Messrs. EDITORS:—Thinking perhaps some of your readers would like to hear from the Grand Ball, given by the Messrs. Blackwell & Co., at their Springs near Kittrell's depot, I will endeavor, in a brief sketch, to try to do the affair justice, although I know I will fall far short. We left Raleigh, in company with several ladies and gentlemen about 1.45, P. M., Wednesday afternoon, and after a very pleasant ride, reached Kittrell's at 5 P. M. Hacks were in readiness to convey us to the Springs, about 3/4 of a mile distant. The road to the Springs is down hill, and could hardly see the Hotel for the heavy shade trees that surrounded it, until we reached the gate leading to it. The Hotel is situated on an elevation about 60 feet above the level of the Spring. The Spring, a romantic little place, or we should judge so from the number of couples who frequented its shade at sunrise, and especially during the shades of the evening. Everything is so convenient—so neat, and much credit should be given to the Messrs. Blackwell & Co., for the comforts afforded to their guests.

We notice among those present, Gen. M. W. Ransom, with his family, Gen. Robt. Ransom, Col. R. B. Bridgers and family, and several men of prominence. But the success of the day depended upon the ball at night to come off in the hall—a commodious room—holding four sets at once. We noticed this hall had been used by those fond of skating, and our Raleigh boys showed off their skating propensities to advantage.

At 7 P. M., the musicians took their place, and almost at once a stroke of the violin a sufficient number were on the floor to dance to anything they might choose to play. For one hour they danced and then supper was announced, but not the grand supper. Although if man could not have satisfied his appetite at that table you might stamp him a "dyspeptic."

After supper we proceeded to the ball room brilliantly illuminated. Two by two the ladies entered, each one to find a partner waiting them, to dance the first set. Raleigh was well represented by beauty and grace. Next to Raleigh, was our little town, Oxford, who must have done her best, for some handsome young girls seemed to be particularly struck with several beauties from that place.

About 1 o'clock, A. M., the grand supper was announced, each young man (and some old ones) carried a lady down to supper. The tables were handsomely decorated with evergreens and flowers, very fine grapes, hanging in clusters from the different stands. Everything was to the most delicate, everything good to believe our Mrs. B. of Raleigh had the supervision of the tables, or some delicate hand must have had it in charge, for no man could have shown so much taste. Very soon after supper dancing commenced again and never ended till half past four in the morning, for we saw three young men dancing to themselves at that late hour. We did not dance, but looked on, and was the only one who did not sleep any during the time. We visited the grounds early in the morning, and they are so well kept. Everything is in its place. These springs have been well patronized this summer, and we wish the firm much success during the coming summer. We return many thanks to the Messrs. B. & Co. for their kindnesses to us, and can simply say, success attend the watering place of North Carolina.

WELL TOLD.—The sad story of Cleopatra is thus told by a truly rural poet: She got a little pison snake, And hid it in her gown, 'T gave in little tail a shake, And did her job up brown.

She tumbled down upon her bed, Where she was wont to lie, Removed her chignon from her head, And followed Antony.

The British Admiralty do not intend to construct any more large armor-plated ships at present.

It is strange that grocers ever become rich, since they always give their goods a weigh.

An inch of rain falling upon an acre of land weighs about one hundred tons. A Kansas man is in jail for letting a neighbor's mule follow him. The woman question—Is he married? A good side show—A pretty cheek. Irredeemable bonds—Vagabonds.
