SOME NEEDED IMPROVEMENTS.

Raleigh Merchant Endorses Editorial and Goes Further as to Improvements Needed on Fayetteville and Other Streets.

To the Editor of The Times.

I note with pleasure your editorial in yesterday evening's paper favoring a bond issue for street improvements. I am aware that there will be a lot of old fogies who will oppose a bond issue. You will only have to walk out on Fayetteville or Wilmington streets and take a look at some of the old out of date, and some of the dilapidated buildings to see who some of the old fogies are.

We need street improvement all over the city. There is not a street that does not need it in some way. But first of all we need a cleaning up of all dilapidated buildings, old awnings and other unsightly nuisances. Take Fayetteville street from Hargett to the capitol on the west side. There is only one modern building on it. Not but one decent looking building on a whole block. These old buildings, I think, should be removed and new modern buildings put up that would be a credit to their owners and to the city. It would be the best investment they could make. Then take up the east side. Tear out the old stores on that side and put in modern buildings and lower the sidewalk to the street level and tear up the cobble stones and put down bitulithic paving. And right here let me say, Raleigh has outgrown Fayetteville street as a business street. If Raleigh business is to grow and keep up with the increasing population, the merchants will have to go to other streets—to Wilmington, to Martin and Hargett streets. If the people who own the property on these streets will get a move on and build new, up-to-date buildings on these streets, they will soon be all filled with good business and stores, but it can't be done as these streets now are. Wilmington between Martin and Hargett needs the attention of the city aldermen. First, they should be required to take down all the old awnings that harbor the loafing negroes along the sidewalks (perhaps the best thing would be a good fire for the east side of this street), especially some of the old tumble down buildings, and from Hargett to Morgan the health department should give their attention to the west side, and have all those old tumble down shacks removed in the interest of health, if for no other reason. Such eye sores should be condemned and torn down, and if the property owners will not build decent buildings, they ought, in the interest of the more progressive people, sell the property to people who will build on it.

It is time the people of Raleigh wake up and get busy. People are coming here every day and we are adding two or three thousand people a year. Residences are being built all over the city and rented as fast as built. We are making room for people to live but making no business enlargement. People are here every day looking for stores. Some of them offering large premiums for leases on stores in order to get in. Store rents are higher than in any other city in North Carolina. Why shouldn't Wilmington street or Hargett street be made as good shopping street as Fayetteville? It can be done if the people who own the property will wake up. It must be done if Raleigh is to grow as she should. I say let's have that $250,000 bond issue. Let's get busy on the streets. Let's get up a modern improvement committee and clean up Raleigh. Let's make every street a decent street where ladies will not object to going any day in the week. You merchants on the side streets, clean up the objectionable business and get better ones in. Get after your landlord, make him put in glass fronts, cement sidewalks, tear down those old rotten awnings. Make things look inviting. It will pay. It will pay big. Now everybody—let's get busy.

Yours truly,

"MERCHANT,"
Raleigh, N. C., Oct. 15.

BUREAU OF MINES

Mine Owners Want Federal Supervision Over Property

Unions Also Want Federal Supervision—Congress Will be Asked to Establish Such a Bureau—Death and Accident Insurance Fund Advocated.

(By Leased Wire to The Times)

Washington, D. C., Oct. 15—Following a resolution of the American Mining Congress held in Goldfield, Nev., in September, which adopted a resolution urging some kind of federal recognition and supervision of the mining industry of the United States and a general demand throughout the country by the mine-owners and the mine-workers unions, it is probable that an effort will be made during the next congress to obtain legislation providing for a government bureau of mines.

Delegates to the congress were in favor of a department of mines, similar to the department of agriculture, or other departments of the federal government, but they will be satisfied if the congress of the United States establishes a bureau of mines to be under the supervision of the department of agriculture or the department of the interior. If such a bureau is established by the next congress it probably will be placed in the department of the interior.

At the Goldfield congress, David Ross, Illinois commissioner of harbors, advocated, together with the proposed bureau of mines, a federal industrial accident fund, to insure from death and accident all miners in the United States. He estimated that less than one percent, added to the cost of the coal produced in the country, would furnish an annual fund large enough to pay benefits to everyone killed or injured in the mining industry. This fund would give to the heirs of every miner killed a sum equal to his average earnings for three years. It was also stated that twelve hundredths of one percent of the combined valuation of mines, manufactories, and transportation lines in the country would insure the lives of all their employees.

Fewer deaths in the mines of the country during the past year are recorded by statistics gathered by the geological survey. In 1908 there were 2,450 persons killed in mines. In 1907 more than 3,150 persons met death in mines, so that the record for 1908 shows a decided improvement. In 1907 and 1908 there were injured 6,700 persons, counting accidents of all kinds. The big falling-off in the mine death roll in 1908 is ascribed in part to the light thrown on the causes of mine accidents by experiments of the technological branch of the geological survey. In 1907 there were four disastrous mine explosions, in which hundreds of persons were killed. These accidents caused congress to appropriate $150,000 for the establishment of an experimental station in Pittsburg to study the cause of mine accidents.

The decrease in the death rate among the miners over 1907 is due to the experiments carried on by the Pittsburg station, and the knowledge gained there which was made known to mine operators and miners throughout the country. The successful work accomplished by the Pittsburg station will be a strong argument to present to the next congress for the establishment of a federal bureau of mines.

Painful Dyspepsia

A Form of Indigestion Caused by Gastric Irritation From Undigested Food in the Stomach.

No kind of dyspepsia is better marked than that known as "painful indigestion," and is also a very common affection. Path, generally of a dull character, is felt after meals, and along with the pain, soreness at the pit of the stomach often exists, and in some cases the soreness is permanent. The tenderness is commonly restricted to a spot in the middle line of the body, immediately below the breast-bone. It often extends upward under the bone, which consequently feels sore on pressure, or the tenderness is felt toward either side. This tenderness is commonly associated with an unpleasant feeling of heat—"a burning sensation"—is also a "gnawing" and "dragging," as well as various other anomalous sensations complained of after taking food, and generally within an hour after eating.

As might be supposed the intensity of the symptom is proportionate to the quantity and quality of the meal. When the stomach is empty, a sensation of craving or emptiness gives most trouble. This often causes a false appetite, which by inducing the person to eat heartily aggravates the sufferings. Thirst generally causes much annoyance; heartburn, water-brash, acidity, nausea, and headache are not infrequent attendants. The tongue is usually coated and from mere inspection of this organ the condition of the stomach can often be correctly told.

It is a common error with persons who suffer from stomach pain caused by indigestion and gastric irritation, to use such drugs as chlorodyne, Hoffman's Anodyne, and other "pain killers" for its relief. Such treatment is a great mistake. While these drugs afford temporary relief to the dyspeptic pain, they have no effect whatever in removing the cause.

STUART'S DYSPEPSIA TABLETS remove the cause. By completely digesting all the food in the stomach, there is no further possibility of the occurrence of this disagreeable form of dyspepsia with its painful manifestations, and other concurrent symptoms. All of the irritation of the stomach-lining and stomach nerves as the result of the undigested food lying in that organ and undergoing fermentation and decomposition, is quickly done away with.

But not only is the form of dyspepsia which is accompanied by pain cured through the use of these digestive tablets, but also every other form of indigestion, as there are many kinds in which stomach pain does not occur, but where there are many symptoms equally disagreeable, disconcerting, disconcerting and discouraging.

Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets contain in a highly concentrated form, powerful anti-dyspeptic ingredients, which digest rapidly and thoroughly food of every kind, including proteins, nitrates, carbohydrates, etc. A single grain will disintegrate and digest 3,000 grains of food.

Purchase a box from your druggist at once (price 50 cents), and get rid of the pain, discomfort and other disagreeable symptoms of dyspepsia. Also send us your name and address for free sample package. Address F. A. Stuart Co., 150 Stuart Bldg., Marshall, Mich.
