Clean up. That is the watchword.

The Wilmington Star thinks that Raleigh's new mayor is a Wynner.

Of course Governor Kitchin will not return the compliment by appointing a republican.

The Durham Herald says: "We know how the republicans feel over it, but would not attempt to express it."

The Asheville Gazette-News thinks North Carolina republicans are getting a rough deal. One would judge from the tone of its remarks that it isn't at all pleased with Civil Service Commissioner Williams or Judge Connor.

Wilmington is to vote on a special school tax. If the tax fails to carry her schools next year will run but five months. We hope the good people of Wilmington will do their duty and vote for the tax at the first opportunity and not have to pass through the experience that Raleigh did. Of course they will vote the tax sooner or later, and they might profit by Raleigh's experience, for the same conditions exist there as existed here, and vote it at once.

North Carolina has a new industry for this section, a paper manufacturing mill. The plant is located at New Bern and The Journal of that city is being printed on a product of the mill. The paper is white and smooth and as good as the product of any mill in the country. It is the purpose of the management of the mill to eventually increase its producing capacity to 75 or 100 tons a day. The pulp used in the mill at present is imported from Switzerland. The community and the state is to be congratulated on the building and operation of this enterprise. The state needs diversity in its manufactures as well as in other lines. The greater the number of factories we have and the greater variety of their products the wealthier and the more substantial will our communities as a whole become.

Raleigh stands higher in the estimation of the people of the state today than she has in twenty years. She had lost her prestige because of a self-satisfied policy on the one hand and a policy of inactivity and lack of progress on the other. But when she resolutely set herself to the solution of some of the problems that confronted her and eradicated some of the evils her stock went up to par. Now she is face to face with another evil, that of unsanitary methods in handling the meat and the milk supply of the city. We have no fear but that she will settle this problem as creditably as she has settled the others that have recently confronted her and that her stock will again take an upward turn. Clean, pure meat and milk are objects worth fighting for, and when the city gets them she will have reason to be proud of the victory over the present method of handling this part of the food supply.

GET THE BEST.

When the time comes for the selection of the city officers it will be well for the board of aldermen to remember that upon these officers much depends. It is of the utmost importance that men be placed in authority who have the cause of reform at heart and who will do all in their power to make the new administration a success. "A chain is no stronger than its weakest link" and it is equally true that an administration is weakened when any department of the work in its charge is in incompetent hands. Every officer from fire chief to chief of police should be in thorough harmony with the administration, each man working to bring his department to the highest state of efficiency. If the best men available are holding the positions now—keep them in office. If they are not—make a clean sweep of the present set, from the highest to the lowest, and get the best. If the best are not seeking office—do like Mr. Taft did in the judgeship contest—pick out the right man from the ranks of the non-combatants. The earnest seeker after office is not always the best man available.

We need a city attorney who will do something more than sit down and wait for crime to come out into the lime-light, while he complacently draws his salary. We need a sanitary inspector who will do some inspecting. We need a fire chief who knows how to handle men and do the various other duties connected with his department in the very best way. We need a chief of police who will make the way of the transgressor hard. In fact, Raleigh is tired of drifting. She wants progress and will never again be content with the stagnation that has been the bane of her existence for twenty years.

This paper is making no fight on any particular officer. If the board of aldermen feels that the city affairs are in the hands of the right men, it will do right in keeping them in the service of the city. The Evening Times sincerely desires that the new administration shall make good, and to this end wishes to see the very best men entrusted with the work of carrying out the reforms promised to the people.

PRESS COMMENT

Judge Connor's Appointment.

President Taft arose above party considerations yesterday when he appointed Judge Henry G. Connor of the North Carolina Supreme Court to the vacancy caused by the death of Thomas R. Purnell. He chose the best man for the place that could have been found in North Carolina, and the federal judiciary in this state will be the abler of any in the south and as able as any in the nation. Of course the President's action will cause a lot of republicans to become disgruntled, but this feeling should be of short duration.

The appointment was expected yesterday and came as no surprise. Already the scramble for a successor to Judge is on and the public will be interested in yet other judgeships for several weeks, perhaps.

We believe that President Taft will always be proud of his act of yesterday.—Winston-Salem Journal.

Home-owning by the People.

In all the leading countries of Europe systematic efforts are in progress to facilitate the securing of homes by people of moderate means and to furnish separate dwellings at a cheaper rent to the classes dependent on salaries and daily wages. The consular reports to Washington from England, Prussia and Austria are particularly interesting in this respect as showing the progress made by the governments of those countries in providing the poorer elements of their city populations with comfortable and hygienic dwellings at a cost proportionate to small incomes. In Austria an entire reform of the method of taxing real property has been undertaken, with a view to encouraging capitalist to construct small detached houses for workmen, and plans are well under way to facilitate the ownership of homes by that element.

Coincidentally, the congress of the United States is busily perfecting legislation which will immeasurably increase the burdens resting on the home seekers among the elements of citizenship above referred to. The Aldrich bill extends protective taxation to all the materials entering into building, and the result must be an enlarged cost of constructing houses and a notable rise in rent charges. While the monarchical establishments abroad are striving to better the conditions of the poor, our lawmakers are intent on adding to the already exorbitant profits of the producers and manufacturers, making the burdens heavier on the people, and putting a damper on the natural desires of men to own their homes.

It is a mistaking policy which in our government we are pursuing. The value of home ownership is not appreciated as it should be. The greatness of a people depends upon this more than upon any other single cause. What made Rome fall was not because she had become mistress of the world, but because the non-home owning element of her citizens had become so largely predominant. A nation of tenants, principally, cannot long remain a great nation.

If in our criminal statistics care should be taken to discover what percentage of crime must be charged to the non-home-owning class it would probably be a eye opener to those who have not given this matter thought. We have statistics to show what percentage of crime is to be charged to the races, to the illiterate, to the foreign-born citizen or to intemperance, but none to show how is represented in the non-home-owning class is represented in the records. Yet observation will soon furnish proof of the fact that some crimes are committed almost exclusively by people who do not own a home, and of all crimes by far the largest number are committed by the same class. If our people were all home owners there would be comparatively little work for our criminal courts.

To own his home tends to steady a man, and to make him a better citizen. This will be readily admitted, and the effort should be as far as possible to increase the home owning class, and to make laws which would naturally operate to this end.

In the most progressive of the European countries this is now being done. We should do the same.—Augusta Herald.
