PRESIDENT IS GUEST OF CITY OF CHICAGO

Warmly Welcomed and His Stay a Continuous Round of Ovals

THE PRESIDENT PLEASED

President Taft Given Whirlwind Greeting by the Windy City This Morning—His Visit to the City One Continuous Ovation—The Most Elaborate Plans Made For the Entertainment of the President—Large Sums of Money Had Been Collected by the Committee Having the Matter in Charge and Public Interest Was Intense—The President Delighted With the Warmth of His Greeting.

WHAT TAFT DOES IN CHICAGO TODAY.

- Reviews from an automobile 150,000 public and parochial school pupils, lining miles of boulevards and carrying small American flags. Delivers an informal address at the Commercial Club. Attends a baseball game between the Giants and the Cubs. Is the guest of the Hamilton Club at dinner. Addresses a mass meeting at Orchestra Hall. Attends ball of the American Bankers' Association. Boards his train for Milwaukee at midnight.

Chicago, Ill., Sept. 16.—Chicago roared a greeting to President William H. Taft today. From the moment that he entered Chicago, at 11:15 a. m., until 20,000 baseball fans rose to greet him at 3:30 o'clock this afternoon at the baseball game between the Cubs and the Giants, his visit to the city was one continuous ovation. Chicago: the first stop in his 57-day, 12,000-mile tour of the west and south, was determined to set the pace for all entertainments of the president. The most elaborate plans were made. Large sums of money had been collected by the committee having the affair in charge. Public interest was intense. The city was decorated. The whole reception went off exactly according to schedule, the president being greeted with the greatest enthusiasm, and not one untoward incident marking the perfection of the day.

The president was delighted with the warmth of his greeting. Storms of cheers met him at luncheon, reception, and at each stop he made, while along the route crowds gathered and shouted for him. Not the applause that touched the president and cheered his heart most of all came from the children. The greeting of the school children of Chicago was the real feature of the day. More than 150,000 tots were massed on the boulevards of the west side, waving flags and decorated in patriotic costumes. As the president drove by, the children arose in swaying masses of color and cheered him in a shrill, childish treble that swelled into a great volume of sound.

Mr. Taft was visibly affected. He doffed his hat again and again as he bowed and smiled and bowed to the boys and girls of the Chicago schools who had greeted him so warmly. "Bless their hearts," he said between hurrahs to Capt. Archibald Butt, his military aide. "They cheer as if they had known me and liked me all their little lives."

The rest of Chicago was not one whit behind the children in the warmth of greeting extended to the president. The great commercial organizations of the city had united in the reception to the nation's chief executive, and though their greeting was of necessity less demonstrative and more calculated than that of the public school pupils, it was no less cordial and warm-hearted.

Mr. Taft reached the city at 11:45 a. m., and will spend more than 42 hours here, leaving for Milwaukee, his next stop at 2:45 a. m. tomorrow.

His entrance to Chicago was made at a special temporary station which had been erected in his honor at Garfield boulevard and the Lake Shore tracks. The station was a solid mass of flags and bunting, and the reception committee gathered there—a spot 6 miles from the commercial heart of the city—had come in an enormous concourse of automobiles that filled the great boulevard and the adjacent streets for blocks in every direction.

Thunderous cheers greeted Mr. Taft as he stepped from the train, smiling the typical Taft smile, and greeted the Chicago committee, headed by President Theodore Robinson of the Commercial Club, General Frederick Dent Grant, U. S. A., President George W. Dixon, of the Hamilton Club, and Fred W. Upham.

"Gentlemen, I am in your hands," said the president, as soon as he had responded to the committee's greetings, and shaken hands with a number of personal friends who had pressed forward, eager to clasp his hand.

President Taft, accompanied by Assistant Secretary Mlachler, Capt. Butt, and the other members of his party, were conducted to the waiting automobiles. The president sat with General Grant, and Presidents Robinson and Dixon. An automobile containing several secret service operatives followed, and the other members of the committee, with other Chicagoans who had gathered to greet Mr. Taft, followed.

A large force of police, mounted and foot, were on hand, in charge of Chief of Police Steward, who until recently was head of the city delivery department of the Chicago post office and was a personal friend of the president.

The long line of automobiles immediately commenced their run through the boulevards, passing in review before the massed school children.

Immediately after the luncheon, there was an informal reception in the hotel, at which the president shook the hands of hundreds. Immediately after, Mr. Taft was escorted to the Art Institute of Chicago, where he examined the Commercial Club's plans for the beautification of Chicago.

These plans, which provide for the development of the city during the next 50 years, include an elaborate boulevard and park system, with provision for a great civic center, and drew from the president expressions of admiration. D. H. Burnham, the architect, and Charles H. Wacker of the Commercial Club gave a brief explanation of the plans.

At 3:15 p. m. the president left the Institute, and, standing on its steps, between the majestic bronze lions by Edward Kemy's which mark its portals, he passed into the hands of the Hamilton club as its guest.

"Now for the ball game!" explained Mr. Taft, rubbing his hands, together with evident pleasure at the notion of relaxation from official etiquette, cares and duties.

He entered an automobile, and, followed by a long parade of motor cars, he was taken to the West Side baseball park. The route lay on Jackson boulevard to Lincoln street, and thence to the park.

Thousands lined the way and cheered the president continuously. When the plans for the ball game (Continued on Page Two.)

DEATH OF MRS. McDOWELL. At Age of 98 Years—Others of Family Lived at Rippe Old Age.

Youngville, N. C., Sept. 16.—Mrs. Gillie McDowell, the widow of George McDowell, of Wake county, died yesterday, Sept. 15, at the age of 98 years.

GREAT SYSTEM OF DEFENSE FOR PANAMA

Canal Will be Defended by Greatest System of Fortification In World

LOCATION OF FORTS

Congress at the Next Session Will be Asked to Appropriately a Big Sum For the Fortification of the Ditch. Plans for Forts Are Very Comprehensive and Provide For An Outlay of More Than $7,500,000—However, the Country May Make An International Agreement With Other Countries Guaranteeing the Neutrality of the Canal—In That Event Fortifications Would Not be Needed.

(By Leased Wire to The Times)

Washington, Sept. 16.—When the Panama Canal is completed it will be defended by one of the greatest systems of fortification in the world. Yesterday an American News Service representative saw the sketches and plans for the defenses of the greatest engineering work of modern times. It was learned that the plans for the forts and other means of defense for the canal were carefully gone over by Secretary of War Dickinson and Major General Bell, chief of the general staff of the army, during their visit some months ago to the isthmus.

The locations on which forts will be erected were inspected with great care, and the general plans of the fortifications for the canal discussed at length, and from every angle. Yesterday an American News Service representative saw the sketches and plans for the defenses of the greatest engineering work of modern times. It was learned that the plans for the forts and other means of defense for the canal were carefully gone over by Secretary of War Dickinson and Major General Bell, chief of the general staff of the army, during their visit some months ago to the isthmus.

The plans, which later were begun by engineer officers of the army, have been in process of formation ever since. Congress, at the next session, will be asked to appropriate an immense sum for the forts to protect the big ditch. These plans are very comprehensive, and provide for an outlay of more than $7,500,000. In discussing the fortifications and defenses for the canal a high war department official whose name under the army regulations cannot be disclosed said yesterday:

"The ground was gone over thoroughly by Secretary Dickinson and General Bell. The plans decided upon are the most comprehensive. Of course they are subject to change. In fact, several changes have already been necessary recently on account of changes in the construction of the canal itself.

"The war department is anticipating any action which congress may take in the matter of providing for the defense of the canal. There has been discussion of some sort of an international agreement which would guarantee the neutrality of the canal. If such an agreement were made, of course there would be no necessity for building defenses for the canal. The state department and congress would have to decide that. There is little doubt, however, that the United States will prefer to have the canal so protected that it will be impossible to be successfully attacked by other nations in the event of war. If congress provides money for the fortifications a special board will be appointed to have charge of the whole matter. Of course the actual work of beginning the work of fortification is a long way off, but the war department will be ready with the plans, long before congress provides the money."

The plans provide for the expenditure of about $4,000,000 on the Pacific mouth of the canal, and $3,500,000 on the Atlantic side.

The plans for the Pacific side include powerful and extensive batteries of 12-inch guns on four small islands, lying off the mouth of the canal from five to ten miles. These are Flamenco, Culebra, Naos, and Tabago. In addition to batteries on these islands the plans include forts at Ancon and San Juan, respectively on each entrance to the canal. The battery at Ancon would be adjacent to Balboa, the new name for the port to be located near the place where the canal will empty into the Pacific ocean. It is proposed to construct another great fort at Pedro Miguel, six miles inland. The great locks of the canal will be located at this point, and this fort would be for their immediate protection.

At Culebra, a point about half way across the canal, the plans include the establishment of a large military post, which under the present plans, would cost $500,000.

FIVE GRANTED PARDONS SIX DENIED

Eleven Applications for Pardon Disposed of Today by the Governor

THE REASONS GIVEN

Andrew Jackson, a Life-Term From Lincoln, Refused—Three of the Pardons Were Conditional—One Each Pardon For Wake, Orange, Mecklenburg, Durham and Gaston Counties—Those Refused Were From Lee, Yancey, Lincoln, Iredell, Craven and Robeson Counties.

Governor Kitchin today gave out his disposition of eleven applications for pardon, granting five and refusing six. Those granted were for minor offenses, none of them being long-termers. Among those refused was a life man, a 25 year term, and others on down to 10 months.

Pardoned.

Joe Keffler, sentenced from Wake to 30 days for vagrancy in September, was pardoned upon payment of costs, giving as reasons:

The mayor of New Hill put prisoner in workhouse thirty days for vagrancy. Prisoner has served twelve days. He is a young Jew—a boy looking for work. Had been to Raleigh looking for position. The mayor recommends pardon. I therefore, pardon him on condition that he pay the costs amounting to $5.50, which I am informed a friend will advance for him.

Frank Carter, of Mecklenburg, sentenced to the roads for four months, June 25, 1909, for non-support of wife and children. Conditionally pardoned for the following reasons:

Prisoner on June 25, 1909, was sentenced to four months on roads by the recorder of the city of Charlotte for the offense of non-supporting his wife and children. He has served two and a half months. The recorder, the prosecuting attorneys, the prosecutrix and his wife all recommend his pardon.

Pardoned on condition of his returning home and properly supporting his family and remaining a law abiding citizen of good behavior.

W. E. Blackwood, sentenced to ten months on the roads at January term, 1909, of Durham county court for the crime of selling liquor. Reasons for pardon:

Prisoner has been of good conduct on the roads. The county superintendent of health states that prisoner has a cough and fears incipient consumption. He has lost thirty-nine pounds in weight since his imprisonment began. He has served over eight months of the ten months' term. In the condition of his health the remaining two months may greatly damage him if left confined. I therefore pardon him on condition of his remaining law abiding and of good behavior.

Jake Rhodes, from Gaston, sentenced to serve two years on the roads for larceny at September term, 1908, conditionally pardoned for the following reasons:

Prisoner stole five dollars ($5.00) worth of goods. He is eighteen years old. He has served one year on the roads. The prosecutor, the judge, and the solicitor and many citizens think that owing to his youth, his punishment has been sufficient for his offense and recommend his pardon. There is no protest against it. I therefore pardon Jake Rhodes on condition that he remain law abiding and of good behavior.

J. C. Rose, sentenced at August term, 1908 of Orange county court to serve three years on the roads for forgery was granted a conditional pardon on the following grounds:

The twelve jurors, the judge, the gentleman whose name was forged, and those to whom he presented the forged instrument and many citizens recommend pardon of the prisoner. The solicitor says the forgery was very crude and deceived nobody. The sheriff has investigated the prisoner's record and has found nothing else against him. The prisoner has served more than a year on the roads, and those best acquainted with the facts and his intelligence think he has been sufficiently punished. I therefore pardon prisoner on condition that he remain law abiding and of good behavior.

Pardons Refused.

BANKERS HOLD TWO IMPORTANT MEETINGS

(By Leased Wire to The Times)

Chicago, Sept. 16.—Two of the most important sessions of the Bankers' Association convention were held today at the meetings of the Savings Banks section and the organization of secretaries of state bankers' associations. The proposition of locating the proposed national central bank at Chicago was one of the five discussions today.

Advocacy of Chicago as the site, based on financial conditions, geographical situation and western commercialism was heard on every side. An appeal in behalf of the millions of small depositors in the thousands of savings banks throughout the country, that their interests be protected by federal and state laws which would give them the first lien on their deposits, was made at the meetings of the savings bank section.

A number of short talks on more than a dozen different topics was the program before the secretaries association. Both meetings hurried their work and adjourned at noon.

This afternoon the members of the association were the guests of the Packers at the stock yards.

PEACE BETWEEN TAFT AND PINCHOT

(By William Hoster, staff correspondent of the American News Service with the Taft train.)

Ind., Sept. 16.—President Taft does not believe that Chief Forester Gifford Pinchot will regard yesterday's vindication of Secretary of the Interior Ballinger as a reflection upon his own official dignity. It is not thought either that Mr. Pinchot will retire from the public service. There is a complete understanding between him and the president and the latter will undoubtedly recommend at the next session of congress amendments to the laws that are desired by the chief forester. With Pinchot forestry and conservation are a hobby. He is a wealthy man and the same patriotic motives that have kept him in office this long, it is believed, will continue him there as long as he feels that he has any important work to do.

As the president's train gets farther west and the country which is especially interested in conservation is reached, the president will have something to say about conservation, and undoubtedly he will pay tribute to the work that has been done by Mr. Pinchot.

The president was up in his state-room on the train at 7 o'clock this morning dictating his Orchestral Hall speech for this evening. It is understood that it will deal with the tariff subject.
