NEGRO CONVICT SHOT Guards Shoot Negro While Attempting to Escape.

Joe Hurst Was Trying to Escape From Convict Camp on Federal Point Road—Salvation Army Officer Moved to Columbus, Ga.—Carolina Men Celebrate.

Wilmington, Oct. 14—Joe Hurst, a negro serving a twelve month sentence on the county roads was shot yesterday by Guards Ernest Alken and Hicks, while he was attempting to make his escape from the convict camp on the Federal Point road, about four miles from the city. The negro was peppered in the back with eight or nine buck shots. He was carried to the Walker Memorial Hospital. It is stated that he has an excellent chance for recovery if no complications develop. Another negro named Murray made a break for liberty at the same time as Hurst, but he stopped when commanded to do so by the guards. Hurst was sentenced at the last term of superior court for forgery. He had been at work at the camp only a week or two. Hurst admitted later that it was foolish for him to attempt to escape with several guards so close to him, but he thought he would take a chance. When he did not obey the command of the guards to halt he was fired at and wounded. Ensign George Williams, who has been in charge of the local post of the Salvation Army for the past two months, received orders yesterday directing him to assume charge of the army work at Columbus, Ga. He and Mrs. Williams will depart Wednesday of next week to begin their work in the new field to which they have been assigned. His successor at this point has not been named as yet. It is expected that he will arrive here on the day that Emson Williams leaves Wilmington. The above information will be received with sincere regret by the hundreds of friends whom Mr. and Mrs. Williams have made since they came to Wilmington. Their stay in this city has been marked with signal success and they have accomplished a wonderful amount of good work. Both he and his wife are consecrated and devout workers in the cause of the master and their presence will be sadly missed in the homes of the poor and destitute of Wilmington. Wherever they may go in the future, they will be attended with the best wishes of the people of this city for continued success in the Christian cause to which they have devoted their lives. Mr. and Mrs. Williams came to this city from Winston-Salem. Previous to that time they were located at Mount Vernon, N. Y. Members of the local alumni association appropriately celebrated university day here Thursday evening. The formal observation of the event was held at the Colonial Inn, corner Third and Market streets and quite a number of former university students were present. The occasion proved most delightful indeed and several hours were spent in exchanging stories and recollections of "the good old college days." The feature of the session was the placing of the association upon a permanent and active basis.

John Marshall Harlan, one of the greatest justices of the United States supreme court, was born in Boyle county, Kentucky, Aug. 1, 1833. His ancestors of the father's side were English quakers who came to the United States about 1820, and settled in Chester county, Pa. His great-grandfather moved down into the Valley States valley, of what is now West Virginia, about his father's time. Harlan was born in Boyle county, Ky., in the year 1833, and died in that state on his death in 1911. The mother of Justice Harlan, who was born in Kentucky, was the daughter of Col. Rich Anderson, who emigrated from Virginia about the year 1792. The father of the justice was one of the most distinguished lawyers of his time in Kentucky, served in congress from 1835 to 1839 and died in 1850. He was secretary of state of Kentucky, member of the legislature, attorney-at-law for eight years and one of the authors of the Kentucky civil and criminal codes of practice. In politics he was an intense Whig of the old school and a strong supporter of Henry Clay.

Justice Harlan received his education at Center College, Kentucky, from which he graduated in 1852, at the age of nineteen. Then he began to study law with his father and later at the law school of Transylvania University in Lexington, Ky. He began to practice in Frankfort before he was of age and so rapid was his progress that in 1858, at the age of twenty-five, he occupied the position of county judge.

Mr. Harlan was soon drawn into politics in an active way and was nominated for congress by the Whigs in the strongly democratic Ashland

TAFT PAYS TRIBUTE TO MR. ROOSEVELT

San Francisco, Oct. 14—"And even then it might not have been built had it not been for the promptness and energy of Theodore Roosevelt," President Taft at the banquet last night by the Panama-Pacific Exposition Directors, brought thousands of guests to their feet, cheering wildly by this tribute to Roosevelt, and the part he played in building the Panama Canal. President Taft said the Spanish American war was directly responsible for the canal being built. What makes a woman so proud of her children is nobody else is.
