

Great City Auditorium Opened to the Public Last Night

of Judge Clark, the magnanimous donor. Mr. Poe reviewed the career of the great English knight and declared that though Raleigh had failed in his colonization schemes, his life had been a splendid success. The world is not measuring Raleigh by what he achieved in an age when everything was against him, but the world is measuring him by his high patriotic efforts, his noble character and blameless life.

Portrait Accepted.

The portrait was accepted for the city by Mr. W. B. Jones, who introduced the auditorium bill in the senate. Mr. Jones took a high position in his remarks; he referred feelingly to the unity of purpose that characterized the building commission, praised the chief justice for his patriotism, and congratulated the people of Raleigh on having such a magnificent building—for it is theirs, built with their money, and consecrated to the service of the State.

Governor Kitchin.

Gov. W. W. Kitchin, speaking for himself and the people of the State, offered sincere congratulations to the city of Raleigh. He referred to the wonderful progress this State has made in every particular—in agriculture, education, good roads, manufacture—and praised the broad liberality of the last legislature in making appropriations to push forward the State. Another magnificent building, to be erected by the State, he commended and spoke feelingly of Mr. Ashley Horne, the chairman, and the other sterling business men who are on the commission. He congratulated Raleigh, the architect, the builder and everybody concerned, and declared that Raleigh was worthy of being the capital of a progressive state—this city is "wide-awake," and will never go to sleep again. The speaker stressed the point that the auditorium furnished a place of assembly, gave the people of North Carolina a chance to be heard and do things in convention, and further justice and truth by enabling the people to assemble and employ their right of free speech. The city and the State were congratulated heartily and the speaker sat down amid cheers.

The Choral Society, with orchestral accompaniment, sang "Carolina," the audience joining in the chorus after the second verse.

From Governor Harmon.

When Governor Harmon was introduced he received an ovation. "I have always known the people of North Carolina by samples," he said, "and I am glad to know them by piece." This hit brought forth applause. The speaker told of Vance aboard ship at a time when the famous Tar Heel was seasick. A friendship was formed then that remained strong until the death of Vance. He referred pleasantly to Governor Kitchin, and said he wanted to see Kitchin attend the conference of governors, because he was needed there. No one could doubt that Governor Harmon was pleased to be present at the dedication of this building.

President Litchford.

Mr. H. E. Litchford, the energetic and inspiring president of the chamber of commerce, spoke a few minutes on the work of his organization and of what he wanted to do for Raleigh. When he declared that a "knocker" is no less than a traitor than was Bendier Arnold, the audience agreed with him by applauding. Mr. Litchford wanted the cooperation of all in making Raleigh a better city in every way. The city must be introduced anew to the people of North Carolina.

Other Remarks.

Congratulatory remarks were made by ex-Judge W. P. Bynum, of Greensboro, and Hon. A. H. Eller, of Winston-Salem. These gentlemen spoke as representatives of the two great political parties, but there was nothing partisan in their remarks. They showered well-deserved congratulations on the city for the handsome and commodious place of assembly. The exercises closed with music.

Why Wet Shampoos Are Injurious to Hair

(Guide to Beauty.)

"Avoid wet shampoos, if you would have soft, lustrous hair and plenty of it. More or less 'free' alkali in shampoo mixtures robs the scalp of its necessary oil, and this, in a measure, causes hair to grow dull, brittle and unmanageable. "The dry shampoo is rapidly gaining favor because of its cleansing and invigorating effect on both hair and scalp. If 4 ounces either of criss root or corn meal and 4 ounces of terebinthine are mixed together and a tablespoonful sprinkled over the scalp, then brushed well through and out of the hair, all traces of dust and dandruff will be removed, and the hair will take on a silken sheen and richness of color impossible by any other method."

Those on Platform.

Those occupying places on the platform were:
