MADERO IN HANDS OF THE GOVERNMENT

Leader of the Revolutionists Has Been Arrested and Revolt Smashed

REBELS IN FLIGHT

The Rebel Leader a Prisoner in the Hands of the Federal Troops, His Followers in Flight and Troops in Pursuit—While Attempt to Overthrow Diaz is Defeated and Revolution Broken Guerrilla Warfare is Feared—Rebels Could Carry on This Kind of Fighting for Months.

(By Leased Wire to The Times.)
Mexico City, Nov. 24—The iron hand of Porfirio Diaz, president of Mexico, has smashed the revolt aimed to crush his power and General Francisco Madero, the rebel leader, is a prisoner in the hands of the federal troops, according to telegraphic advices received from the north today. Madero's followers are reported to be in flight to the mountains with federal troops in hot pursuit.

The report of Madero's capture reached here today from Eagle Pass, Texas.

Uneasiness as to the situation in southern Mexico, whence no dispatches had been received for thirty-six hours was dispelled shortly after midnight when belated official reports arrived from points in Yucatan and other states saying that the situation there was tranquil; that but little trouble had occurred at any point and that this situation had been incited by rumors of revolutionary successes in the north. No troops have been sent south as the local officials report that they will be able to deal with the situation.

Though the government has the revolution well in hand today there is an element of uncertainty as to what effect the aftermath will be. Madero's proclamation of a provisional government with himself as the president and his exhortation not to molest Americans has caused fear of international complications. The government believes that it is really Madero's purpose to invite attacks on Americans for which the Diaz regime will be held responsible.

Either with or without Madero at their head the revolutionists are well equipped for guerrilla warfare and probably will be able to withstand federal attacks in their mountain fastnesses for months.

The fact is well recognized here that foreigners are in desperate danger in Mexico. The revolutionists, baffled in their plans to overthrow Diaz, will attack American and British subjects. Correspondents for English newspapers yesterday wired cable dispatches declaring that the plight of foreigners was serious and

WHY PRESIDENT AND CABINET ARE THANKFUL.

Washington, Nov. 24—That President Taft and his cabinet are thankful today is evident from the following expressions made by them explaining the reason for their thanks:

President Taft: The records of population and harvests, which are the index of progress show vigorous national growth.

Secretary of the Treasury MacVeagh: We are a nation which publicly recognizes its obligations.

Secretary of the Navy Meyer: The nation has constantly advanced toward the attainment of the ideals set forth by the founders of the republic.

Attorney General Wickersham: There is a quickened sense of responsibility, very noticeable in those who have power to effect the welfare of their fellow men.

Secretary of Agriculture Wilson: Through the progress of education the younger generation of American farmers is learning more about the capacity of the soil and the methods of cultivation.

William Lewis, whom the police believe can clear up New York's latest trunk mystery and the trunk in which the body of the victim was found. The discovery was made by James Meagher, 450 West 54th Street, as he was moving the trunk about in his coal bin. According to Meagher the trunk was owned by William Lewis, a waiter who used to board with him. Meagher says that Lewis became irregular in his payments, and when he went away about five years ago, he left his trunk, which he explained contained statuary and works of art. When going through the bin the other day, Meagher decided to open the trunk and reimburse himself for the unpaid board bill. Upon lifting the lid he found a zinc case between the side of which and the trunk was plaster paris so that the contents were air proof. The police were called and upon opening this interior case the body of a man was found in an almost perfect state of preservation. Through two newspapers found with the body it is estimated that the man was murdered eight and a half years ago.

English consular agents were advised today by their government to use every means in their power to protect British subjects.

Enrique Creel, minister of foreign affairs, today notified representatives of the foreign governments that the federal troops will be able to handle the situation without difficulty but this did not dispel the uneasiness. The use of the telegraph wires was granted freely to newspaper correspondents today after a lapse of sixty hours. During that time the newspaper men were allowed only fragmentary dispatches, because of the vast amount of government business transacted. The wires are now working through from here to El Paso. They bring news of hundreds of arrests, indeed it is believed that there are fully 5,000 prisoners in Mexican prisons today. Many of these will be executed for treason.

When the capture of Madero is confined he will be brought to Mexico City. There is little doubt that he will be executed, though he will be given a fair trial.

Aside from the fighting reported at Torreon last night, everything was reported quiet throughout Chihuahua and Durango in northern Mexico. Sonora and Sinaloa have had no disturbances that could be characterized as revolutionary uprisings, and northern Mexico was reported in complete control of federal troops and officials all night, with the tension of uneasiness very light. The fighting at Torreon was in the foothills about the town and the Mexican officials characterize that as "a brush with brigands trying to loot and rob."

Fifteen are reported killed in and around the town of Torreon. Elsewhere all is reported quiet since the federal troops drove the revolutionists from Gomez-Palacio, Parral, Madero, and other localities where there was trouble. Many prisoners have been taken and locked up in the jails throughout these districts.

(Special to The Times.)
Richmond, Va., Nov. 24—What will probably be the largest football game ever pulled off between two ancient football rivals, the University of North Carolina and the University of Virginia, will be pulled off at the Broad street park this afternoon at three o'clock. The city is crowded with visitors. The colors of the rival institutions are flaunting everywhere, and the principal streets and hotels are filled with the lively youth of the two universities who are making the air resound with the yells of the colleges, while gathered in groups the older alumni discuss the merits of the two teams, and figure just how victory will be won.

The Virginia supporters are in a majority here, but there are thousands of supporters of the blue and white who are wearing their presence known by their yells, their ribbons and banners.

The vendors of chrysanthemums are having a rich time. The Tarheels are wearing great white chrysanthemums, while the Virginia supporters are adorned with the yellow ones.

Shortly after noon the crowd begins its march towards the Broad street park and it is freely predicted that when the game begins at 3 o'clock there will be the biggest football crowd ever gathered in Richmond. The Carolina rosters occupy one side of the field while the Virginia flowers are banked on the other; the rival yells float across the field as the two teams are warming up for the fray.

The Carolina squad of twenty men has been practicing at Williamsburg, Va., since Monday, and the coaches announced this morning that the team was ready and expect to win a hard game this afternoon. They would make no prediction for the score, saying that they realized they were going to have a hard fight, but there is no question of their confidence in the outcome. There is no question but that the Tarheels are in much better shape than ever before this season, and those who have witnessed the work during the past few days say that the improvement the team has made has been remarkable, and that it will be a beautiful working machine that faces Virginia today.

The Virginia squad arrived here today from Ashland where it has been training, and the coaches express great confidence in the outcome, though they (Continued on Page Eight.)

Lawyer a Suicide.
(By Leased Wire to The Times.)
Toledo, O., Nov. 24—John A. Dunn, one of the most prominent criminal lawyers of northwestern Ohio, committed suicide at his home here early this morning by drinking carbolic acid.

Senator Eugene N. Travis, (above) of Brooklyn, N. Y., who testified that he was offered a $100,000 bribe to vote against the anti-trace track bills in Albany, N. Y., during the session of 1908, and former Senator Frank J. Gardner, who has been indicted on the charges of Senator Folker of offering bribes, and who, according to Senator Travis, confirmed the offer over the telephone made to him by a go-between. There was great excitement in the afternoon chamber of New York City Hall, where the Legislative Grant Inquiry Committee was sitting when Senator Travis told, as if rehearsing a by no means extraordinary story, the history of this gigantic bribe. He stated that he was approached by a man at Albany and offered an enormous sum which amount was afterwards confirmed by Senator Gardner.

DOWN IN NORFOLK TOWN

Carolina "Aggies" and Virginia "Polys" in Battle Royal

Norfolk Filled With "Downsiders"—Today—Weather Fine and the Crowd Unusually Large—The Reds Are Confident of Victory—The Teals Are a Storm Roller.

(Special to The Times.)
Norfolk, Va., Nov. 24—With ideal weather, thousands of football fans, and the city in holiday attire, today promises to be the hottest one of the greatest football games ever played in this city, when the strong teams from the North Carolina A. & M. and Virginia V. P. I. meet at Lafayette field this afternoon to battle for championship honors.

Yesterday the invasion of Norfolk by Tar Heels began and every incoming train has been loaded until this morning, when the spectators arrived adding its thousands. A stranger would hardly know that the city is in Virginia today, because of the number of North Carolinians.

The crowds are marching through the principal streets singing and giving college yells. The student body of both institutions, accompanied by their bands, are parading, and on every hand the best of spirit prevailed.

The red and white of A. & M. is as much in evidence as the colors of V. P. I., and the support of the two teams this afternoon will be about equal.

V. P. I. seems to be a slight favorite, though the A. & M. backers are just as confident, and many old-timers predict that, barring the unexpected, this afternoon's game will be one of the hardest fought ever pulled off in this city.

The A. & M. team has not suffered defeat this year and has played such teams as Georgetown and Villanova to a standstill. Coach Green said to

REBELLION BREAKS OUT IN BRAZIL NAVY

Mutineers Capture Three Vessels and Train Guns On Rio Janeiro

SCORES WERE KILLED

Three of Brazil's New Battleships Fall Into the Hands of Revolutionists After Terrific Battle in Which Scores Were Killed—Conflict Started at Noon Yesterday—Entire Brazilian Fleet in the Harbor at the Time, But Made No Attempt to Stop the Fighting—Peace Conference Being Held—Paris Reports Deny Story of Revolt.

(By Cable to The Times.)
Buenos Ayres, Nov. 24—All dispatches arriving from Rio Janeiro today were censored, but enough was gleaned from them to indicate that three vessels of the Brazilian navy have been captured by the revolutionists after a terrific battle in which scores were killed.

The Minas Geraes and the Sao Paulo, brand new battleships, are in the hands of mutineers and it is reported that they have begun to shell the city, that the government censor has blue-penciled the dispatches to indicate that the government will shortly be in complete control.

The third vessel captured is not named, but is understood to be one of the latest cruisers constructed for Brazil.

The Sao Paulo recently brought President Fonseca back from Lisbon, where he witnessed the naval mutiny that resulted in the overthrow of King Manuel and the Portuguese government.

Desperate fighting is reported to have taken place on the Minas Geraes. The signal for mutiny was given on that vessel at noon yesterday and a conflict immediately ensued. The officers of the vessel were taken by surprise, but fought bravely at the head of 90 men to remain loyal. The battle raged for an hour and then the loyal sailors yielded to the 250 mutineers who had killed the ship's captain in the first few minutes of fighting. The other officers were seized and locked in their cabins.

By this time a conflict was raging on the Sao Paulo but this ceased when the mutineers on the Minas Geraes trained their guns on her sister ship and called upon the loyalists to surrender. The cruiser was the next to yield under the frowning guns.

The entire Brazilian fleet was in the harbor at the time the mutiny broke out, but no further effort was made to curb the mutiny. Peace overtures were made by representatives of the government and at the (Continued on Page Six.)
