

FOR CONTROL OF LAUNDRY

Great Scramble to Get Possession of Stock of a Raleigh Business Establishment

MANY BUYING STOCK

Three Months Ago Mr. Golter Secured Option on Block of Stock of Peoples Steam Laundry and Since Then There Has Been Demand for Shares—Under the Wise Direction Business Has Doubled and Stock is Now Valuable.

When Mr. J. R. Golter of Raleigh, secured an option on 153 shares of stock of the Peoples Laundry three months ago, he started a movement among Raleigh financiers that really moved. Mr. Golter deposited $25 to secure his option and then began gathering up shares of stock. When he got in the market Peoples Laundry stock was quoted at fifty-five cents on the dollar; today the stock is selling for $1.10 on the dollar and before night the quotations may be much higher.

The Peoples Laundry has paid in capital of $8,500, divided into shares of $10 each, and these shares were widely scattered. This laundry came into existence about four years ago and most of its stock was bought in small lots. Four months ago the far-seeing financier would have picked up a couple hundred shares of this stock at $5 a share, and today he could have sold it for $10.10.

To say that the officers and directors of the Peoples Laundry have been seized with a panic might not be quite fair to them; but it may be said with truth, that they have held caucuses, meetings, have canvassed the city for stock, and have bullied the market. The reason for this is that Mr. Golter has said that he would like to own the new laundry. He is said to have nearly half of the shares, and if he should secure half or one more, he would control one of the best business institutions in Raleigh.

Like many new enterprises, the Peoples Laundry did not pay at first, but in the last year or two it has come into its own. Under the management of Mr. H. C. Howell the business has doubled. Mr. Carey J. Hunter is president of the company, Mr. C. B. Park is vice president, and Mr. Howell, in addition to being manager, is secretary and treasurer. "Have you any Peoples Laundry stock?" is the question asked on every corner. Mr. C. C. McDonald, the stocks and bonds man, has advertisements running in the papers, and all who have stock may find a ready market.

Manager Howell announced today that the present owners still had control and would continue the policy of the laundry.

A TRIAL GAVE INSTANT RELIEF ---THE GREAT KIDNEY REMEDY NEVER DISAPPOINTS.

Being broken down in health, suffering with kidney trouble, despairing of ever being well again, I was advised by a friend to try Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root which gave me instant relief, and after using several bottles, I am now sound and well, and can safely recommend Swamp-Root to anyone suffering with back or kidney troubles.

I also had rheumatism, and I have had more relief from Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root than any other remedy. A sufficient trial will convince anybody of the merits of Swamp-Root.

Yours very truly,

A "NEAR OPERA" IS COMING

The Bohemian Girl in Richmond Was "Something Less Than Disappointing"

A ONE MAN ORCHESTRA

Richmond Paper Says It Was Very Different From the Advance Announcements—The Chorus Was Loud All Right, But Far From Graceful—Good Acrobats and Some Horseback Riding, But "All Acting By the Rest of the Company Was Omitted"—High Prices Here.

The widely-heralded "Bohemian Girl," scheduled to appear in Raleigh only once, next Monday, appeared in Richmond last Wednesday night and what the Richmond papers say about it, is certainly a sufficiency.

Two dollars is the advertised price in Raleigh for the best seats. The seat sale went on this morning and a few of the uninformed allowed themselves to be touched.

This clipping from The Times-Dispatch speaks for itself; it appears in the Amusement column and is labelled "Disappointing." It reads:

"When the New York critics, excerpted from those opinions were floated about the theatre a few nights ago, lavished praise upon the Aborn Opera Company's revival of 'The Bohemian Girl,' they must have been reviewing a very different production from that with which we are now being favored, for, while there were some bright spots in last night's performance of the beloved old opera, the whole was something less than disappointing.

"In the first place, our own little orchestra of six pieces and a piano was augmented by one lone man, the musical director, who also played the piano; there was not even a first violin to assist—and this to accompany an opera, not a musical comedy! Again, one does not expect the chorus of an opera to be chosen for beauty, of course, but he may reasonably expect that the participants in various and sundry ballets and figured dances, with waving lanterns, shimmering gauzes and near-glistening knives, should be able to move with some semblance of grace. This expectation, however, failed of realization—the dancers were chosen from the chorus, of some thirty men and women, and none of them had even a nodding acquaintance with Terpsichore. It is true they all, the people of the chorus, sang with a precision of attack and a volume that redounded to the credit of the musical director—that the quality of this volume was not remarkable for its beauty is no fault of his.

"Of the principals, Miss Blanche Morrison, the Arline of the company, was the most pleasing. She has an attractive personality and an agreeable voice, somewhat thin, but clear and musical, which she uses with ease, barring an unfortunate trick of using the H sound in the middle of a word while going from one note to another, unusual in light soprano, though common enough with low-voiced men. Her very high tones, however, are pure, true and sweet, and it is only the very high or very low notes that the average audience cares for anyhow, so that Miss Morrison became immediately popular after the first upper note in 'I Dreamt That I Dwelt in Marble Halls.' Miss Marie Louise Rogers sang the role of the Gipsy Queen in two distinct voices, but to the complete satisfaction of the house. Saul Roselle, the Devilshoof, displayed a bass of considerable power, while Harry Luckstone sang the part of Count Arnheim in a baritone of good resonance, though lacking in the upper register. The Florenstein of Augustus Vaughan was a negative quantity. John R. Phillips, the tenor, sang Thaddeus (programmed as a 'prescribed' Polish noble) in a manner far from pleasing. His very soft tones were musical, but when he sang 'out' his voice was ugly.

"Still, it was good to hear again, 'A Heart Bowed Down,' 'I Dreamt That I Dwelt in Marble Halls,' 'The Fair Land of Poland,' and all the other well-remembered and 'singer-proof' old songs.

"The 'modernization' of the opera consists largely of an utterly reckless bit of horseback riding in the first act, that made us gasp by its dare-deviltry, and of the most marvelous lot of tumblers that I have ever seen. Seven Arabs (Hassen Ben Ali's, presumably) came on in the second act, and after some good pyramid work, launched themselves into the wildest, most impossible, unbelievable series of whirlwind somersaults, wheels and eye-baffling gyrations that the mind of man can conceive. So wonderful were they that even the most hardened sat on the edge of their seats and marveled.

"All acting by the rest of the company was omitted."

In contrast to the above, the following local announcement is what the people of Raleigh are expected to swallow:

"It is said that the Messrs. Aborn have made the most extensive production of 'The Bohemian Girl' ever witnessed in America, as to colossal and magnificent scenic investiture and up-to-date introductions of novel and special features, which include a cavalcade of horses, bands of real Gypsies, wonderful whirlwind acrobats, and dazzling ballet, including the famous 'Dance of the Hours' from 'La Gioconda' in the last act, but they have not in any particular neglected to fully provide for the proper rendition of the opera from a musical standpoint. Great care has been given to the selections of not only the personnel of the cast, but also to the chorus as well, resulting in a full grand marshalled chorus, a brilliant corps de ballet, engaging upwards of one hundred people.

"The prices are $2.00, $1.50, $1.00, 75 and 50 cents."

STRONG SERMON LAST NIGHT.

Revival Services at Edenton Street Get Better and Better.

The revival services at Edenton Street church seem to get better and better, last night Mr. North preaching one of the strongest sermons during the meeting, on the saving of one's life in Christ. There will be no profit in gaining the things of this world if in the end eternal life is lost. In expending one's life and talents for God the whole life is enriched.

It was a strong and convincing sermon that appealed to men's reason instead of exciting their emotional nature. All the meetings have been deeply earnest and spiritual, calculated to make people think. In spite of the unfavorable weather the congregations continue to be large and all those who attend are being much benefited.

When the invitation was given last night, one went to the altar and was converted.

Uncle A. B. Bell, of Greensboro, one of the oldest members of the North Carolina Conference, has been present during the week, his presence being a benediction to the meeting.

The afternoon prayer meetings at the homes will be discontinued after this afternoon, but the services will be held at the church at 7:30 each evening until further notice. The public is invited to be present each evening.

Resolutions of Respect Upon the Death of Mr. Job P. Wyatt.

Whereas, Mr. Job P. Wyatt departed this life the 15th day of August, 1911; and

Whereas, he had found time amidst the great activities of his busy career to faithfully serve his city in the capacity of member of the Board of Audit and Finance; now, therefore

Be It Resolved 1st. That the Board of Aldermen feels that our city has lost, in Mr. Wyatt's death, the services of an able, conscientious and patriotic servant, and the citizenship of a good and true man. Successful in his private business, honest in his dealings with all men, and conscientious in his sense of public duty, his example deserves to be held up before the people of his city both in its private and public aspects.

Resolved 2nd. That these resolutions be spread upon our minutes in testimony of our appreciation of Mr. Wyatt's services to our sympathy with these that were near and dear to him; and further that a copy be also forwarded to the daily papers of Raleigh, with the request to publish.

LAST GAME AT HOME Game With Washington and Lee Last of Season

Tomorrow Afternoon Will Witness The Last Game of the Season on Home Gridiron—Carolina Farmers Meet Washington and Lee—Much Depends on Game.

The last football game of the season, here in Raleigh will be played Saturday afternoon on the A. & M. athletic field.

A. & M. will meet the Washington & Lee University. This game will be one of the best games played on the local ground this season. Both teams are in perfect shape and pretty well matched. The Virginia fellows have a record for this year as nearly as good as the Farmers and then both teams are deadly rivals.

Washington & Lee will come with a team that will try their hardest to defeat the Carolina Techites and then the Aggies, well they are determined to add another scalp to their belt. The Aggies belt, this fall is not quite as full as it has been in the past owing to the fact that two games have been lost this season but the Farmers have recovered from their shocks and they are determined that the game Saturday will not be a tie, as in the game the W. & L. played with V. P. I. this game resulted in a tie of five to five. Both teams played good ball and they were pretty evenly matched.

The game Saturday will have a lot of bearing on the Turkey Game Day. Eyes from the entire south will watch the game as it will have a good deal to do with the doping out of the way things will stack up for the Thanksgiving Day game. A. & M. is hoping to beat V. P. I. and then for this game the V. P. I. coach will have a chance to size up the Farmer team, and then get busy.

The probable line-up will be as follows:

A. & M.	Wash. & Lee
Selfert	Hurd
Floyd	Right end.
Dunn	Right tackle.
McIver	Right guard.
Sykes	Center.
Cool	Quarterback.
Anthony	Right half.
	Left half.
	Officials: Referee, Gass Lehigh.
