice, the prosecutor and the defendant's counsel had delayed the justice's entrance.

With the formal opening of court Daniel O'Reilly, who takes Joseph A Shay's place among the Hains coun sel, seated himself at the prisoner's right. John F. McIntyre, the captain's senior courfsel, occupied his old place at the right end of the table, nearest to the prosecutor. Major Hains sat at his brother's left and next to him ant the faithful old Mrs. Peter C. Hains, Sr., the mother, was not in court. She is very weak at the Hotel Astor and will not come to Flushing until her presence is absolutely necessary.

It was announced today that business in connection with the case kept already been started in Petersburg are still fresh in the minds of the T. Jenkins Hains away today. Dan O'Rellly said he would probably be in Richmond will be the last to be in court tomorrow.

David Hirsch, assistant to John F McIntyre, made a motion for the dismissal of the indictment on the ground that the defendant had not been given an opportunity to go before the grand jury or to examine the grand jurors, and also on the ground that William H. Williams, a member of the grand jury, was biased. Motion overruled.

Twenty minutes after the convening of court the first talesman was called. - He was Charles Foster, a builder, of Jamaica. He was excused because opposed to the death penalty.

"The practical question to which shall ask your attention today is, will the bill as reported from the committee on finance produce sufficient revenue when taken in connec ion with the internal revenue taxes and other existing sources of revenue to meet the expenses of the government without the imposition of addilonal taxes? I answer unhesitatingy, after a thorough and careful investigation of the facts and the conditions likely to surround the problem, that it will,

(By Cable to The Times)

London, April 19-Dispatches today brought new stories of riot, plllage and bloodshed from Turkey. Three thousand have now fallen victims to the mad rage of the mussulmans in Asia-Minor. In Mersina, Adana, and other towns, the fire and sword have ruthlessly claimed victims. This is the fourth day of the

In the midst of the scenes of riotng stands Constantinople in a turmoil today over the invasion by the coung Turks. A dispatch from Salonica stated that the committee of union and progress has condemned Abdul Hamid to death. There were reports that the sultan would abdirate today. Turkey is on the verge of civil war which may overrun the boundaries and spread Into Europe.

The Constantinople correspondent of the Daily Telegraph wires that the Turkish troops in the capital would offer but little resistance to the invaders. Further, he declares, that in all likelihood the troops stationed to guard the city would fraternize with the members of the third corps and there would not be a shot fired in defense of the capital. The garrison is without officers and could hardly pretend to offer serious resistance, says the correspondent.

Official notice has been given that the invading troops would begin their march against Constantinople today. A military dictatorship would be esablished in the event of the overthrow of the sultan and the fanatical element would be swept from Stamboul.

The correspondent of the Times declares that many persons have been killed in vengeance for private wrong since the rioting first commenced. In part his dispatches today read:

"In the Turkish chamber 35 telegrams of sharp protest against the mutiny have been received from the provinces and read. These include messages from the commander of the Adrianople army corps and the Armenian and Kurdish committees. It is estimated that since the mutiny, from 15 to 25 army officers have fallen victims of private hostility.

The rapid return to power by the committee of union and progress is looked upon as certain, according to today's dispatches. The committee attempted to force a resignation of the cabinet and it was declared that this would be affected before nightfall today. Further advices from the Turkish capital declare that the entire Christian population of Alexandretta has gathered in the Christian residence quarter. Barricades are being erected and the refugees are preparing to defend themselves against the invaders. Serious disorders are reported at Smyrna.
