

THE FAMOUS BELL FAMILY, AMERICA'S LEADING FEATURE MUSICAL ACT, AT THE GRAND THEATRE ALL THE WEEK.

A Sensational Charge Made Against Meds.

(Continued From Page One.) preamble, and the first resolution is as follows: "Whereas, The medical profession of North Carolina from its earliest history has consistently maintained a high standard of efficiency and integrity; and, "Whereas, Investigation made independently by the reference committee on medical education of the American Medical Association and the Carnegie Foundation, prove conclusively that our professional standard is brought into contempt and debased by several so-called medical colleges which are wholly incompetent, and entirely lacking in the requisites and facilities necessary to impart an education entitling its recipient to the degree of M. D., therefore, Resolved, first, That we most earnestly appeal to the board of medical examiners of North Carolina to refuse examination for license to future graduates of any medical school which falls below the standard recognized by the association of medical colleges in the United States, etc. Charlotte Doctors Stirred Mightily. To say that Charlotte physicians are stirred to the quick, and will do everything in their power to vindicate the North Carolina Medical College from this criticism, need not be stated. A meeting of the Mecklenburg Medical Association is called for Tuesday night, at which time it is expected the Charlotte doctors will have something direct to say in response to their critics of the Charlotte school and the Forsyth County Association. The faculty of the North Carolina Medical College is composed almost entirely of Charlotte physicians and specialists, men well trained practically and in theory for their work, and this new affair will receive some radical treatment, it is not doubted, at their hands, when they assemble to discuss the phase which the situation has assumed. Some of the faculty are inclined to think that the criticism is only one of many that were directed at a large number of institutions reported upon and that after all the critics are not to be taken too seriously, while others will say that there is medical politics, as well as straight politics. It is a unique situation which the North Carolina college has to face and the outcome of the fight will be watched with extreme interest by the medical profession at large. Faculty Statement. The faculty met Saturday night and issued the following statement: The faculty of the North Carolina Medical College, a school located in the city of Charlotte, N. C., having received knowledge of the action taken by the Forsyth County Medical Society at a recent meeting, based upon the report of the Carnegie Foundation committee, and since the above named school is specifically mentioned in their resolutions, feel it incumbent and obligatory upon themselves that some reply be made in order that the facts may be placed before the profession of the whole state. We feel that this is demanded of us and believe that fair and impartial consideration at the hands of our medical brethren will correct or even anticipate an erroneous impression which could unjustly do our school great harm. It is, however, our desire not to be misunderstood in this matter. This communication is in no wise intended as a condemnation of the Carnegie Foundation plan. The effort to improve medical education and place it upon the highest possible plane can only be commended, and deserves our heartiest approval. At the same time, we wish to state that the committee visited our school some eighteen months ago, since which time substantial changes have been made in our equipment, curriculum, etc., it is the belief of the faculty that the investigation of this committee was lacking in completeness, and that its report was therefore erroneous and its conclusions unjust and unfair. Whether or not the resolutions of the Forsyth County Medical Society are inspired by a sincere desire to elevate medical education in North Carolina, or by mere personal animus or political considerations, we do not pretend to know. This resolution urges upon the Board of Medical Examiners the necessity of refusing examination to graduates of our school. It would seem somewhat inconsistent that the Board of Examiners, according to whose judgment many graduates of the North Carolina Medical College during the past years have been deemed worthy of license to practice medicine in this state, should suddenly perceive their mistake and the failure of their predecessors, and the Forsyth County Medical Society will not easily convince these gentlemen that such is the case. This board of examiners has always shown itself abundantly able to pass upon the qualifications of those who come before it, and when the Forsyth County Medical Society says that the legislature should repeal the right of the North Carolina Medical College to give diplomas, it is a reflection upon the efficiency of this board in that it denies their ability to judge between the fit and the unfit. In order that correct knowledge may be presented to the physicians of North Carolina, the faculty has considered it wise to prepare a simple statement of facts regarding the school and to invite investigation at the hands of the Forsyth County Medical Society or any other society or individual, whether such statements are true and accurate, and since the North Carolina Medical Society and the Board of Medical Examiners of the State of North Carolina are to meet in Charlotte in June, 1911, we invite investigation as to whether or not correct information has been given. At this present time our chemical laboratories are provided with the most approved and conveniently arranged desks, with gas and running water for each. A full set of chemical reagents is provided for each pair of students, and quantitative and qualitative chemical experiments are performed by each student as in other schools. In Histology, our outfit, while not large and expensive, meets the demands of the classes. A microscope with high and low power lenses is provided for each student. Material for staining and mounting sections is ample for demonstrating the minute structure of the tissues and organs of the body. The laboratory is large and provided with the exposure of the northern light. A comparison of specimens stained, mounted and studied by one of our students, with the histological specimens prepared by a recent graduate of Harvard Medical School, a man who obtained license in North Carolina last June, shows that in both schools there were exactly the same number of specimens studied and that the specimens were practically identical. Our Pathological laboratories are large, well lighted and equipped with microscopes for each student. The material for demonstration of the morbid anatomy and structural change in diseased tissues, are obtained in part from our own post-mortems and in part from the Johns Hopkins and other large hospitals. During the past two sessions each student has stained, mounted and studied, making drawings as well as written description of each section, between 80 and 100 specimens of pathological tissues. None of these were duplicates, and they were quite representative of all the diseased conditions. In both histology and pathology the demonstrator prepares the tissues for examination and cuts the sections, after which the student handles them. In bacteriology each student prepares his culture media, and studies the various pathogenic bacteria microscopically and culturally. Oil immersion lenses are provided for each pair of students. Anatomy: We believe that if our dissecting room was investigated it would be found to compare favorably with that of other schools. It is 30 by 50 feet, lighted on three sides by large windows and by electricity, concrete floor with drainage and running water. At this time enough anatomical material has been provided for nearly the whole of the coming session. Dispensary: Our dispensary department is so well attended that it is difficult to handle the patients during the two hours devoted daily to this work. Our records show that during the past two years the numbers average twenty patients daily. Hospital Clinics: The students have access to five hospitals in the city. At all of which clinics are held and daily bedside instructions given in medicine and surgery. The number of hours devoted to such practical subjects as medicine, surgery, obstetrics and gynecology and didactic and clinical correspond very closely and in some instances exceed the requirements laid down by the association of American colleges. The statement has been made that professorships are represented by stock in the institution and that those professorships can be held subject to the concurrence (never yet refused) of the faculty. This is entirely erroneous, and that such is the case, several of the most valued teachers in the school, composing one-third of the number of full professors, own absolutely no stock. There are but four members of the faculty who receive any salary whatsoever. Two of them devote their entire time to teaching and to college work. Our entrance requirements have not heretofore been equal to the standard set by the Association of American Medical Colleges, but in the future, beginning with the session 1910, matriculant must be able to present a high school certificate. An arrangement has been made with the superintendent of public instruction in Mecklenburg county to examine all who are unable to present the proper evidence of preliminary preparation. This is the standard as set by the aforesaid association. The school requires that each candidate for graduation shall have attended four full years. With this recital of the facts regarding our school, we ask that our professional brethren do not accept snap-judgment, but consider carefully, impartially and frankly the facts as herein set forth; and then, if not satisfied, that they come and see for themselves. We do not believe a single member of the Forsyth County Medical Society has taken the pains to actually look into the facts of the case as they really exist. J. P. MUNROE, M. D., President. W. O. "Now, if Mr. Roosevelt has been so backed by his African experiences as to want to sail under a banner like that, why let him, but I won't, and there are a lot more just like me. "Moreover, if under the cloak of state's rights these railway people behind the movement try to make an attack in this convention on the rights and welfare of my people they are going to hear from me. "In out to fight these people and the first move has already been made in the formation of the national association of conservation commissioners."
