WHY LINGER HERE BELOW?

You may talk about your golf links. The hazards where you've lain; But for unsurpassed excitement Go seek the aeroplane.

You may rave about your motors. The speed with which they "note"; But no law can now arrest you As in the air you float.

You may diagnose this morning. The Bridge hands held last night; But grand slams or all five honors Look pale beside a flight.

You may shoot with gun or rifle. At targets in the air; The aero-bird above you, for A twelve gauge feels no care.

You may love the horseback riding. The pursuit of the quail; But if you want some real live sport Go up and have a fall.

Take my advice, this planet leaves— Why linger here below? The most exciting thing on earth Up in the air seems slow!

EASTER SUNDAY IN RALEIGH.

The Weather Perfect and the Easter Services Attended by Large Congregations.

The weather man telephoned after all and gave us as perfect an Easter day as any one could desire yesterday. We must have known the de-fading signs with which the Raleigh maidens greeted the dawn on all day Saturday and the beautiful glasses that were set many times at the new Easter banquet and dices.

When Easter morning dawned however it was in a burst of sunlight that did the Easter maiden's work. What mattered it if the wind was keen during the morning it became delightfully warm later in the day and the streets were gay with the new spring frocks and bonnets and the new Easter suits. By the time the morning service was over at the churches the fashion parade was on in full swing.

But Easter was observed in another and a truer sense in the city churches, beautiful services being held in all of them. Pulpits and altars were fragrant with spring flowers while the deep tones of organs, the appealing notes of violins and the sound of many voices united in making glad the day.

The Easter story was told from the various pulpits in sermons of eloquence and power.

Perhaps the most beautiful of the Easter services were those of the children held in the Sunday schools. The little folks entered heartily into the occasion bringing their notes to add to the Easter offerings.

The offering, taken on various phases of church work were large in all the churches for the beautiful weather brought out large congregations.

Wake County Man Among Four Granted Pardons

Lee Wadford, convicted of stealing 10 Given Another Chance—Durham Man, J. W. Carlton Given His Liberty.

Governor Kitchen today granted four conditional pardons and commuted the sentence of two other prisoners. Those pardoned were Tom Simmons of Buncombe county, Jesse Barlow, J. H. Myman and J. H. Carlton. The two men receiving commutations were Lee Wadford, of Wake county, and Henry Logan, of Stanly county. The governor gives reasons for his actions as follows:

These Given Pardons. Tom Simmons, November Term, 1909, Buncombe county; crime, manslaughter; sentence, seven years on roads. Three reputable physicians, including the county physician, state that prisoner is in the last stage of tuberculosis. The county physician states that his condition has grown steadily worse since his imprisonment and that the indications are that he cannot live a great while in confinement, and he strongly recommended pardon. He is in jail. The grand jury has recommended that he be removed from jail. The trial judge, a judge holding a subsequent court, the solicitor, the attorney general, the county commissioners and many others recommended his pardon. I pardon him on condition that he remain law abiding and of good behavior.

Jesse Barlow and J. R. Hyman, Martin county, March Term, 1910, crime, burning storehouse; sentence, two and four years state's prison. Prisoners have served twelve months. The evidence was circumstantial. The offense was an attempt to burn a barber shop. The judge in recommending the pardon states that there was only more than a scintilla of evidence against one of the prisoners. The only witness to show the conspiracy was a twelve year old negro boy who swore he heard prisoners making their plot on the Monday morning before the fire. Since the trial it has been conclusively shown, as I think, that at that time one of the prisoners was not in the county; advocates of several men, whose characters are shown to be good, being filed showing this prisoner was elsewhere at that time, one of the affidavits show such prisoner was with him and was paid off for certain work. The attorney employed by the state insurance commissioner, who presented in the absence of the solicitor, also strongly recommends a conditional pardon. Pardon on condition that they remain law abiding and of good behavior.

J. W. Carlton, August Term, 1910, Durham county; crime, larceny; sentence, twelve months on roads. Prisoner bought stolen goods, knowing them to have been stolen. He has now served about two-thirds of his sentence. Prisoner suffers from sciatia. His physical condition is bad. A reputable physician says that his sciatia and lumbago render him unfit for work, and further states that longer confinement will seriously and permanently impair his health, it being doubtful whether he can survive the service of his full sentence. The county physician, the members of the county board of commissioners, and many other citizens request his pardon. The judge and the solicitor also recommend pardon on account of his physical condition. Pardon on condition that he remain law abiding and of good behavior.

Commutations. Lee Wadford, Wake county, September term, 1910; crime, forcible trespass; sentence, one to three years on county roads; commuted to eight months. Prisoner a boy then under sixteen years of age pleaded guilty of forcible trespass in taking $10.00 of his sister's money. He has served seven months. Many citizens ask for his pardon. The solicitor thinks the sentence should be commuted on condition of good behavior. The citizens think he would not have taken anybody else's money, and his sister and her husband ask for clemency in his behalf. He is described as small for his age and weak bodily and mentally. The court had no power to enter a conditional judgment to restrain him afterwards. Under the circumstances, I commute his sentence to eight months on condition that he remain law abiding and of good behavior.

Henry Logan, Stanly county, March 7th, 1911, recorder's court; crime, carrying concealed weapon; sentence, three months on roads; commuted to $10.00 fine and costs. Prisoner has served a portion of his sentence. The chief of police, and the attorney representing the town of Albemarle who prosecuted the case, both recommend commutation. The attorney writes that after finding out more about this darkey and his character, and considering the assistance he rendered the prosecution in bringing up some blind tigers, he thinks the remainder of his sentence should be changed to a fine. I there-

HANDSOME GIFT OF STATUARY.

The Triangular Debate and Other High School News of Interest.

The Raleigh High School has been presented with a very handsome gift of statuary and pedestal the gift of three very public spirited men, Dr. Geo. W. Lay, rector of St. Mary's and Dr. Albert Anderson.

Triangular Debate.

Next Friday night will be one of the most important occasions of the year in the high school. It is then that the triangular debate between Raleigh, Greensboro and Charlotte takes place.

The subject is Resolved: That baring constitutional objections the federal government should levy a graduated tax on incomes from whatever source derived.

The Raleigh High School has an enviable reputation to sustain having lost only one debate, that last year with Greensboro. This will make the debate here of special interest for the boys who will doubt be well matched as Greensboro is said to be sending for two strongest debaters here.

The Raleigh boys have been well trained especially in presenting their arguments in logical order and have one main thought running through the whole debate. It is insisted on that their debates be simple and direct with no flights of oratory. This training will be invaluable to the boys in after life.

The Easter holidays have been spent by the janitors at all the schools in general spring cleaning. The schools have been scrubbed and dusted and generally overhauled. The doors have been oiled so as to keep down the dust the greatest disease spreader in the schools. This is what Mr. Harper is making such a light against and finds the old boys helpful.

For all the news from everywhere all the time, read The Raleigh Daily Times.
