ANOTHER SHIP FROM ITALY

Several Hundred Immigrants From Cholera Affected Districts Arrived Today

HELD AT QUARANTINE

Will Be Held for Bacteriological Examination Before Being Permitted to Land—Ship Came From Naples and Genoa, Which Places Have Furnished Most of the Imported Cases of the Disease—Satisfactory Conditions Reported at Swinburne Where the Present Cases are Being Treated.

New York, July 20.—Another ship from the cholera country anchored in quarantine today, adding several hundred to the immigrants to undergo bacteriological examinations before being permitted to land. Today's arrival was the steamer Principe Di Piedmont, from Genoa and Naples, cities which have furnished most of the cholera cases imported. She will be detained ten days. The period may be longer if it is found the crew or passengers have the disease.

Owing to the quarantine regulations recently enforced by the Italian government on immigrants before sailing, the health authorities hope the future arrivals from Mediterranean ports will afford less trouble than the Moltke and Perugia, which lie quarantined.

Satisfactory conditions are reported at Swinburne where the cases of cholera are being treated and at Hoffman Island, where the health officers are watching the 65 immigrants.

Individual Examination.

Washington, July 20.—As further guard against the importation of Asiatic cholera every Italian will be subjected to individual bacteriological examination. This order, the most drastic the government has made to protect this country against the plague, was sent to public health officers at all ports of call of immigration ships. By this method of quarantine the officials will detect cholera carriers, persons who may not have developed cholera in themselves but who would endanger others. New York state has agreed with the federal government to pay a portion of the expense of examinations at New York. Massachusetts has been asked to pay part of the cost of examinations at Boston. The local authorities at other ports have been asked to co-operate with the federal government. Cables today from public health officers in Naples report the situation in Italy unchanged.

Freight Goes Through Bridge.

Grand Junction, Col., July 20.—A wreck in which scores of persons undoubtedly would have been killed was averted when a Denver & Rio Grand freight, preceded the transcontinental express a few minutes out of Debeque yesterday. The freight broke through a bridge over which the express train was to pass a few minutes later. Four cars and the tender of the freight fell forty feet down the embankment.

COAST FALLS BEFORE INVADING FLEET

Block Island, July 20.—In the thrilling night encounter between the "Invading" fleet under rear Admiral Osterhaus and the defending vessels under Commander Eberle, the former claim to have penetrated the defense line. As result New York and Boston are at the mercy of an armed foe in theory. The "Invaders" claim the approach from the south was made with such tactical skill that none of the defense vessels were able to get through the battle line or break the "enemy's" advance. Shortly after midnight the lookouts on the armored cruiser Washington, leading the "Invaders" fleet, directed a search light on a tiny black spot in the distance. It was the torpedo boat destroyer of the defending fleet. Guns were trained on the defender and rockets discharged to signify a broadside fire. Other vessels of the defending fleet were located and theoretically destroyed.

Asheville, N. C., July 20.—The trial of Peter Kernan, which began Tuesday in the district court of the United States for the illegal manufacture and sale of oleomargarine came to an abrupt close about 11 o'clock when after the prosecution had rested the case, the attorneys for the defense announced that they would not resist a verdict of guilty in three counts, practically all the sale which consisted of selling the product without proper packing and stamping. These counts did not include the indictment for the wholesale manufacture of the product with intent to defraud the government of the tax.

The district attorney agreed to this and the jury was instructed to return a verdict of guilty in the three counts.

MARTIN DISPUTES DIXON'S HISTORY

Washington, July 20.—Senator Dixon, of Montana, a republican, and Senator Martin, of Virginia, a democrat, brought their civil war histories and encyclopedias to the Senate today to settle the question as to whether Virginia or North Carolina troops figured more prominently in Pickett's charge at Gettysburg. Dixon was born in North Carolina. He said in the Senate Tuesday that "stories were all wrong about the charge of Pickett's 'Virginians,' that there were more North Carolinians in the famous charge. Today the Senate cited histories to show Pickett's troops were Virginians. Dixon replied with articles showing they were included in fifteen North Carolina regiments. Dixon said North Carolina was "first at elthel, last at Appomattox, and furthest at Gettysburg." Martin said he thought he could say the same of Virginia Confederates.

The controversy was finally dropped when the Senate got uneasy over the threatened renewal of Civil War memories.

ONLY FIFTEEN CASES OF TYPHOID IN CITY

Although a number of reports as to the prevalence of typhoid fever in Raleigh have been circulated, an examination of the records of Health Officer W. T. Davis disclose the fact that only fifteen cases have occurred during July. General health conditions were never better. In 1909 there were two cases of typhoid fever in June and fifteen in July; in 1910 there were seven in June and twenty-four in July, and in 1911 there were seven cases in July and fifteen in July. That is considered an excellent record for a city with a population of nearly 20,000. Most of the cases have been mild.

ROCHELLE IS GUILTY BLIND TIGER CHARGE

Durham, July 20.—The jury in the famous blind tiger raid trials this afternoon returned a verdict of guilty against Leaner S. Rochelle, Brodie L. Duke's father-in-law. Rochelle relied upon an alibi to rebut the contention of the State but failed. Last night the jury was allowed to separate and great fear was expressed by the officers that some sinister influence might be brought to bear upon the triers, but when the case was resumed this morning for argument, nothing had happened. It took but a short time to reach a verdict, of the sixty tigers caught in that midnight raid three months since, but two have been acquitted. Ten are yet to be tried. There never was seen such a jury as this one, which convicts them all.

CAROLINA BEST OF ALL

At University Summer School Celebration

Miss Jordan Writes Interesting. The Fourth of July Celebration at the Summer School at the University of Virginia—North Carolina Gave Good Representation.

Miss Ara V. Jordan who is attending the University of Virginia Summer School writes the following letter to her parents, Dr. and Mrs. T. M. Jordan, describing the Fourth of July celebration there, from which we are permitted to publish the following:

There are over eleven hundred registered for the session. We had quite a gay time here yesterday. I'm sending you a program of the celebration exercises and I'll try to tell you what the "stunt" of each state was, that is, if I can remember all of them.

Virginia formed the American flags on the steps and remained there throughout the exercises given by the other states.

The District of Columbia was led by "Columbia" bearing the flag.

Dr. C. Alphonso Smith, as president Taft, followed with a judge on each side. Two girls in Kahki suits and two in the middle suits followed, representing the army and navy.

"Columbia" made a short speech which I couldn't understand.

Alabama had about twelve delegates and each one carried a banner, which had a different thing represented on it, showing some of Alabama's characteristics. They sang the State song.

Arkansas had two delegates. They were both young ladies and were dressed in traveling suits and were followed by a negro man who was loaded down with hat boxes and suit cases. He made his way across the stage so slowly and blunderingly that it was very easy to tell what the scene was to represent.

Connecticut had only one delegate, one of the instructors. She crossed the stage bearing the coat of arms and an armful of oak leaves.

There are three girls from Florida, and each carried a flag representing the three nations by which Florida has been ruled, Spain, England, United States.

There were several from Georgia. All I can recall is the little negro boy eating watermelon. He had the whole watermelon with one slice cut out.

The Marylanders, a good sized delegation wore costumes of yellow, black, red and white, the colors of their flag, which was carried by Lord Baltimore. The three state songs were also shown. They sang "Maryland, My Maryland."

Mississippi had a very pretty "stunt." They carried a big banner in red and dark blue. The ladies wore white dresses with a sash from the shoulder to the waist-line at the left on which was printed, either cotton, rope, thread, cloth or other products; each one carried some of whatever was printed on the strip. They wore big sun hats with cotton around the brims. A man pulled a little wagon with a miniature bale of cotton in it which was followed by a figure dressed in draped fashion and labeled "boll-wool," which bobbed after the bale of cotton. They also sang the State song.

Now I know you (papa) will like the New Jersey "stunt."

There is only one delegate, an instructor. He was dressed in a long tail coat and silk beaver and carried a standard on which was printed, "New Jersey. Wilson. That's all."

Now for North Carolina, which a great many people say, not the North Carolinians however, was the best of all. The girls were dressed in simple white dresses and carried a branch of long leaf pine. I'm going to bring mine home with me. Above the place where we were stationed hung the state flag, which is the one which belongs on the flag-staff at the capitol, ten feet by sixteen in size. One of the men in the delegation bore a smaller one also. In front of the stage a circle was placed which was covered with white cloth and had the words of the seal printed on it. Inside this circle there were two young ladies, one in blue, and one in yellow forming the state seal.

The rest of the delegation was on the platform. We sang "Carolina," gave the toast, "Here's to the land of the long leaf pine," and gave the song and yell, "I'm a tarheel born, I'm a starheel bred, and when (Continued on Page Six.)"

DRANK POISON TO END LIFE

Henderson Woman Distracted Over Death of Two-Year-Old Child in Goldsboro

On receiving this message the woman made every effort to leave Henderson for Goldsboro, but the people with whom she was staying had, she said, instructions to keep her until her husband returned from Seven Springs. With not a cent in her possession, in her stocking feet and with a low neck black lawn dress as a traveling suit, Mrs. Kennedy, according to her statement, made the ticket agent at Henderson provide her with a ticket to Goldsboro.

IN RALEIGH WITHOUT FUNDS

Mrs. Mary E. Kennedy, in Stocking Feet and Black Lawn Dress, Passes Through Raleigh—Taken Care Of Here—A Distressing Incident.

Distracted over the death of her two-year-old child, a woman giving her name as Mrs. Mary E. Kennedy and her address as Henderson, informed the Raleigh officers today that she had swallowed carbolic acid in the hope of ending her life. Mrs. Kennedy received a telegram from her husband at Goldsboro notifying her of the death of the child. The message, which the woman clasped in her hand, read: "Baby is dead. Come at once. L. P. Kennedy."

On receiving this message the woman made every effort to leave Henderson for Goldsboro, but the people with whom she was staying had, she said, instructions to keep her until her husband returned from Seven Springs. With not a cent in her possession, in her stocking feet and with a low neck black lawn dress as a traveling suit, Mrs. Kennedy, according to her statement, made the ticket agent at Henderson provide her with a ticket to Goldsboro.

The receipt of the telegram last night so distracted her that she swallowed carbolic acid or some other poison. With her child dead, Mrs. Kennedy had nothing for which to live, she told the officers here. Drs. Jordan and McGeachy examined the woman, and they thought the effects of the poison would not be fatal. They could not tell today what the stuff was, as it had been several hours since she had taken it.

Mrs. Kennedy staggered out of the train at 10:30 at the union station. Molly, the matron, ran to her rescue and every attention was given her. She left at 12:30 for Goldsboro.

She was a noticeable looking figure in a thin low-necked black lawn dress, bare-headed and without any shoes, dark as an Indian, with coal black hair plaited around her head and black eyes. She appeared to be about twenty-five or thirty years of age.

She was still dazed and answered questions in a mechanical sort of way but was not disinclined to talk. When asked why she came bare-headed and in her stocking feet she replied that she slipped away and couldn't get them. Without any money she told the agent at Henderson that if he didn't give her a ticket she would come without one.

She stated that her husband was a carpenter and when the baby became so ill last week he took it to his mother's at Seven Springs. She was too ill at that time to go and he left her with friends at Henderson.

Dr. McGeachy and Dr. Jordan tried to induce her to go to the hospital but she insisted on going on to Goldsboro, and as the danger seemed (Continued on Page Two.)
