Gifford Pinchot Speaks Vehemently on Land Laws and Their Meaning

MANY OTHER SPEAKERS

Interest of the Delegates to the National Irrigation Congress Today Centered in Gifford Pinchot—Most Valuable Citizen of This or Any Other Country is the Man Who Owns His Own Home—Nation That Will Lead the World Will be the Nation of Homes—Object of Conservation Movement is to Make the Country a Permanent and Prosperous Home for All Time—Advances made by the Great Water-power Trust.

(By Leased Wire to The Times)

Spokane, Wash., Aug. 10—The interest of the delegates to the National Irrigation Congress centered in Gifford Pinchot, head of the United States Forestry Bureau today and Mr. Pinchot was vehement in stating his opinion of the land laws and their interpretation by certain lawyers.

There was a keen feeling of expectancy also over the proposed resolution criticizing Secretary Ballinger, of the Department of the Interior, whose attitude towards Government Forester Pinchot has been far from friendly.

The speakers today filled the program with a long list of prominent names and men of eminent in affairs were gathered from both the east and west for the enlightenment of the champions of irrigation improvement.

The speakers today were: Mr. Pinchot, R. E. Campbell, F. D. of the Department of Interior; George S. Long, E. T. Allen, United States Forester; Bailey Willis, of the United States Geological Survey; W. G. Barrett, director of the international board of republics; Dr. W. J. McGee, secretary of the inland waterways commission; J. N. Teal, of the joint conservation committee; N. W. Harris, Chicago; Samuel Hill, president of the Washington good roads association; Samuel Lancaster, highway expert.

Mr. Pinchot was among the first speakers. His speech was as follows:

Home-Building for the Nation.

The most valuable citizen of this or any other country is the man who owns the land from which he makes his living. No other man has such a stake in this country. No other man lends such steadiness and stability to our national life. Therefore, no other question concerns us more intimately than the question of homes. Permanent homes for ourselves, our children, and our nation—this is the central problem. The policy of the national irrigation is of value to the United States in many ways, but the greatest of all is this, that the national irrigation multiplies the men who own the land from which they make their living. The old saying, "Whoever has a man shouldering his gun to fight for his boarding house," reflects this great truth, that no man is so ready to defend his country, not only with arms, but with his vote, and his contribution to public opinion as the man with a permanent stake in it, as the man who owns the land from which he makes his living.

Our country began as a nation of farmers. During the periods that gave it its character, when our independence was won and when our union was preserved, we were preeminently a nation of farmers. We cannot, and we ought not, to continue exclusively, or even chiefly, an agricultural country, because one man can raise food enough for many. But the farmer who owns his land is still the backbone of this nation; and one of the things we want most is more of him.

The man on the farm is valuable to the nation, like any other citizen, just in proportion to his intelligence, character, ability, and patriotism, but unlike the other citizens, also in proportion to his attachment to the soil. That is the principal spring of his steadiness, his sanity, his simplicity and directness, and many of his other desirable qualities. He is the first of home-makers.

The nation that will lead the world will be a nation of homes. The object of the great conservation movement is just this, to make our country a permanent and prosperous home for ourselves and for our children, and for our children's children, and it is a task that is worth the best

GIRL LURED TO DEATH BY WOMAN

(By Leased Wire to The Times)

Rochester, N. Y., Aug. 10—The police have positive evidence that pretty 17-year-old Anna Schumacher, who was slain in Holy Sepulchre cemetery and buried in a shallow grave, was lured to her death by a woman. The mysterious woman is described as being tall, wearing a pink dress and "acting wild".

The girl and the woman were seen in the cemetery late Saturday, the day Miss Schumacher disappeared, and the woman in pink was observed to leave the grave-yard alone about 7 o'clock. At present there is no clue to her identity.

The slayer, however, is believed to be a man employed in the cemetery, or at St. Bernard's Seminary, and today a posse of police and citizens, headed by Chief of Police Quigley, having formed a cordon around the woods adjoining the cemetery, began beating the underbrush where he was known to be hiding. It was confidently expected his capture would be effected within a few hours.

The slayer, unable to control the fatal fascination which leads most murderers back to the scene of their crime, returned to the edge of the cemetery just as the girl's body was being taken from the rude grave. His face was seen peering through the underbrush by one of the searchers. The latter immediately drew his revolver and cried, "Halt, or I'll fire."

The man darted back and dodging from tree to tree, succeeded in eluding his pursuers.

Word was at once sent to police headquarters and Chief Quigley hurried a posse on bicycles and in automobiles to the scene. The slayer apparently had no chance to escape from the thicket and the police surrounded the woods. The search for the man was kept up until dark, and then an all-night vigil was maintained, the police and citizens closing their lines, making it utterly impossible for a living thing to pass through without detection.

READING OF THE LETTERS HELPS MOTHER'S CASE

Some of the Charges Bitter But Create Sympathy for Mrs. Sutton

MYSTERY OF LETTERS

Manner in Which the Judge Advocate Secured Confidential Letters, Written Friend Remains, as Yet, Unexplained—Schwartz Told Mrs. Sutton Recently That He Had Destroyed the Letters—Guard Book, Containing Record of Patrols on the Night Sutton Was Killed Has Been "Misplaced", According to the Opening Statement of the Judge Advocate—Attorney Davis Says He Has a Witness to Clear up the Guard Book Mystery.

(By Leased Wire to The Times)

Annapolis, Md., Aug. 10—When the Sutton inquiry was resumed today the general impression here was that the introduction of Mrs. Sutton's letters, which were read first in secret and then in open court, will enlist more sympathy in favor of the mother and the dead lieutenant, even though some of the charges in the letters were more sensational than she might have made in a calmer moment.

Mrs. Sutton is still indignant and still at a loss to understand why the confidential letters she wrote to Harry M. Schwartz, paymaster's clerk in Washington, who posed as a friend of her son, should now turn up in the hands of the judge advocate. How they were obtained is as yet unexplained.

New mystery developed today in this respect when it became known that Schwartz within the past month had visited Mrs. Sutton in her apartments at Washington and wished her success in her effort to prove that Sutton did not commit suicide.

Furthermore, it is said that the mother, perhaps with the sense of premonition she has had about other things, recently asked Schwartz as to the whereabouts of the confidential letters written him. "I destroyed them all, long ago, Mrs. Sutton," he is reported to have frankly responded. They now turn up in the hands of the judge advocate, Major Leonard.

Mrs. Sutton said today that Schwartz always gave her to understand that he was an official in the marine corps pay office, and not a clerk. He is said to be an enlisted man who is working for a lieutenant.

The guard book, containing the record of the patrols on the night Sutton was killed cannot now be located, according to the opening statement of the judge advocate when the Sutton inquiry resumed today. Major Leonard said a diligent search had failed to reveal its whereabouts. Evidently it has been "misplaced," said Major Leonard.

This book has been wanted to clear up a portion of Private Kennedy's testimony.

Kennedy did not remember the name of the guard he relieved on the night he saw a part of the campus fight. Attorney Davis said that he would have a witness on hand this afternoon to clear up the guard record.

He is said to be Sergeant-Major Hurbut.

Corporal Todd, now en route from Boston, is believed to be another sentry whose name the missing guard book would show.

Sensation No. 2 of the session came when Attorney Davis called Mrs. Sutton back to the stand and put into evidence a mysterious calling card, bearing the name of Lieutenant Sumner. On its back were a few words in pencil. Solemnly it was passed about the table. Attorney Birney, counsel for Adams and tacit attorney for all the defendant officers, objected to its introduction. Major Leonard said he wanted to be fair and throw all the light possible in favor of either side.

This card made it necessary, he said, to summon Lieutenant Sumner from the Norfolk yards. The court decided not to make public the card's contents until Sumner arrived.

It was reliably reported that it was an apology for a duel challenge sent Sutton. Attorney Davis said it would have bearing on some of the testimony that Sutton was hated by some officers. Rumors of a duel challenge and an apology had been heard in the case before.

Mrs. Sutton identified the letters

ORVILLE WRIGHT GOES TO EUROPE

(By Leased Wire to The Times)

New York, Aug. 10—Orville Wright, the Dayton aerial expert, who successfully concluded his aeroplane tests for the government at Fort Meyer, accompanied by his sister, Miss Katherine, sailed for Europe today on the liner Kron Prinzessin Cecilie to study aviation in Germany for two months and incidentally look into some English business matters.

The Wrights propose to keep their journey a secret. Orville would make no comment upon the feat of Commander in establishing a new world's record at Chalons, France.

"I will demonstrate at Tegelhof, Germany, with an aeroplane I am taking with me," said Mr. Wright. "I hope to be able to make some new records in Germany. I may go to England and Spain after my stay in Germany but that depends upon later developments."

Mr. Wright said that New York might soon have an opportunity of witnessing one of their flights but would not admit that Wilbur will take part in the aerial experiments during the Hudson-Fulton celebration. He pointed out without comment that the foreign flyers have been making but 38 miles an hour in their cars while the Wrights made 42.

CHICAGO FIRE DESTROYS BLOCK

(By Leased Wire to The Times)

Chicago, Aug. 10—Fire today destroyed or damaged nearly every building in the block bounded by 5th and 6th streets and Buffalo and Superior avenues, in South Chicago causing a loss estimated at $150,000. Seven structures were burned to the ground and a score of others were damaged by the flames.

The police declare that the fire was of incendiary origin. It started in the boarding house conducted by Mrs. John S. Frank, 8508 Superior avenue. Vincent Kralowski, who formerly boarded with Mrs. Frank, was arrested. It is charged that he threatened to burn down the boarding house, following a quarrel with the woman. Five persons were injured.

KENTUCKY NEGRO LYNCHED BY MOB

(By Leased Wire to The Times)

Louisville, Ky., Aug. 10—Wallace Miller, a negro, was hanged to a tree near the Mount Tabor church, a short distance from Cadiz, Trigg county, last night. Yesterday afternoon the 9-year-old daughter of Thomas Waddington, a white farmer, went from her home to the rural mail box. The negro was lurking near and approached the child, who fled. Miller pursued her until her screams frightened him. The child's brothers captured Miller and started to Cadiz to jail him, but as they were passing the church a mob of 100 men took Miller from them and told the Waddingtons to return home. This morning Miller's body was found hanging to a tree.

GARDNER IS ANGRY WITH THE PRESIDENT

(By Leased Wire to The Times)

Beverly, Mass., Aug. 10—Congressman Augustus P. Gardner, representative at Washington from this district is quite angry. The sad part of it is that he cannot say anything. He rode over to the Myopia club, not because he heard the president was there but because he approved of the place. He was sitting upon the club house veranda when he saw something which made him jump and speak under his breath.

What he saw was a rear view of two men. One was a very large person, about six feet tall and four feet wide with a mountainous back, adorned with a pink striped shirt and gray flannel trousers, belted where the waist line ought to have been. The other was a very thin man about one fourth as wide and two feet lower than the other whose hand was tucked confidentially inside the great arm of the other. Congressman Gardner was annoyed because he recognized them. They were William Howard Taft, president of the United States and John Hays Hammond who is said to be a candidate for Gardner's job.

John Hays Hammond is an unknown quantity in Massachusetts politics and Massachusetts politicians observe with suspicion his friendly relations with the president. It was particularly annoying because lots of people around here think it ought to be Gus Gardner who should be strolling arm in arm with President Taft.

However there was not much political significance in the golf links appearance of Hammond and the president. It was revenge that they were out for.

The day before they ran up against General Adelbert Ames and W. J. Boardman at the Essex club, and the Hammond-Taft golf team was roundly thrashed. The president demanded a return match and told Hammond that he needed practice if he expected to play with him. A lot of people around here are unkind enough to say that Hammond lost the match on purpose so that he could fight for the return game and whatever practice there might be. They are all Gardner sympathizers.

More than twenty thousand unionists are expected to be in line. President Gompers will return from his trip abroad October 10.

The celebration in this city will be a tribute to the achievements of the labor leader in Europe and also a pledge of affection and loyalty to him. The labor unions of Philadelphia, Baltimore, Washington, Richmond, Wheeling, Harrisburg, and others, will be invited to participate.

The great bonus offer closed yesterday, and it was a rush to the finish and then it still keeps coming on the mails. Every mail yesterday brought subscriptions, and thousands of votes were issued for them, while in the city the contestants were on the go all day long and there was a good number of new subscribers to show for this work. Raleigh is rushing to the front, but then there is Wilson still holding first place. Miss Eva Warters is making a splendid race in Raleigh and her friends are working for her on every side. Miss Frances Dement is one of the popular leaders in the city, and her friends are getting mighty busy in her behalf, and she is going to make a great race for the Canadian trip. Then comes Miss Annie Clark, who is another popular girl in this city, and she, too, is very anxious to go on this great trip as the guest of the Evening Times. Her friends are working quietly for her, and when the 26th day of August comes they claim she will be in the forefront for one of these grand trips.

From now to August the 26th it is going to be a race for the two grandest trips ever offered by any North Carolina newspaper. The contestants find it easy to go out and get subscribers and they are turning them in by the dozen. Each day is going to count a lot in this race, and when all these girls get busy it is a certain fact that every person here will have a chance to take The Evening Times. Mrs. McFarland, of Wilson, is leading by a big vote, and her many friends in Wilson and over the state are doing their best for her. Her friends in Wilson say she must hold the first place, and from the way they are sending subscriptions it looks as if they are going to back up their word. Anyway the fight is on between Raleigh and Wilson, and it is going to be interesting to see who holds first place for one of these two great trips to the north.
