

SOCIETY.

COMPENSATION.

The universe pays every man in his own coin; if you smile, it smiles upon you in return; if you frown, you will be frowned at; if you sing, you will be entertained by thinkers, and if you love the world and earnestly seek for the good that is therein you will be surrounded by loving friends, and nature will pour into your lap the treasures of the earth. Censure, criticism and hate, and you will be censured, criticized and hated by your fellow men. Every seed brings forth after its kind. Mistrust begets mistrust, and confidence begets confidence, kindness begets kindness, love begets love. Resist and you will be resisted. To meet the aggressive assault every entity rises up rigid and impenetrable—while yonder mountain of granite melts and floats away on the bosom of the river of love.—Knoxville Journal.

WOODEN WEDDING.

Mr. and Mrs. G. T. Cogswell Celebrate Fifth Wedding Anniversary.

The fifth anniversary of the wedding of Mr. and Mrs. G. Theodore Cogswell was the occasion for a delightful wooden wedding celebration at their home 314 Hillsboro street.

The reception rooms and hall were beautifully decorated in trailing vines and Japanese lanterns. The color scheme of pink and white appeared in cut flowers and artistically arranged crepe paper. A novel touch carrying out the idea of the wooden wedding was the curling wood shavings mingling with the decorations.

Prizes for the best wishes for the bride and groom were won by Mrs. William Wynne and Mr. Weeks. Many handsome presents were received expressing the best wishes of many friends. There were out of town guests from New York and Massachusetts. The occasion was a delightful one in every way.

Funch and other delicious refreshments were served.

Among those who assisted in receiving were: Receiving the cards at the door Master John Koonce and little Grace Wynne.

Miss Emma Stunkel and Miss Nettie Brogden received the guests at the head of the stairs. They were attended to the receiving line by Miss Addie Bain.

In the receiving line were: Mr. and Mrs. G. T. Cogswell, Mr. George B. Cogswell, of Pittsfield, Mass., Mr. and Mrs. William Briggs, of New York City; and Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Koonce. Punch was served by Miss Isabella Brogden and Mr. Siscoe.

ADDITIONAL REWARDS.

Offered by the Governor For the Capture of Charles Fodrell and J. L. Fox.

The governor has offered a reward of $200 each, for the capture of Chas. Fodrell and J. L. Fox, convicts who recently escaped, in addition to the rewards offered by the State's Prison.

Charles Fodrell is a negro who was under life sentence for murder in the State's Prison; he escaped from the convict camp at Laurinburg, on August 15, 1909. His escape was due to the fact that the guard's gun failed to fire when he refused to halt.

J. L. Fox is a white man and was under a sentence of 12 years to the State's Prison for manslaughter. He escaped from the prison July 3, 1909. The guard responsible for his escape has been in the employ of the prison for three years and his services had always proven satisfactory. This guard has been dismissed on account of Fox's escape.

PROF. J. A. BIVENS MARRIED.

Married Yesterday in Monroe to Mrs. Ellie E. McKenzie. (Special to The Times.)

Monroe, N. C., Sept. 9.—Prof. J. A. Bivens, of Raleigh, formerly superintendent of Monroe graded school, and Mrs. Ellie E. McKenzie were married yesterday morning at 10 o'clock at the home of the bride in Monroe.

The bride is one of the most popular ladies of the town and Professor Bivens' popularity is known and recognized both here and in Raleigh.

The newly married couple left here at 4 o'clock with a party of friends in automobiles for Wadesboro, N. C., where they caught a northbound train last night for various points north and to Canada.

The marriage was a great surprise here, as it was kept a profound secret from the public until after the ceremony.

AID THE BALL ORGANIZATION.

A Small Deficiency in Accounts That Must be Made Up.

The following circular letter which is self-explanatory and speaks for itself is being sent out today:

The baseball season for 1909 has closed and in many ways has been a success.

It has given us all who had to stay in Raleigh all of the hot summer days of July and August something of amusement in the way of out of door sport. Now to make the same a complete success and to assure us all of a greater season next year, we need $398.75 to settle all bills and to retain players for next year. If the people of Raleigh don't come to our aid in this matter the directors will have to pay it themselves. Now the plan is for every citizen who receives one of these to send or bring to J. B. Pearce, of Boylan Pearce Co., $2.50. Respectfully,

J. B. PEARCE.

Five hundred of these letters are being sent out and 1,000 of another letter, the only difference in the two being that one asks for $2.50 and one for $1.00. It is hoped that those addressed and any others who can do so will come to the aid of the directors in this matter. They gave us good ball this season and will do so again next season, but they should not have to bear the burden alone.

A Complaint.

Several people have made complaint about the arc light at the corner of Hargett and Haywood streets. One citizen was at The Evening Times office today and he stated that it seldom ever burned and something should be done to it as the city has to pay for the light.

H. MANLER'S SONS, JEWELERS RALEIGH, N. C.

Mrs. Hattie Perry Dead.

There passed from life unto death yesterday morning at 7:20 o'clock at her home on Lane street Mrs. Hattie Perry, aged thirty-two years. Mrs. Perry had been in failing health for some time and her life has been like a sweet song in the service of the Lord. She well understood that she must die. Cheerful and bright, through many shut-in weeks, her great concern was for her dear ones whom she knew were so dependent upon her, though she felt the end was near. But she went out into the dark valley unafraid with an unflinching faith and trust in Him who doeth all things well.

The funeral services were held from the residence this afternoon at 6:30 o'clock, conducted by Rev. W. C. Lyree, pastor of the First Baptist church.

Mrs. Perry is survived by her husband, three small children, three sisters and two brothers.

How blest are those who in the Lord Have such a perfect trust. That when life's toils are over here, They live among the just!

Now that feeble hand of hers Shall steal, heaven's sweet, mysterious calm.

WILL MARRY INDIAN.

Massachusetts Girl Will Go to London Where She Will Marry Birenda Gupta.

(By Leased Wire to The Times.) Lynn, Mass., Sept. 9.—Miss Ethel S. Colcord will sail October 1 for London, where she will be married to Birenda Gupta, direct descendant of one of India's wealthiest and most powerful rajahs.

Their romance had its beginning at a Tech commencement. Although the parents of the girl, both well along in years, have little to say on the subject of their daughter's love for Gupta, it is understood that they have tried by every means in their power to prevent her from marrying the young man. Gupta will take his bride to a home in the hills near Cutoff, India.

The Postoffice Losing Money.

Postmaster-General Hitchcock is naturally inspired to do something about the $20,000,000 deficit confronting his department, decidedly the biggest in its history. The post-office is expected to pay its own way, though hardly to do more than that. Enormous extension of the rural delivery service, expenditures for which run high above the present deficit, has eliminated it as a revenue-producing factor. In view of the official statement that this service has in various cases been extended "far beyond the needs of the sections served," some retrenchment may be looked for. But a liberal policy here is generally favored, even at a large cost, and it pretty strongly entrenched. The registry and money order divisions of the department, both of which are slipping backward, are regarded as surer fields for reform and, postal commissions are now investigating both of them. Throughout reorganization and the introduction of better business methods will be recommended. An increase of 2 cents in the registration fee is a parallel suggestion.

Of course, the prime reason why the United States post-office is run at a loss, while European postal services contribute a surplus to the expenses of government, is that it undertakes to do so much for nothing, or below cost. The rural routes are the most obvious illustration of this. The second class mail is another. The government carries regularly entered newspapers and periodicals at a charge of 1 cent a pound, while the cost to it for this service averages 8 or 9 cents a pound. Both these concessions are bad business from the standpoint of post-office bookkeeping, but both are popular and are accepted as sound government policy. There is, however, another big leak in the post-office transactions, of which as much cannot be said. We mean the vast volume of literature deposited in the mails by industrious Congressmen and carried at the public expense by a too indulgent government. Some of the departmental stuff is worth the cost of general circulation; a few of the millions of copies of fence-mending oratorical efforts may be read; but the vast majority of these costly consignments represent so much dead-wood. Here is pure extravagance and sheer waste, the cutting off of which would nearly, if not quite, wipe out the existing deficit.—Times-Dispatch.

CORNER ON TEA.

Made to Get the Benefit of the Advance in the Tariff Duty.

Washington, Sept. 9.—The fact has just become known through a report to the state department that tea importers, nearly a year in advance of tariff legislation, prepared themselves for a tax on tea. That is they made a "corner" on tea, so to speak, so that if congress placed a tax on that article they would obtain the benefit of the increase in price. In support of this a report from Vice Consul Walter Gassett, at Kobe, Japan, to the state department states that in anticipation of a tax on tea Japanese exporters shipped to the United States during the first six months of this year 10,938,231 pounds of tea, as against 5,571,145 pounds for the same period last year.
