Most Revolting Case Against J. W. Napier

The Showman Abducted Bessie McClellan in Baltimore—Arrested in Charlotte Upon the Serious Charge—Sensational Trial to be Held in Federal Court at Greensboro—Other Cases Against Him—State Highway.

(Special to The Times.)
Charlotte, N. C., Dec. 1.—A United States deputy marshal left the city last evening for Greensboro, taking with him Bessie McClellan, the young and pretty Baltimore girl who will be the principal witness against the showman, J. W. Napier, apprehended in Charlotte during the Mecklenburg fair in October, Napier having brought the girl and a companion here as members of one of several shows which he controlled.

The stories related by Bessie McClellan are declared by secret service men to be extremely revolting, as showing the depravity of the prisoner Napier, as the young girls allege, and the trial, which will be held in Greensboro next week, in federal court, promises to be a sensational affair.

This case is noteworthy as it is the first of its kind to come about in this territory, in which the recently enacted "white slave" law is being enforced. Napier is charged with a violation of this law, and also with using the United States mails to carry out a scheme to defraud by ordering genuine diamonds, which he inspected, replaced with bogus articles, so it is alleged, and returned the package, saying that the goods did not quite meet his approval. His bond is fixed at $5,000 and the future appears to hold little in store for him that is promising or encouraging, should he be found guilty of the allegations lodged against him.

A meeting of leading men of the state interested in the Charlotte-Wilmington and the Salisbury-Asheville state highways, was held in this city Tuesday evening, being attended by a most representative body of men.

The plan has assumed larger proportions through the suggestion that the two movements unite and work for a highway from the sea to the mountains, there being only about thirty miles, north of Charlotte, that has yet to be surveyed to complete this greater design. The meeting will take steps to secure all possible aid from the state and individual aid. The Greater Charlotte Club is responsible for this meeting and there is now sound reason for believing that the plan will be successful.

and invited them to be at home in her midst.
The people have opened wide their homes and during Tuesday and Wednesday morning the members and delegates were gathered—a jolly crowd, glad to greet each other again, shake hands and hear how the year's work has gone. From these annual meetings the members gather inspiration for a fresh year's work and go back wonderfully renewed for whatever work the conference may see fit to give them.
Of course there is a little spirit of uneasiness and suspense among some until Monday morning comes and the appointments are read out. But all have faith in the wisdom of the conference. As one was heard to express it, "If I'm changed it won't take long

GO RIGHT AT IT.

Friends and Neighbors in Raleigh Will Show You How.

Get at the root of the trouble. Rubbing an aching back may relieve it, but it won't cure it. You must reach the root of it—the kidneys. Doan's Kidney Pills go right at it; reach the cause; relieve the pain. They cure, too, so Raleigh people say.

Mrs. Virginia Walden, 305 S. Person St., Raleigh, N. C., says: "Doan's Kidney Pills afforded me prompt relief when I was suffering from kidney trouble and it gives me pleasure to endorse them. I was bothered a great deal by dull, nagging backaches and pains in my kidneys. The kidney secretions were also a source of annoyance, being too frequent in passage. I read so much in favor of Doan's Kidney Pills that I was induced to try them, procuring a supply from the Bobbitt-Wynne Drug Co. They benefited me in every way, giving me renewed strength and energy and disposing of the backache and kidney weakness. I can now attend to my housework without the least inconvenience. I attribute my cure entirely to the use of Doan's Kidney Pills."

to move, in words of the immortal Sam Jones, 'to move blacking brush and dog' and I haven't even a dog." Presiding over the conference is Bishop Eugene R. Hendrix, of Kansas City, Mo., next to Bishop Wilson as senior bishop. The bishop is of splendid and commanding presence and is presiding over the sessions with wonderful tact and ease. The work is dispatched quickly and smoothly, yet without any undue haste and at the same time keeping the work well up so that an early adjournment Monday is promised from the present indications. There are no afternoon meetings, only committee meetings.

Bishop Hendrix has presided over the North Carolina Conference only once before, in 1899. He is a man of great wealth, inherited from his father and is a striking example of what wealth properly used, culture and deep concentration can make of a man. He is also an author of a good deal of note. When a young man he accompanied Bishop Marvin in his journey around the world. He is famous in the press, acknowledging the debt the church owes the press and makes it a comparatively easy matter to report his conferences.

The Fallen Apostle.

At the morning sessions the bishop proposes to deliver a series of talks on "Shrunken Ideals."

At the opening meeting Wednesday morning he spoke of Judas the fallen apostle. It was a masterly and beautiful sermon.

In that last hour before the last supper we see Judas revealed. By comparison with the other disciples we better understand his character. He was so sensitive his own brethren did not understand him.

There was the making of John in Judas, he had the enthusiasm, the capacity. The Lord recognized his possibilities and would have done all he could that last hour to make him one of the twelve. But he stood revealed, exposed as a man of shrunken ideals. But at the beginning what possibilities of good he had. It is true of every man. The indifference in men is the difference in the ideal. Judas started as zealous, eager to succeed, with the same capacity and possibilities as any.

We know him by two sentences uttered in the last week of his life, when he unwittingly revealed himself. He followed at the last to make the most of the week, selling his Lord for the price of a shawl.

Christ would have saved him at the end. The great sin lay in the choice of evil in the presence of good. When he saw himself revealed life was unendurable and there is no wonder he hung himself.

Bishop Hendrix exhibited a piece for which Judas betrayed Christ with the inscription "Jerusalem the Holy."

There was remorse but no repentance. There was no tears to put out the fires of remorse.

There is something touching in that before the last supper Christ would have saved Judas of the shrunken ideals. He gathers his own about him and goes out to die for the world, but Judas, unloved of woman, with none to cherish appears in history as a frightful example of a shrunken ideal.

Communion Service.

Immediately after the bishop's address the communion service was celebrated and it was one of the most beautiful services ever held.

After giving the sacrament to the presiding elders, the supernumerary and supernumerary preachers were asked to come, there kneeling only three, Uncle Betts, Uncle Thomas and Mr. R. W. Townsend at the altar. Following these the undergraduates, the ministers of the different classes, the ministers' wives, the lay delegates and members of the conference went to the communion. It was all managed so smoothly and for each altar full the bishop had some different word, some individual message. Especially to minister's wives his words were especially touching, moving almost all of the men in the church to tears.

In answering the honor roll Uncle W. C. Thomas and Uncle A. D. Betts, made touching remarks.

President Few's Address.

During the morning session President Few, of Trinity was presented and addressed the conference. In this his first appearance before this body as a representative of Trinity, he made a distinct impression on all who heard him. He spoke of the fundamental ideas of education, the idea of developing and making and fortifying character. Men need not only training, the complete perfecting of themselves, but moral readjustment.

You can't use force in education, can only do the best possible to make those ideals prevail. This dominating ideal of Trinity should be what the college is to be judged by.

President Few asked the cooperation and help of the conference and hoped to all a great high minded college ought to do.

Bishop Strange, of the diocese of Eastern Carolina was presented to the conference and invited to a seat in the pulpit. Bishop Strange made a few appropriate remarks saying that in his opinion the Methodists circuit rider was one of the greatest factors in civilization. The mother church has learned something from the missionary spirit of the Methodist church, while the Methodist church is learning something from the educational point of the mother church.

Bishop Hendrix said it gave him particular pleasure to welcome Bishop Strange. Bishop Hendrix announced that he was president of the great federation council of the Churches of Christ in this country.

He also welcomed the pastor of the Episcopal church here, Brother Smith. He belonged, said the bishop, to a family who smoothed things, the blacksmith, a smoother of iron, the goldsmith, a smoother of gold and Smith a smoother of everything.

In addition to the great federation council, annual meetings are proposed to be held in every state thus doing better work in federation than in separation, seeing that every part of the commonwealth is reached by theospel, looking toward better divorce laws, racing and betting, etc. He suggested that there be appointed from the conference, as a nominating committee for representatives in the federation in the churches.
He later appointed Dr. T. N. Ivey,

The Right Medicine

For weak women, who suffer from women's ills, there is a certain, standard medicine of proven merit—CARDUI, the woman's tonic. This great medicine has been helping sick women for more than half a century, and has come to be recognized as the standard, successful remedy for woman's troubles.

Letters reach us from all over the country, from women who have used CARDUI. Note this letter from Mrs. Nellie Duncan, 1917 So. 11th St., St. Joseph, Mo. She writes: "If it will help some other woman, I am glad to send you my testimony about CARDUI. I had never been well since I came to womanhood, and suffered with female trouble until I could scarcely get around. Four bottles of CARDUI have done me more good than $25.00 of doctoring. I feel fine and don't have that awful pain in my head and side. I can't praise the CARDUI Home Treatment enough."

CARDUI is a specific medicine for women's ills. It is a strengthening tonic for weak, worn-out women. Try it and get well and strong. At all druggists.

Would Raise Prices

the unjust disparity in the amount of the increases on the two classes.

The result of the proposed readjustment of rates, said Judge Cowan would be higher prices for meat all over the country. Especially would this be true of the east, he said, where no slaughtering would be done. All livestock would have to be dressed near the section in which it is raised and this would confine the packing house business to Chicago and the Missouri river territory.

This would also mean lower prices for stock, to the growers, said the witness. With the eastern competition destroyed, the western packers would be in a better position than now to control livestock prices.

A few other witnesses were heard during the morning and at 11 o'clock the commission announced that no more testimony would be heard. Announcement was made that the oral arguments in both the eastern and western cases would be heard on January 9, and that briefs must be filed until January 1.

THOUGHT TO BE LENEVE GIRL.

And Held Up By Immigration Authorities Until She Proves Her Identity.

(By Leased Wire to the Times.)

New York, Dec. 1.—Because of her striking resemblance to Ethel Clare LeNeve, and the additional fact that she was without sufficient funds, Mrs. George Bunce, the wife of an English theatrical agent, was detained today by the immigration authorities upon the arrival of the liner Majestic.

Mrs. Bunce was registered under the name of Miss Elizabeth McNaughton, which is her maiden name.

Mrs. Bunce explained that she was a sister of Tom McNaughton, a vaudeville actor, who is the husband of Alice Lloyd, an English singer. She said that Pat Casey, a vaudeville agent, would meet her and furnish her with funds to journey to Spokane.

As soon as he appears, and the money is forthcoming, Mrs. Bunce will be released.
