The house made short work of the Bristow amendment to the direct election of senators resolution. The Bristow amendment would place the election of senators under federal control. The house by a vote of 172 to 112 killed the amendment. The vote was almost a strict party one.

Recorder Smith, of Charlotte, is giving the big blind tigers some hard licks. Two "social clubs" have recently been put out of business, their licenses revoked, and heavy fines imposed. So much attention, generally, has been paid to the little fellows that the big ones have grown bold. They seemed to think that they were not to be molested. A few more lessons like those Recorder Smith is giving are needed. They will soon learn under treatment of this kind, that they, too, must obey the law.

The meeting of the doctors in Charlotte has recalled to the Charlotte News the noted doctors' banquet held in that city. And the News laments, and doubtless the doctors did also, that another such banquet could not be held, because the wherewithal could not be obtained so easily. This is the first meeting of the doctors in Charlotte since that time of pleasant memory. In this time of drought the doctors probably are moved to think that that was a time of prodigality and waste. Even a small amount of that "banquet" would have looked large at this time.

The state health officers, including all the county and city physicians, have organized the North Carolina Health Officers' Association. This organization ought to result in much good to the state. Closer organization of these physicians in the interest of the public health will mean better enforcement of health laws and better laws, if those we have are not sufficient. They have been giving good service, but their course in organizing shows that they are determined to give better service in the future, and they should have hearty co-operation in all their efforts for the health of the general public.

THE ROOT AMENDMENT.

A good characterization of the Root amendment is made by Charity and Children. Of the amendment this paper says:

By a vote of 6 to 3 in the committee in the senate having the reciprocity bill in charge, print paper was taken off the free list. And if the amendment is adopted the paper trust will enjoy the monopoly that has already made them rich from the common profits they are making off the newspaper publishers of this country. In order to see exactly what this Root amendment will do for the country the tax the paper trust will collect out of Charity and Children alone will probably be in the neighborhood of $500 a year. And this money will not go toward the support of the government or to relieve the necessities of the poor, but it will go directly into the hands of a grasping set of pirates as ever plundered a ship on the high seas. Of course the senators who vote for this privilege tax for grand rascals will have every kind of explanation to offer, but they will be explanations that do not explain. We hope the North Carolina Press Association will take this matter up at its meeting in Lenoir and shed some light upon it for the benefit of the people who are not informed upon the matter. Nobody should object to paying a reasonable tax for the support of the government, and the newspapers would be the last to complain at such a tax, but we do protest against this hold-up by a band of blood-suckers who have somehow secured the favor of a majority of the committee in the senate, whose duty it is to report the reciprocity bill.

The print paper trust, together with the lumber trust, has been flooding the country with literature, purporting to come from farmers' organizations, in an effort to manufacture sentiment against reciprocity. And some of our North Carolina delegation in congress took the bait and have been making the same cry, that reciprocity would hurt the farmer. We must confess, however, that these gentlemen have been rather quiet since the exposure by the congressional committee of the New York "lawyers" who have been sending out farmers' literature and who were paid for their services by the lumber and paper interests.

"BACK HOME" MOVEMENT.

W. D. Roberts Off on Tour for Railroads Interested.

Asheville, N. C., June 22.—W. D. Roberts, of Johnson City, Tenn., the secretary of the "Back Home" movement, is in Asheville today on a trip through this section for the purpose of addressing the boards of trade of the towns in western North Carolina and some of the towns in South Carolina. After speaking to the directors of the board of trade here tonight Mr. Roberts will go to Marion and from there to Spartanburg, and after which he will speak at Rock Hill, S. C., Hickory and Lenoir. Mr. Roberts is now the industrial agent of the C. C. & O. Railroad, but it is his intention to devote all his time to the "Back Home" movement at an early date. The railroads which are now interested in the movement are the C. C. & O., the N. & W., C. & W. N., C. & O., and the A. W. P., which has headquarters in Atlanta.

Mr. Roberts stated that the following boards of trade are now co-operating with him: In Virginia, Lynchburg, Suffolk, Norton; in North Carolina, Winston-Salem, Raleigh, Greensboro, Hickory, Lenoir; in South Carolina, Spartanburg, Rock Hill, Camden, Charleston, Greenville; in Georgia, in Alabama, Montgomery, Anniston; in Tennessee, Nashville, Johnson City, Memphis; in Mississippi, Columbus, Natchez.

Mr. Roberts stated that these boards of trade were sending in the names of people who have gone from the south to the west and that he is now receiving about fifteen names daily of people chiefly in the far west, that the Greensboro board of trade has recently sent over 350 names of people west of the Ohio river; the Winston-Salem board has sent over 1,000 in the past three months.

He further stated: "We have records of over fifty people who have come back here in the past six months, and there are several thousand more who are preparing to come as soon as they can dispose of their property. We have private advices that there are more than 50,000 idle men in Washington, Oregon and California drawn there by low rates. "It has been the experience of the railroads mentioned that out of every 100 inquiries received ninety-five have been for farm lands and a good proportion of this for fruit lands. This movement is interesting people from all parts of the world. Letters have been received from north west Canada, from Massachusetts, some of people who have never been in the south. This movement has brought more inquiries than the paid advertising of these railroads. "We are striving to reach every person in the west who has gone from the south and it is estimated that there are about 2,500,000."

PROCEEDINGS AGAINST MR. W. E. WORTH.

Case Originating Out of Knickerbocker Trust Company Suit. (Special to The Times.)

Wilmington, N. C., June 22.—A hearing in supplementary proceedings against Mr. W. E. Worth was started yesterday morning before John D. Bellamy, Jr., Esq., who has been appointed referee to take the evidence in the matter. This hearing results from the recent issuance of execution against Mr. Worth for the collection of a judgment of slightly more than $22,000, as rendered against him in the United States court several weeks ago. The judgment was in the suit of the Knickerbocker Trust Company, of New York against Mr. Worth and was to enforce the collection of subscriptions for stock in the Rockingham Power Company to that amount, the finances having been provided by the Knickerbocker Company. When the case was tried in the United States court, Mr. Worth resisted the action on the ground of fraud. However, he failed to show this and judgment for the full amount sued for was granted against him. The execution papers were issued several weeks ago.

It is stated that Mr. Worth claims to be insolvent. The purpose of the supplementary proceedings is to ascertain, what property, if any, he may be possessed of at the present time; in order that the execution may be enforced. In the proceedings, the Knickerbocker Company is represented by Thomas W. Davis, Esq., of the firm of Davis & Davis, and Mr. Worth is represented by E. K. Ryan, Esq., and John D. Bellamy, Esq.

ESCAPE FROM ROADS.

Negro Sent Up for Four Years Now Free—Veterans Getting Busy for Entertainment—Crazy Woman's Rash Deeds. (Special to The Times.)

Wilmington, N. C., June 22.—Alonzo Green, a negro who was sent to the county roads last April to serve a term of four years, (the sentence having been imposed in the superior court), made his escape from the county chain gang Monday morning. In spite of determined efforts to recapture him, he has not been located as yet. He was trailed to the north of the city Monday afternoon. Several shots were fired at him but he managed to elude his pursuers. It is believed that Green made his escape into Brunswick county. He is going toward the bridge across North East branch of the Cape Fear river when he was last seen.

News of the escape of Green from the chain gang reached the city Tuesday afternoon, the matter having been kept quiet Monday in the hope that the man could be captured. Green escaped from the road force while working with other convicts unloading cars just below the National cemetery on the Market street road.

Cape Fear Camp, United Confederate Veterans is working vigorously upon plans for the entertainment of the state organization of Confederate veterans, when the members come here for the annual convention the first week in August. It is expected that there will be fully two thousand members in attendance. A general committee to provide homes and boards for the visitors has been appointed. These committees are already busily engaged in carrying out their plans. The members of the committee have been asked to make report daily of their work to Captain W. P. Oldham, the chairman. He, in turn, will submit the reports to Mr. Leon, the adjutant, and the latter will make assignments of hotels and boarding houses to the visitors. Those who will charge for entertaining the visitors are asked to submit their prices, etc., to the committee so that all financial arrangements may be made.

Mary Smith, a negro woman adjudged insane, and who created all sorts of excitement on two different occasions last week when she resisted being carried to the county jail, reached the climax of her performances Tuesday when she kicked Jailer G. W. Branch in the eye, nearly putting the member out of commission. The jailer was entering the cell with food for the woman when she landed on his optic member with one or her feet, inflicting a most painful injury. The eye is bruised and swollen today and has given Mr. Branch considerable pain. The woman will be sent to the hospital at Goldsboro this afternoon. In the meantime there is no telling what manner of performance she may pull off to serve as a concluding chapter in her history of adventures.

Press Comment.

Good Fortune, a Companion of Democracy.

Notwithstanding the certainty of President Taft's renomination by the republican convention in 1912, and notwithstanding the defection of five of the thirteen insurgent senators Senator Robert M. La Follette will be a candidate for the presidency, unless there are unexpected developments in the next few weeks. With this split threatened in the republican party, it would seem that good fortune is determined to be the constant and faithful companion of the democratic party. La Follette and his political backers can not possibly hope to secure the republican nomination in 1912. The best they can hope for is a strong demonstration in the convention, the defeat of Taft in the general election and La Follette as a formidable candidate in 1916. The La Follette boom, after several serious disappointments, is semi-officially announced to be launched in the next two weeks. The preliminaries are now being pulled off. The magazine supporters of La Follette are zealously advertising him this month with special articles, and the energetic press bureau which has served the insurgents for the past three years from Washington is now sending out La Follette matter to every paper likely to use it.

The plan was to launch the boom sometime ago, but events overruled expectation. In the first place the progressives of Chicago took charge of the republican party and ran professor Merriam for mayor against Carter Harrison. The venture was notified that their services were not needed. Members of the Taft cabinet were politically told, when they volunteered to speak in Chicago for the republican candidate, that they might as well stay in Washington. Governor Deneen, a regular republican went to Chicago with a speech in his grip for Merriam but he was told that he might embarrass the campaign which the insurgents were conducting. It has developed that the insurgents were confidently expecting to win and that they had plans laid in advance, after a victory in Chicago, to assume charge of the party machinery in Illinois and turn the delegation over to La Follette.

But the same thing was in store for the insurgents that they received in Ohio and New York, an overwhelming defeat. La Follette had reasons to expect the hearty and loyal support of the thirteen insurgent senators, but five of these men, who had their ears to the ground, jumped the game and ran over to the Taft crowd. The remaining eight are altogether too lukewarm to please the La Follette boomers. But the Washington press bureau of the La Follette boomers, says that notwithstanding all this, La Follette will run. In five states it is pointed out, there are presidential preference laws which permit a direct vote in the primary on presidential candidates. These states are Oregon, Wisconsin, Nebraska, North Dakota and New Jersey. La Follette will see that his name goes into the primaries in those states, and if by chance, it should happen that he should receive a larger vote in these five states than Taft or any other republican, he could not only raise a row in the next republican convention, but he would have ammunition to make a fierce campaign four years later.

In the meanwhile, it looks as though fortune has only good gifts for the democratic party. Regardless of who would get the majority of the votes in the five primary states, the result would inevitably rebound to the good of the democratic candidate. Again, if La Follette should show considerable strength in the republican convention, he would leave in its wake two irreconcilable factions, a circumstance which would necessarily make for democratic encouragement.

It is far better for the democratic party that La Follette should fight Taft in the conventions and primaries than that Taft should be given a unanimous nomination by his own party.—Montgomery Advertiser.

How the Cream Was Skimmed. James H. Post, president of the National Sugar Refining Company, of New Jersey, testified before the house committee yesterday that H. O. Havemeyer received $10,000,000 in the stock of that company as a reward for organizing it. This stock has since earned $2,500,000 in dividends, and this $2,500,000 has been paid by the consumers of sugar. That is how they "shared in the economies of operation," as Wall street is accustomed to say. Judge Gary recently testified before the house committee that is investigating the steel trust that the Morgan syndicate received $125,000,000 for organizing the United States Steel Corporation, half in preferred stock and half in common. The expenses of organization were placed at $3,000,000 and the syndicate turned over $25,000,000 in cash to the corporation. The rest was profit.

This is the familiar story of trust organization. The public is smugly informed that the trust is the result of a natural and inevitably tendency toward combination. In a majority of cases the trust is the result of a shrewd promoter's seeing an opportunity for enormous personal profits. Whether it happens to be Morgan's profits on steel or Havemeyer's profits on sugar, the money comes out of the consumers' pockets.

If the intermittent and partial enforcement of the Sherman anti-trust law has accomplished nothing, the Morgans are not collecting $125,000,000 fees now for promoting a trust. Neither is any generous New Jersey corporation rewarding a Havemeyer to the extent of $10,000,000 for calling it into existence. As the enforcement of the law becomes more vigorous there will be fewer and fewer opportunities for this kind of extortion.

It would be well worth while to know just how much of the Morgan fee and just how much of the Havemeyer fee represented political power and influence over government.—New York World.

SHACKLE BETRAYS HIM.

Escaped Convict Captured With Band Around Ankle—Caught by Engineer. (Special to The Times.)

Washington, N. C., June 22.—An escaped convict from the Pasquotank county chain gang was captured at the Norfolk and Southern station early yesterday morning, after beating his way from Elizabeth City by riding the rods on one of the box cars of a through freight that passed through this city early yesterday morning. The train had stopped at this station for a few minutes and the colored man got out to stretch his limbs after his long ride in a cramped position. It seems that he happened to go up near the engine and the engineer and fireman saw an iron band around his leg which attracted their attention, and after trailing him and examining his person and found other evidences that he was an escaped convict, they immediately seized him and held him a prisoner while a phone message was turned into the sheriff's office and in a few minutes Deputy Sheriff J.

F. Lucas was on hand and escorted the prisoner to the city jail. The negro states that his name is John Watkins, about eighteen years of age and says that he escaped from the Pasquotank county chain gang several days ago. He is now being held awaiting advices from the Elizabeth city authorities, who have been notified of his arrest.
