Mr. Koonce of Onslow is still after insurance companies, but whether he is easing up or letting himself out is a question that the interpretation of his new bill today hardly answers. This bill is designed to make fire insurance companies amenable to the anti-trust law of the state, which some say is not an application at all.

The general fish bill, providing for a state fisheries commission, and recommended by the committee appointed at the last session to look into the matter, was introduced by Mr. Doughton.

Mr. Turlington's bill to prohibit state officers and employes and representatives in congress from the state from accepting fees for the prosecution of cases against the state passed the house, much to the surprise of some members.

After the bill had passed third reading Mr. Connor of Wilson moved reconsideration on the ground that it was a dangerous precedent to make one man the heir of another without further light on the subject. Mr. Coxe of Anson explained that he had offered the bill at the request of E. A. Covington, who is in full possession of his faculties, and read a letter from his attorney vouching for the bill. The motion to reconsider carried, and the bill went back upon the calendar and was referred.
