Mr. Horse Feeder

In placing your order for Feed next month don't forget that a dollar saved in the proper preparing of the Feed for your horse is worth just as much as the one you make by hard ticks. Buy your Feed where you please, but for the poor dumb animal's sake, as well as your own financial interest HAVE IT GROUND.

THE TIMES' DAILY FINANCIAL STORY

New York, May 1—Price fluctuations in the stock market today were extremely narrow owing to the small volume of business. Initial quotations were strong and showed fractional advances, but at the end of the first half hour the tone became heavy and nearly all gains were wiped out and replaced with small losses.

Pennsylvania directors declared the regular semi-annual dividend of 3 per cent. No change in the rate had been expected and its declaration had a good influence on the price of the stock, which advanced fractionally. Canadian Pacific was strong, with a rise of over a point.

Smelters, which was one of the features of yesterday's market because of strength and activity showed evidences of being under pressure of profit-taking. It declined nearly a point.

On the New York curb market trading was dull but prices were steady. The London stock exchange was closed because of the bank holiday there.

New York Cotton Letter. (By W. B. Hibbs & Co.) New York, May 1—After fluctuating first down about 20 points early in the week on the break in the drought in Texas and then recovering sharply on covering of shorts and re-buying chiefly on too much rain and low temperature in the Mississippi valley states, with prices bulging to new high record quotations for the season this morning, the week closed with heavy profit-taking the principle feature and little change in prices for most Saturday.

The speculative feature continues the variable weather conditions adding to the uncertainty of a favorable start for the new crop. The uneven distribution of rain and unseasonably low temperature has made the season so far about one to two weeks late, except in Texas, where it is about three weeks late. The supply of cotton is ample to provide for the requirements of the world's spinners and still carry over a large surplus into the new crop season. The general feeling is that the new crop is not likely to yield more than an average crop.

The predominance of bullish activity in the option markets is likely to continue until checked by the development of settled weather of a very favorable average throughout the belt. Until those conditions materialize such declines as may occur from profit-taking or bear raids are not likely to go far or prove more than temporary.

On the opening advance of 4 points in May and 5 to 6 points in the rest of the list the May option sold at 10.71, July 10.52, August 10.41, Oct., 10.33, Dec., 10.23, and Jan., 10.25. Advantage was taken of this broadness and strength in the market by the bull cliques to unload large amounts of cotton contracts to secure profits. Their selling wiped out all this advance before the end of the first hour and later sent prices 3 to 6 points below last night's closing, but renewed bull support left the market steady and about unchanged.
