ASSOCIATED PRESS REPORTS.

Entered at the Postoffice at Raleigh, N. C., as Second-class Matter.

The democratic house passed the steel tariff revision bill today. They are keeping up the good work they began last summer, and if the democratic leaders outside of congress will just display as much horse sense as the congressmen the party will sweep the country next fall.

Champ Clark says he is a candidate for the democratic nomination and that he is "standing on his own feet." When he went out of the way, however, to vote for the Sherwood pension steal he put one of his feet on a slippery place.

Possibly he would make a good president, but this unnecessary blunder lost him any possible support, outside of Missouri, that there might have been for him in the south.

If the wishes of the candidates are followed the democratic senatorial primary will be held on the day of the regular election next November. At a conference the four candidates agreed in asking that the primary be held at that time. This being satisfactory to all the candidates, will no doubt be done. They also agreed to make public ten days before and ten days after the election the amount of their campaign expenses. Nothing was said in the agreement given out concerning the amount of the expenses. The new federal law on the subject is supposed to limit the candidate to $10,000. The law allows the candidate, however, to spend money for a good many things that he doesn't have to account for in his statement of expenses.

GOOD ROADS SENTIMENT.

The bad winter weather is not pleasant, but if it serves to create a determined sentiment for good roads we ought not to complain of its severity. That it is having this effect we gather from the newspapers from all over the state. The Monroe Journal thus tells of one instance:

"Squire Ellis B. Pusser started to town the other day from his home in New Salem township driving two good mules hitched to a wagon on which was one bale of cotton. Before getting here he gave up the task, left his team with a friend and walked to town. How many more of our citizens had similar experiences we do not know. When he went back he carried a petition to the county commissioners for an election for road improvement bonds which he will ask his neighbors to sign. Other petitions are out and will be presented to the commissioners at their next meeting.

"In the past few days there has been developed a road improvement sentiment in this county that seems to say that the people are at last determined to act on this important subject. Our roads are as they have not been in years, and nine out of every ten men you meet will express his disgust and the desire to see something done now.

"Few people know how easy it would be to do that something. "Did you know that we can issue those bonds, pay the interest on them, create a sinking fund to redeem them, and build roads at once, all with the taxes that we are now paying for roads without getting any roads?"

Everything that helps along the sentiment should be welcomed, and if bad weather is going to be the cause of getting good roads eventually it will have proved a blessing.

RALEIGH AND PROHIBITION.

A good many Raleigh people believe that the prohibition law is not better enforced in this city because of the impossibility, or at least the difficulty of getting evidence against the violators of the law. We don't know what the views of the city authorities and the police department are in regard to the matter but we presume they have some such excuse as this for not enforcing the law. And it is true, of course, that a policeman cannot get the evidence direct. The whiskey seller is not going to sell to a policeman, or make a sale to another person while a policeman is about. But that the evidence can be obtained was strikingly, not to say sensationally, illustrated yesterday afternoon at the Auditorium by Rev. R. L. Davis, superintendent of the State Anti-Saloon League. Before an audience of three thousand people Mr. Davis opened his grip and set on the table in front of him a half dozen flasks of whiskey. These, he said, had all been purchased in Raleigh within 24 hours, and picking up each bottle, one at a time, he announced the place of its purchase. Two of the bottles were from one place, making five places that he named where the stuff is being sold in this city. Mr. Davis was of the opinion that if the Anti-Saloon League could come here and purchase liquor and thus obtain evidence against the violators of the law that the Raleigh officials ought also to be able to get the evidence, and the great audience of Raleigh people seemed to be with him in this conclusion.

But remarkable as was this demonstration of the ease with which liquor can be obtained here, and the seeming ease with which the evidence can be gotten, it in fact does not help the situation at all except in that it may so crystallize sentiment that the people will demand that action be taken, not only demand it in the officials, but take it themselves. The point we are making is this: Mr. Davis said he did not buy the whiskey, personally. He didn't say who did and we presume that the men who bought it did not want their names made public and would be unwilling to appear as witnesses in court against the sellers. Their reasons are the reasons of the average man here and elsewhere. Man doesn't like to play the spy on his fellows, doesn't like to get another man to violate the law and then betray him into the hands of the law for doing it. The honorable man doesn't want to be a party to deceit and he knows if he buys whiskey from a man for the purpose of getting evidence against him he is betraying that man. He may possibly agree that as a good citizen it is his duty to do so but his nature rebels against it and he will not do it. And this is why it is so hard to get evidence against these people. Mr. Davis didn't tell us anything new. We all knew it was being sold before and he didn't show us how to get the evidence against the sellers for he suppressed the names of his witnesses.

We are not criticizing Mr. Davis. We understand that it is not his business, but the business of the people of Raleigh to put these people out of commission. We are only showing that the people of Raleigh have the same scruples about following the plan suggested by implication by Mr. Davis that Mr. Davis has himself, or that we are left to believe he has, when he failed to produce his witnesses. But there must be a way. Mayor Johnson was on the platform and saw the demonstration. We hope he can find the way. The citizens can help by forming a law and order league and holding up his hands in any effort he may make and if necessary by taking the initiative. Raleigh ought to have a search and seizure law, like Asheville's, but it hasn't it, and so must use the means it has to combat this traffic. Detectives could round up every one of these places in 24 hours. Some people bring the same objection against this method that the private citizen brings in his own case. But it is the detective's business, he is in the business and the objection does not hold good any more than would such an objection hold good against any plain clothes officer. The city should employ detectives. Failing to do it, the people, through a law and order league, should employ them. The city administration may have other plans. It is up to it to put some effective plan into execution.

The Charlotte Observer usually knows news when it sees it but in giving that Swan Quarter church story front page, top of column, it was a little wide of the mark. That story is no news but ancient history and has, we suppose, been printed at some time or other in the last fifteen years by almost every paper in the state.

An Ohio man by the name of Putt says that Oscar Underwood can defeat a republican. And that was putting it mildly, as Cowan or Booker would say.

MONEY TRUST INVESTIGATION.

No Agreement Among House Democrats on Proposed Investigation. Washington, Jan. 29.—No agreement among house democrats relative to the proposed "money trust" investigation was evident today. Representative Lindbergh, insurgent republican, author of the resolution now before the rules committee, declared he expected favorable action. Representative Littleton, a member of the committee, declared such an investigation would have the effect of further identifying the democratic party with a blind and destructive policy.

A man is just as sure as sure can be that wearing his hair like some famous person is a great credit to him.

DON'T PULL OUT THE GRAY HAIRS

A Few Applications of a Simple Remedy Will Bring Back the Natural Color.

"Pull out one gray hair and a dozen will take its place" is an old saying, which is, to a great extent, true, if no steps are taken to stop the cause. When gray hairs appear it is a sign that nature needs assistance. It is nature's call for help. Gray hair, dull, lifeless hair, or hair that is falling out, is not necessarily a sign of advancing age, for there are thousands of elderly people with perfect heads of hair without a single streak of gray.

When gray hairs come, or when the hair seems to be lifeless or dead, some good, reliable, hair-restoring treatment should be resorted to at once. Specialists say that one of the best preparations to use is the old-fashioned "sage tea" which our grandparents used. The best preparation of this kind is Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Hair Remedy, a preparation of domestic sage and sulphur, scientifically compounded with later discovered hair tonics and stimulants, the whole mixture being carefully balanced and tested by experts. Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur is clean and wholesome and perfectly harmless. It refreshes dry, parched hair, removes dandruff and gradually restores faded or gray hair to its natural color.

Don't delay another minute. Start using Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur at once and see what a difference a few days' treatment will make in your hair.

This preparation is offered to the public at fifty cents a bottle, and is recommended and sold by all druggists.
