ROOSEVELT'S LAST DAY IN COPENHAGEN

A Day of Sightseeing With No Definite Program Arranged

LOST HIS CLOTHES

The Colonel Having His Fill of Activity and Strain of His European Tour Telling on Him—Visited Elsinore Today, the Scene of Shakespeare's Hamlet—Crown Prince Shocked Because the Colonel Had to Appear at Dinner in a Sack Suit. Baggage Lost, But is Being Hurried Up—Banquet by City Officials.

(By Cable to The Times)
Copenhagen, May 3—Theodore Roosevelt, exponent of the strenuous, is having his fill of activity. The strain of his whirlwind European tour is telling even on him. As a result he was allowed two hours of sleep more than usual today, the program of sight-seeing being put back that far.

No definite formal program was arranged for the last day of the Roosevelt party's stay in Copenhagen. It was a tour of sight-seeing, for the most part, that took up the former president's time. The principal journey was to Elsinore, the scene of Shakespeare's "Hamlet". In connection with this it is interesting that the newspapers point out that Theodore Roosevelt could stand as well for the active type of man as Prince Hamlet stands for the introspective type. Each, they say, embodies the quintessence of the psychological traits of his kind.

Elsinore lies on the Island of Seeland, at the narrowest part of the sound separating Sweden from Denmark. The town is 24 miles north by east of Copenhagen and has a population of 15,000, employed for the most part in the ship yards.

Crown Prince Christian today appeared to have recovered from the shock he sustained in common with the rest of the court when Mr. Roosevelt was compelled to sit down to dinner at the palace last night in the sack suit in which he had been traveling. Pressure brought to bear from official quarters, as well as the urgent demands of the American party, today resulted in the arrival of the Roosevelt baggage with all dispatch.

Mr. Roosevelt asked that arrangements be made, if possible, for it to be sent to the Scandinavian peninsula over the same route taken by the party, and not by a roundabout route.

Mr. Roosevelt regrets his failure to meet King Frederick, who went to the Riviera before it was decided that Mr. Roosevelt would remain in Copenhagen more than a few hours.

The municipality today presented a formal invitation to the Roosevelts to attend the banquet planned to be held in the city hall, giving the diploma.

MOSLEMS RAIDING CHRISTIAN VILLAGES

(By Leased Wire to The Times.)
Belgrade, Serbia, May 3.—While the main force of the Turks is driving back the Albanian rebels from the region below Meehanik Pass, marauding bands of Moslems are raiding Christian villages and settlements, torturing and killing men, women and children wherever possible.

With ferocity, unprecedented, even in the Armenian massacres, the Turks are carrying on the holy war with a terrific fury. From many districts of the affected country, Christian peasants are fleeing, abandoning all their possessions. Much anxiety is felt over the safety of the missionaries, some of them American, believed to be in Albania. So intense is the hatred of the Moslems that it is believed their officers, even fearing international complications, would be unable to hold them in check should western Europeans or Americans fall into their hands.

Every Christian officer and regiment in the Turkish army has been ordered back to Constantinople.

Prescriptions At Wadesboro.
Wadesboro, N. C., May 3.—Three hundred and twenty-five prescriptions were filled at the medical depository during the month of April against 292 for the previous month.

Mrs. George Cornwallis-West, the former American society woman who is now prominent in the highest circles in London society, and whose plans for entertaining former President Roosevelt during his visit in London have been suddenly shattered by Col. Roosevelt's refusal of her invitation. Mrs. Cornwallis-West had arranged an elaborate dinner in the Colonel's honor, inviting many of the English peeresses. She went to Paris to tender her invitation to Col. Roosevelt and following his refusal to attend, the dinner was forced to return to London and cancel her invitations.

PRESIDENT AT HOME

Cincinnati Welcomes President With Open Arms

Strenuous Program Mapped For Mr. Taft in His Home City—Banquets, Luncheons, Receptions and Speeches Galore—Goes to St. Louis From Cincinnati.

(By Leased Wire to The Times)
Cincinnati, May 3—President Taft's home city greeted him with open arms today and mapped out a strenuous program for him. Practically every hour, and most of the intervening minutes between his arrival and the time set for his departure for St. Louis, midnight, was provided for. The only time allotted to his private affairs was the period between 10:25, when his train arrived, and noon, which he put in at the residence of his brother, Charles P. Taft.

The president was given a mighty welcome home by the crowd that waited when his train pulled in and the drive from the station to his brother's home was one continuous ovation.

At Longworth station more than 500 rosy checked public school and parochial children from the Highland public school and St. Rose Parochial Schools greeted the president with flowers which they showered upon him as he shook hands with the teachers and others in charge. Wade Ellis and members of the republican state committee, accompanied the president's special down from Columbus.

The official program began with an address at the Mercantile Library at noon. Following that came luncheon as the guest of his friend, Lucien Walsin, on Madisonville Road. This had almost the character of a public function, so many of the president's prominent Cincinnati friends had been invited to meet him.

Next on the program was a reception at the home of J. G. Schmidlapp, the multi-millionaire banker, at which the president and Ambassador Bernstorff were the guests of honor. At 4:30 the president was scheduled to address the Loyal Legion at Masonic Hall.

GRAND JURY PROBE

Four More Members of Legislature Summoned

Will Testify Before the Grand Jury in Relation to the Bribery Charges. Serious Political Storm Brewing—Another District Attorney May Start Counter Investigation.

(By Leased Wire to The Times)
Chicago, May 3—Four members of the legislature and the widow of a fifth were served with subpoenas today to appear before the grand jury and testify in the investigation of the charges of Representative Charles A. White that he was paid $1,000 to vote for William Lorimer for United States senator.

It also develops that a serious political storm is brewing and is liable to break at any moment, following the announcement of State's Attorney Burke, of Sangamon county that he would make an investigation independent of the Cook county investigation. Burke says in so many words that Representative White is a bribe-seeker. Mr. Burke says that if White makes further statements admitting charges similar to those in the confession steps will be taken to cause his arrest.

Among those for whom subpoenas have been issued are the following: Representatives Henry A. Sheppard, Michael S. Link, Joseph S. Clark, P. J. C. Beckmeyer, and Mrs. Charles Luke, of St. Louis, widow of former Representative Charles Luke.

Sheppard, Link, and Clark are the men mentioned by White as participating with him and "Bob" Wilson in the jackpot meeting in the Southern Hotel in St. Louis. Their evidence is desired in connection with this jackpot fund and its alleged distributors.

Representative White was before the grand jury most of yesterday afternoon and went over the details of the alleged bribing in detail.

Other developments in the legislative scandal are:

Representative Joseph Carter, of Champaign, states that he was indirectly proffered a $10,000 bribe to assist in killing a bill at Springfield.

Attorney General Stead sends a letter to the Sangamon jury offering the co-operation of his department.

Senator Lorimer receives from Washington the original of the last letter written him by White, which, he says, is so rambling that it indicates that the writer is mentally unbalanced. It will not be given out for publication for the present.

THE LID LIFTED

The City of Durham Again An Open Town

After Much Discussion Before the Board of Aldermen Stringent Law is Repealed—Sad Death of a Young Girl.

(Special to The Times.)
Durham, N. C., May 3.—The city again became open last night when the lid was lifted from the drug stores and licensed hotels and restaurants received privileges to observe their former hours. There had been great demand for it. The hungry folks who blew in Durham and out on the banned hours constituted themselves committees of several to talk against the place. Ex-Alderman T. M. Gorman came upon the floor of the council chamber and asked for a few words. He declared that he thought the restrictions unnecessarily severe, but that he spoke for nobody but himself. He spoke of the great inconvenience that travelers had been forced to pass through and asked that the city rescind its action.

There were some interesting colloquies here as to the recent resurrection of an old ordinance along since forgotten. Mayor Griswold declared that he did not know these laws were on the books and that so long as they existed he expected to make it his business to have them carried out. "If you don't want them, repeal them," said the mayor. Under the recent law, a cold drink and a cigar could not be purchased during Sunday hours at all, the drug stores selling nothing. The restaurants observed the hours of 7 to 9 a. m., 12 to 2 p. m. and 6 to 8 p. m. They likewise sold no tobacco, no cold drinks. The hotels could not pass them out. The whole place was tight.

The first motion made was by Alderman Lindsay, who took the ground that the city should restrict the license to run open Sunday hours to the first district. Police supervision was the reason pleaded.

There were objections to it on the ground that it violated the old democratic doctrine of equal rights to all and special privileges to none. Alderman Mason called for the record.

HEAVY BLOW TO DEFENSE OF HEINZE

Max Schultze Forced to Admit the Existence of Copper Pool

HEINZE IN POOL

Schultze's Story Flatly Contradicted the Testimony of Otto Heinze, in Whose Operations the Prosecution Has Already Established That F. A. Heinze Had a Financial Interest—Under Pressure of Questioning Schultze Admitted the Pool's Existence—Effort to Connect F. A. Heinze With This Pool and Thus Show a Motive for Misappropriation of Funds Was Continued.

(By Leased Wire to The Times.)
New York, May 3.—A heavy blow was struck at the defense of F. Augustus Heinze today when, at his trial on indictments charging violation of the federal banking laws, Max H. Schultze was forced to admit the existence of a copper pool in October, 1907, Schultze, the partner of Otto Heinze, the defendant's brother, is alleged to have been in the pool.

Schultze's story, coming when the trial was resumed in the United States circuit court, flatly contradicted the previous testimony of Otto Heinze, in whose operations the prosecution has already established, F. A. Heinze had a financial interest.

Under the pressure of questioning and confronted with the books of Otto Heinze & Company, Schultze admitted the pool's existence and the entries posted to the accounts of Otto and Arthur P. Heinze in the pool transactions.

Portrait of Mlle. Lina Cavallieri, painted by Mrs. Benjamin Guinness. The beautiful young opera singer, whose engagement to marry "Bob" Chanler, the wealthy New York artist has recently been announced, has just been cited by Professor Brooks Adams, of Boston University, as an illustration of his idea that "the modern woman claims her right to live with any man when she pleases, and as long as she pleases."

"This young woman," says the professor, "considered the proposition from a strictly business standpoint."

WAS THOUGHT SHE COMMITTED SUICIDE, BUT MURDER IS NOW CHARGED.

Trenton, N. J., May 3.—Following a police investigation of the death of Miss Helen Rice, the young southern teacher in the Pennington Seminary, whose body was found in a pond Sunday, it was declared today that she was murdered. A certain professor, according to the authorities, has been put under surveillance and an arrest is imminent.

It was first believed that Miss Rice had committed suicide, but developments today indicate that her death was carefully planned and every precaution was taken to make it appear that she had ended her own life.

When her body was found there was no water in the lungs.

The young woman's body has been sent to Galveston, Tex.
