I AM YOUR WIFE.

Oh, let me lay my head tonight upon your breast. And close my eyes against the light. I faint would rest; I'm weary and the world looks sad; this worldly strife Turns me to your wife! and oh, I'm glad to be your wife! Though friends may fail or turn aside, yet I have you And in your love I may abide, for you are true— My only solace in each grief and in despair, Your tenderness is my belief; it soothes each care. If joys of life could alienate this poor weak heart From yours, then may no pleasure great enough to part Our sympathies fall to my lot, I'd ever remain Bereft of friends, though true or not, just to retain Your true regard, your presence bright thro' care and strife; And, oh! I thank my God tonight, I am your wife!

—From the Book "Heart Throbs."

Life's Span.

Man's life is like unto a winter's day,— Some break their fast and so depart away; Others stay dinner, then depart full fed; The longest age but sups and goes to bed.

A LITTLE BIRD'S GIFT.

Dropped Little Bird Flower at the Feet of Miss Mildred Briggs.

Miss Mildred Briggs the little thirteen year old daughter of Mr. F. H. Briggs had a peculiar experience yesterday afternoon as she was returning from the Wiley school. The incident would make a good story for a nature magazine.

Miss Mildred is evidently a lover of nature and a close observer. Just as she was passing the home of Mr. Benjamin Cameron, opposite St. Mary's, she says she was attracted by the absolute stillness of the day. No cars or vehicles were in sight and she seemed to be the only person passing. There was nothing to break the stillness of the perfect spring afternoon. She stopped for a few moments to enjoy it all, the quiet, the smell of flowers, and budding trees, the bright sunshine etc. Her love for nature and appreciation of it was soon rewarded in a most unexpected and almost startling manner. A little bird began circling round and round just above her, all the time coming nearer. She kept perfectly still, watching to see what the little bird was going to do. It circled to the ground directly in front of her and to her great astonishment dropped a little blue wild flower from its beak on her shoe. Then hopping aside the little bird turned its head and watched her from its little head-like eyes, evidently to see how its little gift was going to be received. It was doubtless satisfied for Miss Mildred was overcome with delight at being singled out by the little bird for its dainty little gift.

SEVEN MORE OF THE CRAFTERS ARRESTED

(By Leased Wire to The Times.)

Pittsburg, Pa., March 23—Seven more councilmanic grafters today confessed their guilt to Judge Robert S. Frazer, and it is reported that William Brand, former president of the common council, and Charles Stewart, a former member of the select branch, have added their confessions to the others. If Charles Stewart "comes clean" the whole hoodlum system will have been fully exposed.

At noon it was announced by District Attorney Blakeley that no more confessions will be received. Those caught in the dragnet from now on will be prosecuted to the full extent of the law.

Indictments will be turned today. It is said against the bribe-takers, the men who tempted councilmen to sell their honor, as well as the principal bribe-takers.

District Attorney Blakeley expects to go into an investigation of some matters which may involve some of the present members of councils. He announces that if anything comes to his notice involving the present councils he will look into it.

A large audience was in court this morning to hear the confessions of the men brought in and the evidence given was sensational.

Joseph C. Wasson, who last week started on his sentence was brought from the penitentiary and, in the office of District Attorney Blakeley made a complete statement of his connection with and knowledge of municipal corruption. In every particular he corroborated the confession of John E. Klein. His story details the actions of the men higher up and for the first time introduces the names of men into the case who have never been publicly or privately known to have connection with the tale of Pittsburg's disgrace.

John E. Klein has supplemented his first confession, and names of five prominent Pittsburgers who acted for the banks in the payment of the bribe-money for the passage of the depository ordinance. These men are a bank president, a real estate dealer, a manufacturer and bank directors, and two relatives of the latter individual.

Much of this new material will be given to the grand jury and some of it is so startling and opens up so many leads that detectives are searching today for corroborative evidence.

While District Attorney Blakeley does not promise immunity to the big men—the bankers and other outsiders who tempted the council men to sin—he does say that if they come forward and confess their crimes he will ask the court to take into consideration their action.

When the bars finally close every man on the outside will have to fight to keep out of prison. The trial list for next Monday will contain the first of the cases.

MERRY WIVES OF WINDSOR.

Will be Presented by Meredith Girls at Woman's Club Meeting.

The Literary Department of the Woman's Club will entertain the club Thursday afternoon. The meeting promises to be unusually attractive as the Elocution class of Meredith College under the direction of Miss Phelps will present Shakespeare's "Merry Wives of Windsor."

TUESDAY AFTERNOON CLUB.

Meeting Held With Mrs. W. R. Crawford Yesterday Afternoon.

The Tuesday Afternoon Club met yesterday afternoon and had a most delightful meeting. The subject of discussion was an interesting one, "Spanish Legends." These are all grouped around the legendary hero of Spain, the Cid.

Mrs. S. W. Brewer read an interesting paper on "Legends of the Cid." Mrs. Carey J. Hunter read some selections from Lockhart's "Ancient Spanish Ballads."

The Cid in art was discussed generally by the club.

Refreshments were served and a delightful social hour was enjoyed by all.

TEA AND MUSICALS.

Christ Church Relief Society to Aid Thompson Orphanage.

An invitation to drink a cup of tea with the ladies of the Relief Society of Christ church, is extended to all who love music and children. A fund for the Thompson orphanage has been begun and it is hoped to add a little to it. The music will begin at a quarter past six o'clock; but the tea and the welcome begin at five. The entertainment will be given at the home of Mrs. Alfred Thompson, on the afternoon of Wednesday, March 23, at seven o'clock.

A silver offering will be taken at the door.

RECEPTION AT PEACE.

To add to the delights of the occasion the Choral class will render the following program:

Boat Song—Abt.
Black-eyed Susan—Old English.
Cerulean from Freischütz, (Weber)
Miss Ethel Fielding.
Cigarette-Girl, chorus—Bizet.
Largo—Handel.
Arie from Figaros Hochzeit, (Mozart) Miss Julia Culbreth.
Spinning Song—Wagner.
Miss Leonomie Dumais is director and Miss Millie Beard, pianist, for the evening.

COULD NOT REMEMBER MANY IMPORTANT THINGS WHEN QUESTIONED.

(By Leased Wire to The Times.)

New York, March 23—The board of aldermen of New York were brought into the investigation being conducted by State Insurance Superintendent Hotchkiss of the alleged fire insurance "yellow dog" fund of $100,000 today when Mr. Hotchkiss asked W. E. Hutchins, president of the North River Fire Insurance Company, "Do you know that the New York board of fire underwriters or your own company ever made presents of money to aldermen?"

The witness, whose memory was bad all day, said he never heard of such gifts. He corroborated the stories of "presents" to state law-makers and a $5,000 contribution to the republican campaign funds told by previous witnesses.

Carl F. Sturhan, manager here for the Russia Insurance Company of St. Petersburg, one of the three foreign insurance companies benefitting by the Grady reinsurance law, testified that his company gave W. H. Buckley $15,500 "counsel fees." Buckley had a bill of $15,000 against the underwriters for "accelerating" legislation.
