SHIP WITH DEAD IN PORT

Bells Told and Flags Were Lowered As the Mackay-Bennett Steamed Into Harbor

SCORES ON THE DOCK

Cables Reached Her Dock in Halifax This Morning—Many People on the Dock Looking to Find Relatives or Friends Among the Unidentified Dead—Precautions Taken to Guard the Pier From the Mischief Curious—Bells Told as Ship Came and Flags Were Lowered to Half Mast.

Halifax, April 29.—While the city's church bells tolled and the British flags fluttered at half mast, the cableship Mackay-Bennett steamed slowly into Halifax harbor this morning, bearing the dead picked up from the scene where the White Star liner Titanic sank. She reached her dock in the navy yard shortly after nine-thirty o'clock. As soon as the ship was sighted down the harbor, the canvas curtains shielding the coffins and embalmers tents on the pier were lowered and twenty sailors from the Canadian cruiser Niobe lined up as a guard, a patrol boat was stationed in front of the pier to prevent any craft docking in the vicinity. Scores were on the dock, awaiting an opportunity to view the bodies of the unidentified, hoping they might find a relative or friend.

Following the Mackay-Bennett's arrival it was announced the total number of bodies aboard was one hundred and ninety. It was necessary to bury one hundred and sixteen at sea. Among those brought to port were the bodies of two women. Her own flag at half mast, the death ship docked slowly. The aft deck was stacked with coffins, men with stretchers came aboard and the work of removal began quickly. There was no doubt about the identification of Colonel Astor's body. In his pockets twenty-five hundred dollars were found and he wore a belt with a gold buckle. The body of George B. Widener was so mutilated it was buried at sea. At 11 o'clock the work of removing the bodies from the forward deck was completed. None of the coffins thus far had been touched. The work of unloading the bodies was expected to consume the entire day.

Among the bodies brought by the Mackay-Bennett was that of Isador Straus. The cableship searched 30 square miles near where the Titanic sank. Astor's body was brought off the ship shortly before noon and taken with the others to the morgue. Captain Gardner received interviewers and described the work of the Mackay-Bennett at sea.

The total number of bodies found was three hundred and six. One hundred and sixteen, mostly members of the Titanic's crew and unidentified, were consigned to the sea, and the remaining one hundred and ninety were brought to Halifax. Only eighteen bodies of women were found afloat.

Relics of the Titanic dotted the sea over an area of thirty miles square, Captain Gardner said. Doors, windows and chairs by the score were found floating, but to one of them were bodies lashed. In several instances there were groups of floating bodies numbering 50 or more, but none were lashed together. Astor was found standing almost erect in his life belt.

"We buried so many at sea," said Captain Gardner, simply because we could not accommodate them. We had limited embalming supplies and it was absolutely necessary to consign many to the deep. The majority of those sunk were unidentified.

Ismay Again on Stand.

Washington, April 30.—The investigation into the Titanic disaster entered the final stages today. J. Bruce Ismay, managing director of the International Mercantile Marine, owners of the Titanic was recalled by Chairman Smith.

Ismay indignantly denied he or any representative of his company attempted to re-insure the Titanic between the time she went down and the hour real news of the disaster became public. He asserted the wireless message which he directed to Vice President Franklin from the Carpathia Monday morning, April 15, did not reach that official until Wednesday, 17th. Ismay said the Titanic was not a "speed boat" but had been constructed under orders given by him to make her the biggest and best equipped vessel afloat. No cost limit was set.

Damage Suits Begun.

Washington, April 30.—Under proceedings in admiralty court, J. Bruce Ismay, managing director of the International Mercantile Marine, was summoned to appear this afternoon before a commissioner to give testimony for use in the suit of Mrs. Louise Robbins, of New York, against the White Star Line. TORPEDO BEALE IS LAUNCHED

Christened By Mrs. McLean Sketch of Great Fighter

Philadelphia, April 30.—The United States torpedo boat Beale was launched this afternoon at Cramps ship yard. Mrs. John R. McLean, of Washington, daughter of Lieutenant Edward Fitzgerald Beale, after whom the ship was named, christened the fighter as she swung down the ways to the water.

The new torpedo boat is a fighting machine of the most modern type. She is 289 feet long, with a beam of 28 feet and a displacement of 742 tons. Her draft is 7 feet 4 inches and she is expected to make a speed of 30 knots an hour.

She is equipped with three torpedoes tubes, five three-inch guns and two machine guns.

SUIT AGAINST THE HARVESTER TRUST

S. The petition in equity named seven corporations and eighteen individuals as being the responsible heads of the hundred and forty million dollar harvester corporation, and sets forth charges that the defendants control the majority of trade in harvesting machinery in the United States "to the great injury to the farmer and general public." TAFT MAY LOSE TEN MORE MEN

If Plans Afoot Fail, Colonel Ted. Will Run Penn.

Harrisburg, Pa., April 30.—An attempt to wrest the control of the Pennsylvania state republican convention from the hands of Colonel Roosevelt's followers will be made on May 1st, when the republican state convention convenes here to select the twelve delegates-at-large to Chicago in June. If this attempt fails, it is confidently predicted by the Roosevelt men today, it is probable that most of the ten delegates credited to President Taft will swing into line with the Roosevelt men, making a solid Pennsylvania delegation to Chicago in favor of Roosevelt.

The official program for the state convention gives the allied Taft delegation, amounting to 20 for the total. The former action, however, controls Convention Secretary Henry E. Weston, of Philadelphia, a Taft supporter, and is building its hopes of capturing the twelve delegates-at-large for Taft on the prestige of the old Pennsylvanian.

Another side light of the coming convention is the probable overthrow of Wadsworth and the appointment of a Roosevelt man as secretary of the state convention. If this occurs, Senator Penrose will not even be a delegate-at-large to the national republican convention at Chicago. His only party will be to sit in the state convention as a delegate from the eighth ward.

At the Penrose headquarters here today, it was contended that a grossness-at-large, and a general state treasurer, and the presidential electors would be named to suit the Roosevelt people. It is thought, however, that many of the Roosevelt supporters will back the machine in the convention votes on the state officers, since their desire will have been satisfied when Roosevelt delegates to Chicago have been named.
