NEGRO CHICKEN THIEF SHOT IN THE BACK

Last night Simon Powell was aroused from his slumbers by the noise from his chicken coop, and taking his shot-gun he proceeded to investigate. Upon his arrival at the chicken house he discovered a man leaving rapidly with an armful of his best roosters. After commanding him to halt and upon his refusal to comply with the request, he emptied his gun into the fleeing man's legs. He fell and lost his chickens and when Simon reached his side found it to be Charley Mooten.

The peculiar thing about the affair is that when the wounded man was taken to St. Agnes' Hospital it was found that where he was peppered with shot the skin was covered with feathers stuck into the skin. No one can account for this peculiarity unless the feathers of the fowl waive by his side. Both parties are colored and the report from the hospital today is that the wounded man is resting easy.

Insurgents Hold Their Last Meeting

an office holder under Dan Russell, get so much authority that the democratic executive committee of Wake county, consisting of between thirty and forty good citizens, should bow to his will?

Mr. Battle said that the mass meeting was called by forty of the best men of the county. It is a good thing he did not say "best democrats." He probably knew the political record of a large number of the signers, and that some of them voted for Jim Young against Needham Broughton.

Mr. Battle concluded with an appeal to support the insurgent ticket. Of course he wanted the ticket supported, for he is on it.

The band then played something. It is not known why the band was there last night. When Jones and the other democrats spoke a short time ago, they "used a band to drum up the crowd." Of course no one dares accuse the bolters of using such methods to get a crowd. Oh no.

Doctor Enoch Walter Sikes, who wants to go to the senate, even if he does have to promise to vote for the crowd that was too bad for him two years ago, was the next speaker. When he mounted the judge's stand an effort was made to give him an ovation, the chief rooster and his subs jumped to their feet, waved their hats and worked their arms like windmills in a gale in an effort to get the crowd on its feet, but after all this exertion about five were induced to get up. The Doctor said he had been digging the grave for the ring all over the county and the people would do the burying. He also denied the charge of ever losing his temper. He said that the ring had been shooting him with hot air but had not hurt him. He seemed to have been considerably inflated with that substance known as hot air, but it bore the label of another injector.

Continuing, he said he had told his record and now wanted to know theirs. Everybody knows his political record is crooked and that is why they are kicking. If his political record was as good as the records of the regulars he would get along better. His record needed defense, the others did not.

He then filed several "indictments," the first of which was favoritism in the road business to individuals and quoted that unknown writer, called "Taxpayer," and dwelt upon false charges without giving the true statements as has been published. He said that sixty men were on the list, waiting for appointment to the position of road supervisors.

The second indictment was extravagance, and, of course, the County Home was the particularly sweet morsel for this subject. He said he didn't believe Wake county's poor was better kept than in other counties, and said the commissioners were responsible for this extravagance. Judge Allen said that Wake county's home was the pride of the state. Who is to be believed, Judge Allen or Professor Sikes? The former has visited the home, while it is doubtful if the latter ever saw it.

The third indictment was the salary bill, in which he referred to Mr. Chas. U. Harris as the sparrow who had killed Cock Robin. In his efforts to muddy the water he failed to say that all the candidates on both sides were committed to the salary bill, and he knows well that it will be a law regardless of which side wins. Anything to fool the people.

The fourth indictment was the breaking up of the mass meeting. He characterized that as the greatest crime that had been committed since Sherman's army passed through here, thus carrying out the general tone of all the speeches that "those who are against us are rascals, while those that are with us are pure angels." The idea of saying that there are men in Wake county who are worse than Sherman's army. Oh, well, any man who will say what Sikes said about

ALL DEMOCRATS CORDIALLY INVITED TO ATTEND.

Armistead Jones and the Confederacy will say anything. "Their bulwarks," said the Doctor, "are money, fraud and liquor."

Those same men mentioned above use those methods to debauch the ballot. Do you believe it? Yet Sikes said so, and he is a truthful man? Wow!

He further charged that they had taught men to sell their vote, and that the other side secured votes by using whiskey in quantities from a small to five gallons.

It would be interesting if he had explained what Bailey did with Craig's money two years ago.

Here the Doctor got out another indictment: "They have constituted themselves the supreme court of the party."

Just before this Mr. Battle was talking about the entire executive committee not bowing before Josiah W.

The speaker said, "We are trying to rid our party of bad leaders." Guess he wants to put in men of both parties, judging by the ticket he is running on. He says put out "bad warriors." Armistead Jones, the old warhorse, who has always been straight, and put in Bailey, the good. Wouldn't that be a swap to please you!

The band played some more, then Mr. Bailey mounted the stand. He said that this marked the culmination of the most intense campaign in Wake county, but he forgot to tell them that he was the sole cause of it. He said it was all over but the shouting.

He said that he would make certain awards to the other side. Jones will get a rest. A bottle of osetating syrup for Hinsdale; Russ will be court jester; Sears will be given relief, but not the kind Hinsdale gave him; Bernard will be given a chance to make a living outside of office; Pegram will be given a ring to wear around his neck; an automobile for Brewer to use on his good roads; a pair of buzzard wings to The Evening Times, so it may flap gracefully; will bury the state democrat; a halo made of the smoke and breath of Sherwood Upchurch, Nick DeBoy and Bob Lewis.

After getting his system relieved of the above, he grew awfully funny (?) He also said that A. Jones' thoughts were "me and my job; son Buck and his job."

The speaker said something about going to the ballot box with a detective. He said not to let the republicans vote, and some of the candidates got nervous. He then tried to argue that the present movement was the same as swept the city a year ago, but of course this fooled no one. He concluded by saying the insurgents would carry the city and the county by from 750 to 1,000 votes.

Shortly after 10 o'clock the meeting adjourned.

The band, the great amount of advertisements, etc., drew not more than four hundred, if that many.

Democrats of Wake County Should Cast Their Votes For Henry C. Brown For Corporation Commissioner.

To the Editor:

I am for Henry C. Brown for corporation commissioner and intend to vote for him to fill out B. F. Aycock's term, for the reason that I believe he is the best equipped man for this important office.

My acquaintance with Mr. Brown began eighteen years ago when he first moved to Raleigh. He has been voting, paying taxes and spending his earnings in this county ever since, and I would be glad to see Wake county give him a unanimous vote.

"Congress assuredly may regulate and restrain the state corporation in the exercise of these powers (to issue securities) and may prohibit it from issuing obligations or stock for any purpose relating to interstate or foreign commerce except in accordance with rules of restrictions prescribed by it for the purpose of preventing such evils as watered stocks," said the attorney general.

pointed to the "era of receivers" in the railroad world to prove the need of effective national supervision.

Mr. Wickersham stated that the great difficulty of drafting a law that would stand the test of the courts caused this feature to be dropped from the administration railroad bill at this session of congress, but a clause was inserted authorizing President Taft to appoint a commission to investigate this matter of federal supervision of railroad securities.

"The first question which arise in the consideration of this manner will be necessarily the power of congress to legislate in the premises, and it therefore seemed to be that a discussion of that subject would be of timely interest," said Mr. Wickersham at the beginning of his speech.
