W. P. FEW PRESIDENT OF TRINITY

New President of Great College Formally Installed Into High Office

GREAT DAY AT DURHAM

William Preston Few, Ph.D. Inaugurated President of Trinity College This Morning With Full Dignity and Ceremony—Presentation of New Administration Building—Long Procession of Scholars and Dignitaries in Academic Costume—Congratulatory Address by Dr. Judson—Charter, Seal and Constitution of College Turned Over to New Executive by Retiring President Kilgo.

(Special to The Times.) Durham, N. C., Nov. 9.—With the dignity and circumstance befitting so important an event and in the presence of perhaps the most distinguished assemblage of scholars ever gathered at one time south of the Mason and Dixon's line, William Preston Few, Ph.D., was this morning formally inaugurated president of Trinity College. In his care, with academic formality were placed by the retiring president Dr. John C. Kilgo, the charter, seal, and constitution of the college, and upon his shoulders rests today the responsibility of leading Trinity College into the greater era of usefulness and activity for which it has been so thoroughly and carefully prepared by the labors of the retiring executive and his many co-laborers. The inauguration exercises proper were held in the Craven Memorial Hall and were open to the public. The audience which filled the large auditorium to the doors, the distinguished body of delegates from the other institutions seated on the rostrum, and the air of statelyness and dignity that pervaded the speeches of Dr. Judson, Governor Kitchin, President Few and Bishop Kilgo contributed to make the event a most impressive spectacle—one that will live

NERVOUS DYSPEPSIA.

A CURE FOR ALL.

Not a Patent Cure-all, Nor a Modern Miracle, But Simply a Rational Cure For Dyspepsia.

In these days of humbuggery and deception, the manufacturers of patent medicines, as a rule, seem to think their medicines will not sell unless they claim that it will cure every disease under the sun. And they never think of leaving out dyspepsia and stomach troubles. They are sure to claim that their nostrum is absolutely certain to cure every dyspeptic and he need look no further.

In the face of these absurd claims it is refreshing to note that the proprietors of Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets have carefully refrained from making any undue claims or false representations regarding the merits of this most excellent remedy for dyspepsia and stomach troubles. They make but one claim for it, and that is that for indigestion and various stomach troubles Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets is a radical cure. They go no farther than this, and any man or woman suffering from indigestion, chronic or nervous dyspepsia, who will give the remedy a trial will find that nothing is claimed for it that the facts will not fully sustain.

It is a modern discovery, composed of harmless vegetable ingredients acceptable to the weakest or most delicate stomach. Its great success in curing stomach troubles is due to the fact that the medicinal properties are such that it will digest whatever wholesome food is taken into the stomach, no matter whether the stomach is in good working order or not. It rests the overworked organ and replenishes the body, the blood, the nerves, creating a healthy appetite, giving refreshing sleep and the blessings which always accompany a good digestion and proper assimilation of food.

In using Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets no dieting is required. Simply eat plenty of wholesome food, and take these Tablets at each meal, thus assisting and resting the stomach, which rapidly regains its proper digestive power, when the Tablets will be no longer required.

Nervous Dyspepsia is simply a condition in which some portion or portions of the nervous system are not properly nourished. Good digestion invigorates the nervous system and every organ in the body.

Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets are sold by all druggists at 50 cents per package.

DR. WILLIAM PRESTON FEW The New President of Trinity College.

In the memory of those present for years.

The exercises of the day took place in six divisions. The first of these was the enrollment of delegates and guests, which took place in the west wing of the Washington Duke Building from 9:00 to 9:30 in the morning. Following this came the exercises of the presentation of the new academic building, which took place in the newly finished structure from 9:30 to 10:00 a. m. This part of the program, as well as all other parts excepting the exercises in the Craven Memorial Hall, was not open to the public, admission being restricted to those holding tickets. The academic procession in full costume, from the Washington Duke building to the Memorial Hall marked the close of the second division of the program. The third part of the order of exercises embraced the ceremonies of induction, the congratulatory and inaugural addresses, and was open to the public. Part four of the program was the presentation of the delegates and took place in the Washington Duke building, west wing, from 12:30 to 1:00 p. m. The luncheon to the delegates, guests and trustees, in the dining hall of the same building constituted the fifth division of the day's exercises. The luncheon of Mrs. James Edward Stagg, tendered the ladies accompanying the delegates, at 1:00 p. m., was the sixth event of the day. The seventh and final division of the inauguration program will take place this evening from 9:00 to 11:00 p. m., when Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin Newton Duke will receive the delegates, specially invited guests, members of the board of trustees, and of the faculties of the college at their residence on Chapel Hill street.

The Delegates Are Enrolled. The delegates from the other universities and colleges began to gather early. Tuesday afternoon saw large numbers come in, mostly from the nearer institutions of North Carolina and Virginia. The delegates from the more distant colleges arrived later in the night and this morning, the special train from Greensboro carrying a large number. The rather limited hotel accommodations of the city are today taxed to their utmost to take care of the delegates and visitors, and the private residences of the hospitable residents are thrown wide open for their comfort. That the city is deeply conscious of the honor that is conferred upon it in being host to so distinguished a body of men is apparent and from the hunting of navy blue streamers and bunting that decorate the main thoroughfares from the whole-heartedness with which the citizens are endeavoring to make the short stay of the delegates in the city as pleasant as possible.

In honor of the inauguration of Dr. Few, the leading colleges and universities of the United States have sent representatives, many of whom have left important duties and travelled half way across the continent to represent their institutions. Every college in North Carolina, with the exception of one, has one or more delegates. Practically every college of any size in the South Atlantic states and most of the large eastern universities are represented, either in the persons of their heads or leading professors. The western institutions are well represented most of them by delegates coming direct from their colleges, a few by prominent graduates coming from points nearer to Durham.

Promptly at 9 o'clock began the enrollment of delegates and guests in the west wing of the Washington Duke building. The names of the men, together with the institutions that they represented were inscribed in a book produced especially for this occasion by masters of the stationers' art, and will be preserved in the archives of the college as a precious relic of a most auspicious occasion. Immediately upon the conclusion of this ceremony took place the presentation exercises.

Mr. Fuller Presents Building. The simple ceremony attendant upon the presentation to the college by Mr. Fuller, of the magnificent administration building now all but completed, although witnessed only by the officers, faculties, trustees and guests of the college, and the delegates, was yet a most inspiring one. In a short speech of thanks and appreciation, Mr. James Haywood Southgate, president of the board of trustees, accepted the building in behalf of the body over which he presides.

The Academic Profession. Following the presentation ceremonies in the Washington Duke building came the academic procession, which issued forth on its slow march to the Memorial Hall soon after the conclusion of the speeches. The picture presented by the slowly moving procession from the stately new academic building to the Memorial Hall, and that of the large crowd which gathered in the quadrangle between the main building and the Memorial Hall transcended in beauty and impressiveness any other scene enacted on the historic old campus in the memory of the present generation. The line began to form shortly after 10 o'clock and consumed many minutes in winding its way slowly from the new building to the central driveway and up this around the flag pole, flower pot and sun dial to the gravel pathway leading to the steps of the Memorial Hall. It was a procession the like of which has seldom been seen in the south, representing as it did a group of men, each one of whom is a leader in his special field, coming from colleges and universities whose histories are a part of the history of the nation. Although the sombre nature of the long line was felt by every one, there was not lacking the element of color which lent a peculiar charm and attractiveness to the stately procession moving across the campus already well strewn with the brilliantly colored autumn leaves. Here and there among the uniform black of the long academic gowns and pure white robes of the doctors of arts and letters, the brilliant scarlet colored gowns of the doctors of divinity and theology. Quite numerous were the blue gowns of the doctors of philosophy, symbolizing the love for truth; the royal purple of the doctors of laws, and the golden yellow gowns of the scientists, expressive of wealth that science has added to the world's store house. The light blue robes of the doctors of pedagogy, and the deep green of the doctors of medicine, although fewer in number, added their share to the resplendent coloring of the stately line. The procession marched in three divisions. First came the chief marshal of the college, followed by his aides. Following these, two by two, in the order named, came the professors of the college, the professors of the school of law, the assistant professors of the college, the other members of the faculties of the college, and the alumni of the college in the order of their classes, all in academic costume.

The second division was headed by the college marshal, followed by the delegates from other institutions, and the specially invited guests. The delegates were formed in the order of the date of the foundation of their institutions, marching by twos, with the president of Harvard University and the dean of Yale college in the van of the procession. It was this division of the long line that commanded the utmost interest of the assembled crowd. For the most part, tall, stalwart men, their seriousness of feature bespeaking lives of earnestness and study, they made up a procession that inspired all the spectators with the spirit of the militant, wholesome modern school of education which they typified. The heads of the bachelors, doctors and masters, lined with the colors of the colleges which gave them their degrees, attested by their wide variety, the diversity and cosmopolitanism of the scholarly procession.

The last division was headed by the college aides. After these came in pairs the members of the board of trustees of the college. Following these in single file came the bursar, Mr. D. W. Newsom, bearing the keys; the librarian, Mr. J. P. Breedlove, bearing the charter; and the secretary to the corporation, bearing the seal. Following these, in order named, came the dean of the faculty of law, Professor S. F. McDevall, the president of the board of trustees, Mr. James H. Southgate; the mayor of the city of Durham, Mr. W. J. Griswold; the governor of the commonwealth, the Honorable W. W. Kitchin; Mr. Benjamin Newton Duke; Dr. John E. Crowell, former president of Trinity College; the Reverend Stenwall Anderson; Frederick William Hamilton, president of Tufts College; the retiring president, John Carlisle Kilgo; Harry Pratt Judson, president of the University of Chicago; and the president-elect, William Preston Few.

The Induction.

The large crowd which poured into the Memorial Hall completely filled the big auditorium, and in a few minutes after the delegates and all of the third division of the procession, excepting the trustees and aids, had taken their seats on the rostrum, all the seats in the hall were taken and all the available standing room was occupied. Memorial Hall has been the scene of many brilliant college occasions, but the spectacle offered this morning eclipsed every event that has been enacted within its four walls since it has occupied the premier position as the theatre of Trinity's imposing occasions. Never before in its history had the large hall enclosed within its confines a body of men so distinguished in the world of education as that which graced the rostrum in robes of purple, black, and gold, and never before so widely-gathered a body of alumni and friends as that which filled the big auditorium on this occasion. It was a scene that brought pride to the heart of every Trinity student and supporter, and imbued

Have You Tried?

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound? We can furnish positive proof that it has made many remarkable cures after all other means had failed.

Women who are suffering with some form of female illness should consider this.

As such evidence read these two unsolicited testimonial letters. We guarantee they are genuine and honest statements of facts.

Cresson, Pa.—"Five years ago I had a bad fall, and hurt myself inwardly. I was under a doctor's care for nine weeks, and when I stopped I grew worse again. I sent for a bottle of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, took it as directed, and now I am a stout, hearty woman."—Mrs. Ella E. Aikie, Cresson, Pa.

Baird, Wash.—"A year ago I was sick with kidney and bladder troubles and female weakness. The doctors gave me up. All they could do was to just let me go as easily as possible. I was advised by friends to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and Blood Purifier. I am completely cured of my ills, and I am nearly sixty years old."—Mrs. Sarah Leighton, Baird, Wash.

Evidence like the above is abundant showing that the derangements of the female organism which breed all kinds of miserable feelings and which ordinary practice does not cure, are the very disorders that give way to Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Women who are afflicted with similar troubles, after reading two such letters as the above, should be encouraged to try this wonderfully helpful remedy.

For 30 years Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has been the standard remedy for female ills. No sick woman does justice to herself who will not try this famous medicine. Made exclusively from roots and herbs, and has thousands of cures to its credit.

Mrs. Pinkham invites all sick women to write her for advice. She has aided thousands to health free of charge. Address Mrs. Pinkham, Lynn, Mass.
