New York Cotton Letter.
New York, May 15.—The market has been nervous and irregular today. A good demand was met on the dips but the buying was not as general as yesterday. Official forecasts were favorable as they indicated that showers were passing eastward and were being followed by clearing conditions in western and central sections of belt and they contributed to the early decline. The market opened unchanged to 6 points decline and sold about 9 to 11 net lower. At this level some of yesterday's big buyers came to the support of prices and the market steadied up to about last night's final figures. So far it would seem that the chief influence to a realization that government report is so near at hand had been in the direction of restricting fresh speculative interest and in promoting a tendency to even up scattering commitments. The government report can hardly be more bullish than the private news that has been circulating and with the weather now better, private crop reports are now beginning to show improvements.

the only Taft man on the committee. The committee follows: First district—A. J. Moyer, Pitt; second, R. D. Paschall, Warren; third, C. C. Vann, Duplin; fourth, Berry Godwin, Johnson; fifth, W. W. Hampton, Surry; sixth, J. B. Tucker, Columbus; seventh, A. B. Coltraine, Randolph; eighth, J. D. Dorsett, Rowan; ninth, C. A. Jonas, Lincoln; tenth, Fred B. Hemrick, Rutherford.

Convention Takes Recess.
Hon. Chas. H. Cowles of Wilkesboro informed the chair that T. E. McCreary was endorsed by the seventh district convention for a place on the credentials committee but as no motion had been made to have the convention decide this matter, the motion that Mr. Cowles then made was ruled out of order. Somebody made a motion to adjourn for an hour and this was done.

For the Reporters.
The best of care is being taken of the reporters, a large table giving them ample room. Both the Postal and Western Union have wires running into the hall and operators and messenger boys are plentiful. In addition to these conveniences the chamber of commerce left some cigars on the table and those who have the desire may work and smoke. Among the visiting newspapermen here are E. B. Jeffers, Greensboro News; Winder R. Harris, Charlotte Observer; Leake Araway, Charlotte News, and Mr. Harder, of the Associated Press, and Mr. J. F. Barrett, of the Asheville Citizen.

Good Music.
The Third regiment band rendered some of its best music. It is always equal to the occasion and its music today was highly appreciated.

Some Speaking.
Chairman Walsler called the convention to order at 2:15, when the call for the convention, inadvertently omitted at noon, was read by Secretary Grissom. Mr. Walsler stated the committee on credentials would not report within an hour and asked as to the pleasure of the convention. "Settle, Settle," was the cry, which was followed by "Walsler, Walsler." Mr. Walsler smilingly said that when Colonel Roosevelt was in North Carolina the other day he asked Mr. Walsler to state that North Carolina declared for him before there was any band wagon to climb on. The crowd called for Col. Walter R. Henry, who was introduced as "The John L. Sullivan of North Carolina." Colonel Henry thought it was unfortunate that the time had come when republicans are disagreeing among themselves. The democrats need not take courage from that, because the republicans have a wonderful faculty for disagreeing and getting together. He said he stood 300 points in favor of that magnificent statesman, William Howard Taft.

Is Howled Down.
"Notwithstanding that," he started to say, when the crowd yelled, "Sit down," and all the rapping by Chairman Walsler, in an effort for order, were futile. It was sit down. Colonel Henry lifted his arm for peace, the band struck up, the crowd yelled louder and as he took a chair a great shout arose.

Mr. Corey, of Statesville, took the stand and declared he hoped it would never go out that any man had been discourteously treated. "Let him speak," the crowd then cried, and Colonel Henry resumed where he had left off—with 300 pounds. There was an interruption from the right, and the speaker cried, "Shut your mouth." He said he stood for Mr. Taft, but if Mr. Roosevelt were nominated he would bow to the will of his party and support Mr. Roosevelt. He thought the success of the republican party above all other considerations.

"Go, sit down," somebody cried and the Colonel subsided.

Then Marion Butler was called on. He declared he, twenty years ago, stood for the things that Roosevelt stands for, "the rule of the people and down with the bosses." He was interrupted several times by applause, and once or twice was asked the question.

The former senator warmed up to his subject, but the applause did not gather in force as he went along. He declared that Roosevelt's campaign had sounded the deathknell of the convention system, of the domination of bosses of both parties.

Judge Robinson Speaks.
The crowd called for "Cy. Thompson" and "Walsler." Then Judge Robinson was called enthusiastically to say that "I just came up here today that whoever would speak to such an audience as this should have something to say." He came, in the classic words of the old man from Johnston, "A-wishing of no harm and a-hoping of no bad feeling for nobody." Judge Robinson said he would like to have the man who said North Carolina republicans were dominated by officeholders to smile on this convention. He would like to see Taft nominated by the democrats at Baltimore. They ought to, for he has done more for them than any democrat. He resented Taft's charge made at Greensboro. The crowd was with him, yelling "rub it in," and refusing to permit him to stop speaking. He said Teddy was the personification of all that make a man great. When he can't do right, he does wrong, and when he does he always does the democrats. He was given a great cheer.

Appreciate Hospitality.
Secretary Grissom read a resolution expressive of the thanks of the convention for the cordial reception tendered by the capital city. The resolution, which was adopted by a rising vote, led Mr. Walsler to say that he hoped Roosevelt would be nominated with such unanimity. The resolution follows:

"The convention of the republican party of North Carolina returns its thanks to the people of our capital city for their hospitable reception of this convention.

"The chamber of commerce and their committee, the mayor of the city and its progressive citizenship, have given us a welcome which will always be a pleasant memory.

"While our reception has been so universal and so cordial that our thanks are due to all, we may be pardoned for mentioning Col. Fred A. Olds, W. S. Wilson and the committees which have so courteously aided him.

"Our greeting to the wide-awake citizens of Wide-Awake Raleigh."
